This victory is one of the most signal and triumphant, and is another indication of that more stupendous triumph which our brave soldiers are preparing to achieve over rebellion in Virginia.

CAPTAIN D. H. HASTINGS.

During the crisis which has involved the states of this Union in such momentous excitement and conflicts, there have been many brought prominently before the people, in various capacities, and who have monopolised a large share of credit and honor for services and labors that were often rendered by others-and there have also been a number of other men, intimately connected with the organization and disciplining of troops to swell the army of the Republic, who receive no credit, and are almost entirely unknown to the people as the agents and servants who were faithfully discharging their most important business. Among this class of men is Captain David H. Hastings, an officer in the regular army, and a soldier who has served bravely and gallantly in the Indian wars and the bloody battles we were forced to fight with the ill-advised and meanly governed Mexicans. From the commencement of the conflicts of this rebellion Captain Hastings has been stationed in this city as disbursing agent of the fund appropriated by Congress to defray the expenses of equipping and organizing the troops volunteering in this state for the U. S. army, a duty at once arduous, important and of the fund appropriated by Congress to defray army, a duty at once arduous, important and responsible, but which Capt. The operation against the rebels, and as its organization involves great risks and important results, it was necessary to select one of the most efficient and experienced officers of the day for the work. The War Department has displayed its usual sagacity in ordering Capt. Hastings to this work, and we anticipate therefore for this arm of our national defences, a peculiar and glorious success.

Capt. Hastings will necessarily be absent from this city the greater part of his time, although we understand that the disbursing of the fund and suggests only such modifications as are defor organizing recruits will still be under his charge, and that he will be in this city for business at least for a few days every month.

THE NATIONAL LOAN is succeeding beyond expectation. Several hundred subscription agents were appointed last week in nearly every loyal state, including Virginia and Kentucky. \blacktriangle considerable number has already accepted, and sent in their bonds, and the others will probably all be at work this week. The subscriptions of the people have exceeded nine millions, and their patriotic co-operation will doubtless enable the banks to take the second instalment of fifty millions, and supply all the money needed for a vigorous but economical prosecution of the war. The administration feels the importance of justifying by vigor, economy and ses. Wasteful expenditures and corrupt contracts, by which alone the security of the workingmen who invest their earnings in the loan can be impaired, will be vigorously repressed.

The Peacemakers in Kentucky have a queer way of extending the olive branch. At the late Frankfort Convention, one of the speakers hoped that "the angel of peace would guide a bullet to every Yankee's heart."

In this connection we print the following letter from the President of the United States, to General Freemont, modifing that portion of the proclamation which is referred to by the act of manumission. It will be seen that the President approves the general tenor of the proclamation, manded by the law :

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 11, 1861.

To Major-General John C. Fremont: SIR :-- Yours of the 8th inst., in answer to mine of the 20th inst., has just been received Assuming that you, being upon the ground could better judge of the necessities of your position than I could at this distance, on seeing your proclamation of August 30th, I perceived no general objection to it. The particular clause however, in relation to the confiscation of pr perty and the liberation of slaves appeared to me to be objectionable in its non-conformity to the act of Congress, passed the 6th of last August, upon the same subject, and hence I wrote to you, expressing my wish that that clause should be modified accordingly.

Your answer, just received, expresses the pre ference, on your part, that I should make an open order for the modification, which I very cheerfully do. It is, therefore, ordered that the said clause of said proclamation be so modified integrity the confidence manifested by the mas. held, and construed as to conform to, and not to transcend the provisions on the same subject contained in the act of Congress, entitled "An Act to confiscate the property used for insurrectionary purposes," approved August 6th, 1861, and that the said act be published at length, with this order.

Your obedient servant. A. LINCOLN. The act of Congress, relating to the slaves of rebels, which the President directs General Freemont to respect, is as follows :
