HARRISBURG, PA. Tuesday Afternoon, October 29, 1861.

THE FIRST SNOW.—They had three inches of snow up in Warren last Thursday, whereupon the editor of the Mail went into extacies, and through the greasing process; and though he didn't individually take to the sled and mittens, he had a squint at a pair of young Cowans that did-and the six year old baby sitting at the window wishing that she too was a boy, so she "could ride down hill so slick!" The editor adds:

"Verily, who wouldn't be a jolly hearted, rol licking boy, with bounding spirits and a steel shod sled in the first snow? Great institution that boyhood! Guess we shall never leave it!'

GOT DRUNK AND LOST HIS MONEY. - A young man, whose name we forbear publishing out of respect to his family, a few days ago collected a sum of money for his employer in this city, and shortly afterwards met some friends who asked him take a "smile" In the goodness of his heart he "smiled" until the smile on his face became changed into a snore, and he lay with his head on a table in a bar-room until he was awakened by the landlord, who desired to shut up shop. The young man had forgot all about the money, but the next day his employer asked him about the bill, and he couldn't remember that he had collected it until his signature to a receipt was shown him. He says he is atter'y ignorant of how the money went, but no toubt it is kind friends who "smiled" with him could enlighten him. As he had always previously borne a good character his employer was unwilling to prosecute him, and agreed to let him off on his promise to refund the money.

How to GET A SMOKE UNDER DIFFICULTIES. The Experience of an Editor.—A good natured editorial friend of ours from the western part of a train on the Pennsylvania railroad, from Philadelphia to this city, a few mornings since. Previous to leaving his hotel—the "Continental"-in the Quaker city, he provided himself with a high flavored "Havanner" at the bar of that establishment at the rate of ten shillings a dozen, which, when he entered the car, he illuminated, and then looking up a comfortable seat he "came to anchor," and commenced puffing away with all the easy assurance of a New York alderman or the stoical indifference of a genuine follower of the Prophet. In the course of ten or fifteen minutes, while he was fast verging into a state of obliviousness to all surrounding objects, he was suddenly aroused from his reveries by the appearance of a jolly looking Irishman, who touching his hat, and producing the stump of a clay pipe black as a crow's wing, solicited the smallest possible "bit o' fire."

Our editorial friend at once complied with his request and handed him his "Havanner," which the Irishman took, and, placing its ignited end into the bowl of his pipe, he commenced puffing away for dear life. A minute or so was thus occupied, but the Murphy somehow or other inhaled no smoke, when suddenly, as it the fault lay in the segar, he very deliberately placed it in his mouth, and by a few vigorous whiffs, renewed the brightness of times, have made such abatement in prices, that the coal at its end, which he again applied to their goods come within reach of all. oct28-2t few vigorous whiffs, renewed the brightness of the bowl of his pipe, and recommenced puffing and blowing like a full grown grampus after a thunder storm. Still no smoke was inhaled; when, apparently struck with a sudden thought he removed the segar, and after looking into the bowl, turned around to our friend, and with a face like the frontespiece of a comic almanac, exclaimed:

"Look at thot, now; be me sowl, zur I belave there isn't as much tabacca in me pipe as would snaze a Ballyshannon muskata!"

And with this he offered to restore the borrowed segar; but, of course, our friend had no idea of again taking into his mouth that which had been glibed over by the whisky-scented saliva of the Irishman, and therefore informed him that he might retain it; whereupon Hibernia's face became radiant with smiles, and making a low bow, accompanied with a strongly accented "thank yez, zur," he issince to an adjoining seat, and the next mement he was busily engaged filling his antiquated thuden with our friend's highly flavored "Havanner" purchased at the "Continental" at the rate of only ten shillings a dozen.

SERIOUS ILLNESS OF A HARRISBURG VOLUNTEER. -We some time since announced the fact that Mr. Henry Chayne, a native of this city had been severely wounded while gallantly serving as a volunteer with one of the Ohio regiments in an action against the rebels in Western Virwhere he experienced every attention that the necessities of his case required, and his friends were led to believe that he would ultimately recover. A letter was received here yesterday morning, however, from the surgeon, announcng that Mr. Chayne had suffered a relapse, and was now lying in a very critical condition. The announcement in the Patriot and Union this morning that he was dead is altogether premature, no such information having been received by his relatives in this city. His brother, Augustus, left here yesterday for Bethany.
