Celegraph THE SECRETARY OF WAR.

During the crowded state of our columns in the late election campaign, we were prevented from continuing our quotations of the defence of the Secretary of War, made by the most prominent and influential newspapers at home and abroad. We resume the publication of Written for the Telegraph.

There is nothing more certain in the rapid There is nothing more certain in the rapid and ever-changing current of events, than that justice and truth will ultimately triumph over ingratitude and dissimulation. This is one of the consoling facts revealed by faithful history, deprived of a knowledge of which men of worth and fortitude might be led to despair even of their country. It is true, indeed, that patriots and statesmen are always so fortunate as to re-ceive the reward of their patient labors and disinterested services in the cause of their country, in their own day and generation; but, nevertheless, the time will come, when the names of such men will be found enrolled and venerated among those of the defenders of lib-erty, and of the benefactors of mankind. Every day, however, even in these evil and malignant times, when men seek the attainment of their partisan and personal ends through the detraction and misrepresentation of those whom they fear on account of their firmness, their justice, and their unflinching rectitude of purpose, we behold impulsive evidences, flowing from the hearts of the people, bearing unmistakable proof that they are neither unmindful of, nor ungrateful to those who serve them with sin-cerity, and with po other blint in view the cerity, and with no other object in view than the honor and integrity of their whole country. Among those patriots of our own unhappy times, whose disinterested labors in behalf of is country are destined to receive the grateful plaudits of the future historian, we may justly refer to the present Secretary of War, the Hon. SIMON CAMERON, of Pennsylvania. It is true however, that the reputation of Mr. Cameron like that of other putriots and defenders o their country, has not escaped the malice of disappointed aspirants, anxious to obtain respon-sible stations, the honors of which they were known to be unworthy of, and the duties of he people. In view of the confused condition the Department was left in by his unworthy prede-cessor, the traitorous and thieving Floyd, and of the suddenness of the startling events which laimed all the untried energies of the new Secretary, it may justly be esteemed a subject of congratulation for the whole country, that Mr. Cameron was selected as the chief of that most important executive branch of the Gov ernment. Nothing, indeed, but the rankest prejudice and ingratitude could induce any man array himself against a public officer who effected so much, in so short a time, for the defence of the Union against a powerful and un prepared for rebellion, as did the present Secre tary of War, the honored son of Pennsylvania

Treasury enormous sums of money. We take the foregoing extract from the Washington correspondence of the New York Tribune, and are exceedingly gratified that it is in our power to contribute towards its circulagentleman to whom it refers. We have not suffered the malignant assaults upon Mr. Cameron to abate or weaken in any degree, our con-fidence in his integrity, and have rested under the conviction that, in a short while, the wea-pons directed at him would be turned upon his assailants. The time has come sconer than we anticipated, and it will afford his friends some satisfaction to know that it is his stern and un-yielding defence of the interests of the Govern ment which has invited the fierce assaults upon him. It is an easy matter to raise a popula and abroad. We resume the publication of these extracts, knowing that our readers and the public generally in this locality are always gratified to peruse the printed words of promi-nent citizens in defence of one whom they delight to honor. We offer the following com-munication, as one of the home defences, written by a gentleman heretofore connected with the press of this state, and at present occupying a position of great respectability and trust among the business men of this country. He seems to every energy they possess to the advancement the business men of this country. He seems to every energy they possess to the advancement express the sentiments entertained by a class of the public welfare. This we apprehend has of men whose confidence any man may be proud War, whose position, since he came into office, has involved more responsibility, by far, than has involved more responsionly, by an, since ever rested upon any of his predecessors since the Govennment was formed. In the first place, he found the afiairs of his Department thrown into confusion by the steps which a traitorous predecessor had taken with a view of turning all the material of the army against the Government, upon the breaking out of the revolution which he was, with unparalleled baseness and corruption, then engaged in plot-ting. And, hence, when the war broke out, he was immediately surrounded with the most extraordinary embarrassments, which it re-quired herculean energy to overcome. We need only refer to the facts that nearly the entire arny and all the war material were in the Southern states, and a large portion of the forts in those states left ungarrisoned, as the ground of these suggestions. Yet, in the midst of these difficulties—which would have overwhelmed a man of only ordinary energy-Secretary Cameron has contrived to bring order out of chaos, and to put the army on a more complete and better war footing than it ever was before. And besides this, he had to gather this army from among the farms, and workshops, and business avenues of a country unused to war and entirely unprepared for it. And he had not only to gather the men together, but to transport them many hundred mites, in large bodies, and to provide for their subsist-ence. When all these things are remembered, the only wonder is, that, situated as he was, he has done so well-and this, we feel convinced, will be the judgment of the country when it shall come to understand the character of the services he has performed. But there is another view of the matter which should not be overlooked. It is this; That, at the present time, nothing is so well calculated to advance the cause of rebellion in the North, as this constant false clamoring against the Administration, and, especially the War and Navy Departments, which are imme-diately charged with the conduct of the area. diately charged with the conduct of the war. The secessionists desire nothing so much as to divide the North into factions, because, thereby they promise themselves to make a united south more certainly successful in overthrowing the the Government and dividing the Union. And there is no more effective means of doing this than to destroy the public confidence in the Administration. Therefore, they are rejoiced, no doubt, to witness the attacks upon the Sec-

and munitions of war, while saving to the derstood and thwarted by the vigilance and sagacity of the Secretary of War, attempted to re-venge themselves and to get rid of him by

