The steamer Resolute came up to the Navy Yard last night. One of the batteries on the Maryland shore has been completed, and the range of some of our 32-pounder parrot guns was tried on the rebel steamer George Page yesterday. Three

"TAKING THE OATH."-Down in Wirt county. where the rebels have recently been perpetrating outrages, and where Dowland was lately murdered, taking the oath is a standing joke. When a secessionist can show that he has shot or shot at a Union man, or destroyed a Union man's property, his compatriots collect about and make him take the oath upon a peck of cards or a brick-bat. They think it a good thing, and we think it so too. There is something irresistable from the control of th thing irresistable funny about it, and we are only surprised that the rascals had wit enough to avail themselves of the fun it suggests. We are told by a federal officer who has just arrived from Burning Springs, that all the rebels in that country will walk up in a body and take the oath every day for a week if permitted to do so. They like it. They regard it as a license to do as they please. The oldest inhabitant has never seen the secessionist in Wirt county who wouldn't take the oath gladly.—Wheeliny (Va.)

HIS EXCELLENCY A. G. CURTIN, Governor of Penn-

Here with us, however, the provided by law, beg leave respectfully to report that we met for the purpose of our appointment which the members of each company are ena-bled to assign such portion of their pay as they may designate to their friends at home, and to appoint a trustee to receive and distribute the ame. The Adjutant General has undertaken treasure; and you will have, surely, more con-solation in reflecting that it has fallen in loving the company selecting him, to be by him dis-tributed among the beneficiaries. This plan has been matured by the department in conjunction with the sanitary commission, who have given it their sanction, and as the amount allotted will thus be transmitted without loss or expense to the soldier, and as it is presumed the trustees named will generally act without compensation, it appeared to us to present the safest, simplest and most effective mode which satest, simplest and most effective mode which had been suggested for accomplishing the object intended. We therefore approved and adopted it. In order to ascertain whether anything in addition was requisite to promote its practical working, we visited several divisions of the army near this city. The largest body of Pennsylvania volunteers collected together is in General McCall's command, to which we first proceeded General McCall was about but first proceeded. General McCall was absnet, but General Reynolds received us with marked kindness and courtesy, and entering heartily into the spirit of our mission, invited the several colonels in his command to his quarters, to receive our explanations and make any suggestions they thought proper in reference to it. They all approved the proposed plan and promised to give it their attention and co-operation. We called also in company with General Rey nolds upon a number of colonels in General McCall's division with like effect. We afterwards visited General F. J. Porter at his quarters, and communicated with the several Penna Colonels in his force with the same favorable result. There seemed, therefore, little further for us to do than to impress upon our citizen soldiers the importance of their attention to the and disgrace. subject, and to urge them to devote as large a portion of their pay to their families as they can spare from their own immediate wants. As it was not possible to meet them in person, we have prepared a circular addressed to them, of which we have the honor to enclose a copy herewith. When peace returns, and the proud flag of the Union floats in triumph every-where throughout the Republic, then our soldiers will come back to take the first rank in civil life, and receive the civic honors and distinctions all will be proud to bestow upor them. Every hardship suffered on the march or bivouac—every danger braved, and ever wound received in the field of combat, will b

Your life is now one of difficulty, and the snares of the tempter are set about you. The sutler's stall and the gambler's table invite you. Deprivation of home and its restraining infinences, leaves you weaker than before; and, excited, bewildered by the revel of a multitude of men, you may go away captive to the vices that will curse you after life, and unfit you for the honors that are in store for you. Against all this we endeavor to warn you. In the same spirit, too, the government and the laws seek to protect and preserve you—for in your safety and success we are all saved. in other countries the pay of the soldier is rule is the reverse, and the pay allowed the American soldier is so liberal, that it is a substitute for the earnings of an American citizen—i is commensurate with his rank and station in the Republic, and it is presumed he will apply it to the same purpose as if he had earned it at The law supposes, and prudence would dictate then that this pay should be sent home to your families, in order, it necessary, that it may be applied to their support and maintenance; or if it is not, then that it be laid away or invested till the owner retruns. If you have a mother who has nursed you, or a wife who has solaced you, they will be the fit custodians of your laps like theirs, than if it had gone to engorge the maws of the harpies who hover about your camps, to batten upon your vices. You will also be entitled, on your return from the service, each to one hundred and sixty acres of land out of the public domain. This, to those of you who are landless is intended by the government as a home for you and your children; and if you can now lay away a fund for the purpose of improving and stocking it as a farm, will put you in a position which the most favored people in the world cannot hope for elsewhere, and which, as a general rule, limits the desires of all men. Certainly no one can be more independent, or bet-ter fitted to perform the duties of a free man, under a Republican form of government, than one who owns the soil from which he derives a livelihood. We hope that the suggestion will day, but nothing was known there of affairs at not be unheeded by men whose race is proverbial for providence and thrift.

In conclusion, we have only to say to you that Pennsylvania not only expects but believes you will do your duty, as well in seconding the wishes of the State for your own individual well being and that of your families, as in defending the Constitution and Government of the Units the Constitution and Government of the Union, against the rebellious war now waging for its overthrow. She trusts you all feel that you overthrow. She trusts you all feel that you now stand face to face with the greatest ques tion which has ever arisen in the world—the question of the ability of man for self-government If you cannot maintain your present Government, free as it is from every charge of tyranny and oppression, you cannot maintain any under the republican form, and we must go back to despotism again, men worthy of our ancestors and the inheritance they left us, then we will stand foremost among the nations of the earth, and achieve for ourselves a destiny still more wonderful than our past history seemed to indicate. The proud fabric reared by our Revolutionary fathers, being proof against the shock of this great rebel-lion—strengthened and cemented by the blood of their children—will then remain impregnable for ages, and unborn millions will rejoice in the enjoyment of the highest earthly blessing-CIVIL LIBERTY. EDGAR COWAN, THOS. E. FRANKLIN, E. C. HUMES.

Washington, Nov. 1, 1861. Sketch of Commodore Samuel F, by the Austrian Cabinet. Dupont.

Commodore Samuel F. Dupont, the com mander of the naval forces of the great expe dition, is a native of the State of New Jersey, but received his appointment into the Navy from the State of Delaware, of which he is a citizen. An original entry into the service of his country was on the 19th of December, 1845; he has been, therefore, nearly forty-six years in the service, and his forty-sixth anniversary may bring him more glory and raise him higher in tha estimation of the people, both at home and abroad, than all the previous ones. So, if the present expedition is successful, there cannot be present expectation is successful, there cannot be too much said in praise of those having command. Up to the present time Commodore Dupont has spent nearly twenty-two years on sea, eight and a half years in active duty on shore, and the balance of his time has been unemployed. His present commission bears date September 14, 1855. He was last at sea in May, 1859, and since that time he has been commendant of the Navy Yard at Philadelphia, where his kindness of manner, together with his strict discipline, won for him many friends.

Commodore Dupoint is a man a little past what is usually termed the prime of life, alwhat is usually termed the prime of me, arthough possessed of all the vigor, bodily strength and ambition that usually characterizes younger men, and those qualities, joined to his experience, pronounce him to be the man we need. In his personal appearance the Commodore is a person that would at once attract attention, having all the easy grace of a finished gentleman together with a commanding look gentleman together with a commanding look that betokens perseverance and a determination to successfully carry out any undertaking that he may be engaged in. He is just the man to command respect and to deserve it.—

There is no doubt but that he will guide the available with safety to its destination, and expedition with safety to its destination, and return crowned with success
