As others may enlist, you will please add the names of their families on the same terms as heretofore awarded; and fresh troops, with a number of batteries, have should any of the discharged volunteers imme- offered their services and been accepted. diately return to the seat of war, you will continue the allowance as though their term of service had not expired.

JOHN J. PRARSON, By the Court. A. O. HIESTER.

RETURN OF THE CAMERON GUARDS .- This company, with the exception of the first Lieutenant and three privates, returned home yesterday afternoon, and were received by the First City Zouaves, who escorted them to their old quarters at the Walnut Street Exchange. The boys received the congratulations of a large crowd of selends and acquaintances assembled at the This Saie, at the above prices, will continue long enough to sell off our immense stock, which was purchased at a great Sacrifice from Manufacturers who have Guards have performed ardnous duties during Guards have performed arduous duties during the three months they have been in service, and had Gen. Patterson afforded them an opportukilled at the Junction, and it was rumored but nity of meeting the rebels on the battle field, they would have distinguished themselves and done credit to the city. Had there been a prospect of a fight within two weeks, or had Gen. Patterson manifested a disposition to engage the rebels, instead of keeping out of their way the Guards would cheerfully have remained in service some time longer. As it is, many of them express a determination to re-enlist and serve for the balance of the war. The boys all look well, and most of them enjoy better health than when they went away. Lieutenant Geo. W. Davis, and others of the company who remained behind, are expected home to-day or to-morrow. It is probable that measures will at once be taken for a re-organization of the company with the view of re-enlisting.

GENERAL PATTERSON'S CASE. The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, writes of Patterson's delay as follows: "It appears that Johnson has managed to slude the column under General Patterson and to add his column to that of Beauregard, thus largely increasing the forces of the traitors at Manassas. On Thursday last Major General N. P. Banks was assigned to the command of Patter-son's division, and Major General John A. Dix appointed to succeed General Banks in the important position of General-in-chief of the military district of which Baltimore is the centre. "The capture of Johnston, who is the finest field officer of the Confederate army, would have crushed at least one of the heads of the hydra, and the delay of General Patterson in the fulfillment of this task is charged to other counsels than his own. His reason for not making a dash at Johnston, so as to prevent him from joining the traitors at Manas now said to be attributed to the fact that the time of a majority of the regiments in his division (Pennsylvania all) expires in a few days, and that they were unwilling to enlist for an coming battle or for the war. General Scott under the circumstances, deemed it best to re-lieve General Patterson, and to put in his place the young and energetic chief, whose short experience at Baltimore has reflected so much credit upon himself."
