That a gallant Cameron should command a regiment called the Seventy-ninth, was ex-tremely appropriate. In the British army the Seventy-ninth Regiment is called "The Cameron Highlanders."

The Clan Chameron, which had a common origin with the Clan Chattan, was one of the twelve great Soutish sepis of families entitled to have supporters to their heraldic arms a dignity peculiar, beyond these twelve, to peers alohe. In the fourteenth century, the Chara-erons and the Chattans divided—on a matter bu landed property and their respective cham pions, thirty against thirty, fought that cele-brated combat at Perth; in the year 1396, be-fore King Robert III., his nobility and court, which Southas and the graphically described in "The Fair Maid of Perth." The Chamerons conquered, and the Clan Chattans never recov-ered the disgrace of the defeat.

It is asserted by Scottish historians, that the real name of the Clan Chameron or Cameron was Maceman. The founder of the race was descended, it was said, from a younger son of the royal house of Denmark, who assisted at the restoration of Fergus II, in 404. This progenitor had a peculiarity in his nasal organ, and the Gaelic term Chameron, i. e. Wrynose, first given to the individual, was eventually assumed by the clan as its actual patrynymic.

The Camerons had their seat in Lochaber as far back as can be distinctly traced. The more modern possessions of Lochiel and Locharkaig, situated on the western side of the Lochy, in Perthehire, were originally granted by the Lord of the Isles to the founder of clan Ranald, from whose descendants they passed to the Camerons. After the defeat of the clan Chattan, on the luch of Perth the elder branch, under the name of MacMarten, made a new clan; but the second son; Came-ron of Strone, headed the Lochiel party, and declared himself independent. After the usual amount of fighting with their neighbors and rivels during the new terms of the second source of the second and rivals, during the next century, Sir Allen Dameron, succeeded by his son Sir Ewen, added greatly by conquest to the family pos-sessions. In the middle of the seventeenth century there was a second. Sir Ewen Cameron, one of the heroes of that age, who was the last of the Highland chiefs to submit to Cromwell, who finally obtained his submission on the honorable terms, simply on his parole; and without, oath or bond, of living in peace with "the powers that be." Full idennity was made to him and his tenants and followers for all losses, sustained from the Commonwealth's troops, and complete idemnity was granted to all the Camerons. Lochiel, as Sir Evan ameron is generally called, lived in peace until the Restoration, and remained in tranquil until the Restoration, and remained in tranuitil possession of his property, until the Bevolution of 1688, when, refusing a title and a large sum of money offered him by William of Orange, on the condition of remaining neutral, he joined the standard of James. IL, which had been raised by Viscount Dundee. He led his men gallantly at the battle of Killionankie, at which after Dundee had fillen he took comwhich, after Dundee had fallen, he took comwhich, after Dundee had fallen, he took com-mand of his men, and won the victory in half. FROM GEN, BANK'S COLUMN.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY, Mp., Sept. 2. An eye-witness states that the affair at Conrad's Ferry, a week ago, was as follows : A party of Union scouts crossed the river, took two prisoners, in arms, and four horses. Reaching the river, on their return, they succeeded in getting two horses over, when they were attacked and compelled to let the prisoners go The next day a battery appeared opposite our entrenchments and commenced shelling us. No battery being there at the time, our men responded with their muskets and rifles.

Three days subsequent to the exchange of courtesies, a large rebel camp was discovered to be within range of our rifle batteries, and near Leesburg. An active bombardment soon caused the rebels to leave their quarters for a safer position, a mile, at least, further from the river. Our artillerists say that they threw shells from their rifled guns over and beyond the town of Leesburg.

Information given by negroes, induced search yesterday, south of Poolesville, for arms, supposed to be intended for Maryland rebels in the rebel cause. The search was successful. Some twelve or fifteen complete cavalry equipments were discovered and retained by our scouts. Residents of the neighborhood assert, scouts. Residents of the neighborhood assert, however, that the equipments belonged to a company of home guard cavalry which was raised last winter; to guard against a rising of the heatest and very handsome emblems and particular the negroes; that the company was outfitted by the State, but owing to the distance from the place of assembling at which many of the members lived, the company was disbanded be.
