

Daily Telegraph

HARRISBURG, PA.

Friday Afternoon, November 15, 1861.

SMOKERS would do well to pay a visit to BANNYART'S Drug Store and examine a new stock of cigars and smoking tobacco.

INDIAN VOLUNTEERS.—A detachment of about a dozen recruits from the Cattaraugus tribe of Indians, located in the Western part of New York State, arrived here this morning, to join one of the volunteer companies at camp Curtin.

THE FIRST SNOW.—This morning was ushered in with a cold drizzling rain mixed with quite a brisk fall of snow, the first of the season, rendering anthracite fires, shawls, overcoats and "rubbies" being desirable companions.

GRAND CIRCULAR HUNT.—A grand circular hunt is advertised to come off at Cold Spring, Lebanon county, on Tuesday, the 26th inst., and continue for two days or longer, if necessary. The hunters will start from Haak's Cold Spring Hotel, and make that point the centre of their field of operations. Bears, deer, pheasants and other wild game are said to be unusually plenty this fall in that region of country, so that there is every prospect that those engaging in the hunt will not only enjoy a high old time generally, but will be repaid for their tramp by a plentiful booty of the "spoils" and "trophies" of the expedition.

THE LECTURE THIS EVENING.—Our readers should not neglect to attend the free lecture to be given at the Court House this evening by Dr. A. Crane, professor of Phrenology and Physiology. The subject of the lecture is one that interests every person, and in the hands of the distinguished Professor will be treated in that plain, lucid manner that all may understand, and derive much valuable information. The Doctor has traveled extensively through Europe, and the United States, and has everywhere won the highest eulogiums from the medical faculty as well as the press for his skill in the treatment of diseases. A prominent feature of the lecture this evening will be the examination and practical illustrations of persons selected from the audience by a committee, in which the anatomy, character, construction, &c., will be perfectly described.

GOOD FOR THE FORTY-SIXTH REGIMENT AND THE VERBEKE RIFLES PARTICULARLY.—Capt. Geo. A. Brooks of the Verbeke Rifles of this city and neighborhood, arrived here last night on special military service. The captain is looking remarkable well, and represents the "Rifles" as being in an excellent condition—both as regards health and fighting trim. The captain brought with him the sum of seventeen hundred dollars, being the amount forwarded by the soldiers of his company for their pay to their wives and families in this city and vicinity. The money has been deposited with the County Commissioners, and will be duly handed over to those entitled to receive it. Capt. Brooks informs us that since the last "pay day" the men of the regiment to which he is attached—Kripe's gallant Forty-sixth—have sent home to their families the sum of eighteen thousand seven hundred dollars. Such action as this speaks volumes for the honor and nobleness of heart of our gallant volunteers.

GEN. ANDERSON'S BODY GUARD.—We have heretofore noticed the fact that a mounted body guard is now being formed for Gen. Anderson, the hero of Fort Sumter. The requisition for the corps was made by the Secretary of War on Gov. Curtin, at the request of Gen. Anderson. The corps comprises one hundred picked men. Every one of them was selected with special reference to his qualifications, and all are men of intelligence and respectability. They are now at Carlisle Barracks perfecting themselves in drill. They are being fitted out in a very superior manner. Their equipments and horses are far above the average in point of excellence. Their uniforms were made by Geo. C. Colliday, of Philadelphia. The cloth is the best that can be made, the color dark blue, and each garment cut to measure. The corps will be a very fine one. Failing to elect their officers, the company requested Gen. Anderson to decide for them, a request that, from feelings of delicacy, he thought proper to decline. The "Guard" will leave Carlisle in a few days, passing through this city en route for Kentucky, when we venture to say that Gen. Anderson will have as fine a body guard as any general in the army. In the whole hundred men there is not one who would fail to sacrifice his life to preserve that of his chieftain.

DIPHTHERIA.—We learn from the West Chester papers that this disease has made its appearance in different parts of that county, and in some localities proves quite fatal. In West Vincent, the families of George Emery and Aaron Hartman have each lost an interesting child. The family of Mr. Lewis Phillips, of East Nantmeal township, has been sadly afflicted within the last few days. That dread disease, Diphtheria, has been in his family, and of four interesting little children, three have been laid in the grave. It died October 26th, Alfred, October 30th, and Owen, November 1st. Horace is the only survivor. Several other families in the same neighborhood have been afflicted with the same disease, but the editor of the Record understands no other cases have proved fatal or are likely to do so. This is the season when parents should be unusually prompt in attending to the first symptoms of throat or chest diseases in children. The old maxim which is fundamental in business affairs, holds equally true in the matter of health and life—Do not put off till tomorrow that which should be done to-day.

