A DEN GUTTED .- A disreputable institution in the rear of the Capitol was stormed the other night by a party of soldiers. The furniture was broken, the walls defaced and damaged, and the entire establishment effectually gutted. The emale occupants were driven out, and have not ventured to return. The storming party would have conferred a benefit upon the city by crushing out other equally infamous dens.

MASKED TRAITORS .- Although the people are singularly unanimous in their patriotic Union feeling, yet there are a few blatant traitors in our midst who should be known and spotted. The reverses which our northern troops have net with are "nuts" to these individuals, who chuckle over them publicly and privately. The great curse which the north has to contend with are the masked secessionists who go about grinning at every reverse which the Union cause meets with, and covering over every heroic achievement that militates against the south with their traitorous secession slime.

WHITNEY'S IMPROVED REVOLVERS .- The improvements in all kinds of fire arms, has long been a subject of rivalry with the soldiers and inventors of the world, but it has been reserved for American genius and skill so far to excel all the world in this particular branch of mechanism. Eli Whitney, a son of the great inventor of the Cotton Gin has accomplished the ast success in this branch of the business, and his rifled revolvers are now accepted and recognized as superior to Colt's revolvers.

The fire-arms manufactured by Mr. Whitney, re for sale at the hardware store of Henry Gilbert, Market street, opposite the Court House. We invite the attention of the public, particularly to these arms, as almost indispensable in these days of rebellion.

FIGHTING ON SUNDAY .- The Christian Intellinencer attributes the recent defeat partially to the fact that the battle of Bull Run took place on Sunday. We quote :

Only last week we directed attention to the ecklessness with which the Lord's day had peen invaded. Who that recalls the numberless instances of wanton and organized violation f the Sabbath in camp and field, and the deliperate selection of Sunday as the day of battle. an fail to trace the possible connection of "our mpiety and folly" with the lack of "the blessug of heaven on our arms ?"

The other side fought on Sunday also; and f we lost, they won. They might as reasonably attribute their victory to the fact of their having fought on Sunday, as our religious papers attribute our defeat to that fact. To be sure it would have been better if the battle had not been fought on that day, and if our troops could have had the time for repose and refreshment. But, as it is, we think it rather ridiculous for the journal in question to write in this strain.
