PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL. [FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS]

[FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS]

MAY 19, 1880,—Eller S., 28. 28, stugle, never was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rheumatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks and subsequent y from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last Satur day, while engaged in bound well since then till last Satur day, while engaged in bound cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her beack, felt cold, hot had no decided chill. Two dats later her antibetions with the study of the knee joints and of the hands. She has now daily pain in her shoulders, and her knurkles are very jander, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. Thir, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumais fewer. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various os symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumathem. Im an propylemia. Dr. Awenarius, of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms, having derived great booedt from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specifies; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

MAY 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of scute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three gratos every two houra (intermiting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now nearly all of their natural sias.—Thus far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a littly while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the same medicine on Sunday last; sha has long been suffering from c bronic rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrist; and kunckles were much swollen and teese. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain does every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THREE DAYS LATER!!

THREE DAYS LATER!!

May 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treates with propylamine, the first of those to which I called your attention at our last citotic. She is at il very comfortable, and is now t king three grains thric; daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory results. The second cree to which your attention was called at our last icc ure, has also continued to do well. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satfactory, I think, as good jurymen, we snall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamine.

He is a seaman, sat. 28, who was admitted a few days sgo. Has had ocasional rheumatic pams, but not so as t keep his bed, until cight days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swollen, tense and tender. His tongue is forred; his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His puise is full and strong, and about 90.—He has now used propylamike for twenty-four hours. This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fever and the profuse aweating, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism. I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it, than which there could not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, avoiding the use of all other medicines, even anolynes, that there may be no misgivings as to which was the efficient remedy. You shall see the case of a future clinic.

THE RESULT.

A FAVORABLE VERDICT.

June 9, 1880.—The next of our convalescents is the case of scute rheumatism before you at our clipic of May 26th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth or our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two hours for four days, the patient has got along very nucly, and is now able to valk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to s y that I have neves seen as severe a case of scute rheumatism so soon restored to health as this man has been, and without being prepared to decide positive by as to the value of the remedy we have used. I see bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chioride of Propylamine, the patients have regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a condensed extract, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reorter. It is the report after a fair trial by the best medcal authority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous, certificates from astonished doctors and rejoicing patients.