THE BEST flavoured Gum Drops can be had at BANNYART'S Drug Store.

See Professor Wood's advertisement in another column.

SHERIFF SALES.—The following properties were disposed of at Sheriff sale yesterday afternoon at the court house in this city: A certain tract of land, situated in Washington township, Dauphin county, Pa., containing thirteen acres, more or less, thereon erected two houses—one frame weather-boarded and one frame and log house—a bank barn and a log barn, a tan yard and bark mill running by water, and a fine young orchard, and a never falling spring of water, &c., the property of David Matter. Sold for $2,310 to Jacob Rife.

THE GREAT GALE ON THE CHEESAPEAKE.—We have already noticed the fact that a number of canal boats had been wrecked on the Chesapeake bay, during the great storm of last Saturday a week. We have since learned that several residents of this city were on board the canal boats at the time of the disaster, and narrowly escaped with their lives. Capt. Grafius, of Montoursville, who was an eye-witness of the scene, furnishes the Lycoming Gazette with the following interesting narrative, showing that those who follow the "raging canal" sometimes experience equally as much danger as those "who go down to the sea in ships." The captain says: On Friday afternoon, Nov. 1st, the steamboat Lancaster, Capt. Tomlinson, with a convoy of nineteen canal boats, left the wharf at Havre-de-Grace, at about five o'clock. The wind was then brisk, but no apprehensions of danger existed. As night came on the gale increased in violence, and by ten o'clock a scene presented itself which baffles all description. The waves were tossing the boats about in all directions, and ever and anon the shouts of the boatmen announced that their craft had broken its fastenings and was at the mercy of the waves. "The trumpet's voice with agonizing cries" vied with the roar of the wind; the calls for assistance, the smashing of timber, the imprecations, prayers and orders, all combined to make night hideous and the place a bedlam. By twelve o'clock, p. m., every boat except four had become detached from the steamer, and one after another were becoming wrecks. As the crew of each found their vessels giving way, they sought safety by escaping to another, and the same process again repeated until thirty-three ship-wrecked fugitives had collected on the boat George W. Watson, Capt. Jacob Wilson, of Middletown. Capt. Wilson was loaded with lumber, but as the crews of other boats reached his in safety, he gradually cast overboard his less precious freight to provide for the living one now sent to him by adverse fortune.

With daylight came hope but not relief. The wind had yet abated none of its fury, and the whole of Saturday was passed without food and in a most terrible state of apprehension on board the boat. Beside the thirty-three referred to as having taken rendezvous with Captain Wilson, a few others were yet upon their own vessels, enduring the dangers alone. One man, David Break, on the boat C. E. Decker, from Liverpool, is believed to have become insane from the excitement about him, and perished while in that condition. He refused to leave his boat, fought the waves with his hands, and at length sank exhausted on the platform of his boat, from which he was soon washed overboard. At about five o'clock on Saturday afternoon, the storm having somewhat abated, with much danger and difficulty the whole party on Captain Wilson's boat was safely landed at North Point, Baltimore county, Md., where they were received and most hospitably entertained and provided for by Mr. Ferdinand Rother, a worthy farmer of that place. Mr. Rother and his estimable lady, although at minor expense, were generous in their refusal to receive compensation, which was tendered him, and may his only return, the gratitude and prayers for his welfare and happiness, of those who received his hospitality, prove his best reward. Among the boats lost were the Gov. A. G. Curtin and the Mary W. Chapman, both of Montoursville—the former belonging to Mr. Theo. Brass, and the latter to Mr. Chas. L. Chapman, both worthy and industrious men.

SOUTH CAROLINA.—The thunder of Union artillery has awoken the guilty fears of South Carolina's pariahs. Sons. Already they cry for help with minute guns, and retribution with its iron hand is marching fast upon Charleston, the Sodum of modern times; and the news generally tell us that we may soon expect stirring times in war, as may be seen every day in dry goods at U. & B. & C. corner of Front and Market streets. nov. 14.

SANFORD'S CHALLENGE HEATERS.—To set in brick, portable or as Fireplace Heaters. The most powerful Heaters known for warming Dwellings, Churches, Schools, &c. Send to LYMAN GILBERT, agent at Harrisburg, for a full description and an unparalleled mass of testimony. The Cosmo-polite parlor coal stove with radiating mantle and gas burning attachment, introduced one year ago, already ranks as the leading stove for parlors, sitting rooms and all places where a soft pleasant heat is desired; together with a large assortment of other parlor and cooking stoves of the best patterns to be had at the store and tinware establishment of LYMAN GILBERT, Market street. tf.