Let us hear no more, then, of the malicious atterances of disappointed aspirants, who, basely to avenge themselves for some just rebuke of their presumption in demanding stations they were incompetent to fill, would deeply injure, if not ruin forever, the prospect of a happy future to our beloved country. С. М. Н. of the state of Indiana, takes up the defence of the Secretary of War in a manner in which we had scarcely any right to expect from that quarter, because the people of that state, like the people of most of the western and southwestern commonwealths, have always regarded Pennsylvania and her statesmen with a jealous and a selfish indifference. Why this is so they can better explain than we are able to do so, but we feel certain that it is not because the council or the cabinet, to do justice to the great west, its interests and its influences. With this frank evidence of the just estimation in which the press of Indiana and of nearly all the western and loyal south-western states hold a favorite and distinguised citizen of Pennsylvania, we hail the dawning of a new era in the intercourse and political and social reciprocities of the people of the great west and those of the north be read with interest :---

THE ATTACKS ON SECRETARY CAMERON.

It is high time that the baffled speculators who have been driven out of the War Department, ceased their calumny about Secretary Cameron's use of the Harrisburg Railroad. Every soldier who has been transported over that route, knows that Mr. Cameron has saved retary of War, and consider those who make them as materially helping their cause along Now, while we would screen no officer of the Government from the consequences of official misconduct, yet we must protest against such assaults as those referred to, unless they are supported by evidence of their truth. That they are not in the case referred to by the correspondent of the Tribune is sufficiently shown by the facts stated by him,—that instead o there being anything improper in the employ-ment of the Harrisburg Railroad by the War Department, it actually saved the Government $5,000 on each regiment forwarded to Washing ton,-which makes an aggregate saving of very large sum. We feel confident that, when all the truth is known, the other accusations, about which so much has been said against that Department, will turn out in the same way. The Springfield Journal, the home organ of President Lincoln, has referred heretofore to the malignant assaults made on the Secretary of War by disappointed speculators and secret sympathisers with treason, and again, in a late ssue, thus refers to a repetition of those assaults and falsehoods by a class of sensation journalists who could not become notorious in any other manner than by traducing the good they cannot emulate. From the spirit and tone of the Journal, one can judge of the confidence and cordiality existing between the President and the Secretary of War :

[Special to the St. Louis Republican. SYRACUSE, Mo., Oct. 13.

General Cameron, accompanied by Adjutant General Thomas, spent Saturday night at Jefferson City, and arrived in Tipton about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. After breakfasting in camp hey rode over to this place, six miles, on horse back, accompanied by Gen. Fremont and staff. Upon its arrival here the party called upon General McKinstry, and after spending half an hour with him, proceeded, in com-pany with him, his staff and several other gentlemen, to review General McKinstry's livision, which is encamped here. the close of the review, Gen. Cameron made a few well-timed remarks to the troops, expressing the highest gratification at the condition in which he found them, and the utmost confidence that in the hands of such men the honor and success of our country's arms was safe Loud cheers were given for Gen's. Cameron, Fremont, and Mckinstry; after which Gen. Cameron and his party, accompanied by Gen. Fremont and staff, went by rail to Tipton, where they reviewed Gen. Asboth's division, which was also in excellent condition. Then they went in a special train to St. Louis.

It is understood Gen. Cameron came here at the request of the President, to examine the condition of affairs in this department, and that he professes himself highly gratified with the condition of Fremont's army. Col. Merrill's cavalry have gone down the Osage, on a scouting expedition. Gen's. McKinstry and Stanly are to remain here, and not go east as reported.

Desertions occur every day, and if assurances could be conveyed to them that they would not be harshly dealt with, he thinks the greater part of the State Guard would lay down their arms and return to their homes.

They are tired of war, and are only prevented from deserting in large bodies by the assur-ances of their officers that if they are caught they will be hung as traitors, and by the stories of terrible Union outrages which are actively circulated among them. The most exaggerated accounts of attrocities committed by our army, the destruction of property, burning of towns and ravishment of women, are circulated and believed among them.

Eight or ten other citizens of this country who belonged to his company deserted along with him and are ready to give themselves up.
