FUOT MASHED.—A brakesman employed on a freight train on the Lebanon Valley Railroad, had one of his feet mashed yesterday, at Hummelstown, while shifting cars. We did not learn his name.

THE MARKET this morning was abundantly supplied with the good things of life, which were generally disposed of at reasonable rates, to the great satisfaction of those with consumptive purses.

THE WOMEN OF Nantucket, (says a Massachusetts paper) are brimful of patriotism, which is showing itself in divers ways. They have knit up all the yarn, and are now making pungent appeals to the lords of the isle for the money to purchase more. They propose to keep the knitting-needle going, as long as the men will furnish yarn.

OLD BOOKS AND PAPERS .--- We would call atanother column. Many of our citizens must have collections hid away in garrets and byeplaces, of no use to them, and generally looked upon as rubbish. They now have an opportunity to sell such accumulations for a high price in cash.

THANKSGIVING DAY .- The following notice has been issued by the Catholic Bishop of the Dioc se of Western Pennsylvania :

"Thursday, November 28th, having been appointed by the Governor of this State as a day of Thanksgiving, the Rt. Rev. Bishop directs that on that day Mass will be celebrated in all the churches of the Diocese, at the usual hour for late Mass on Sundays. The faithful should be exhorted to attend, and where it is possible, High Mass should be celebrated."

THEIR WHEREABOUTS.-General Negley's Pa. Brigade are comfortably encamped in a very pleasant portion of Kentucky, with plenty of Union men around. Their encampment is about fifty miles south of Louisville, and there are near this point between twenty and thirty thousand troops. The men are healthy well satisfied, and are daily improving in their drill. Their friends in addressing their letters should direct to "Nolan Post Office, Hardin county,

The deceased had been in Indiana during the early part of the day, and became intoxicated, and attempted to walk between the rails to his home, some three miles down the road. As the engineer neared the station he blew the whistle and looked back to get the signal from the conductor if he had passengers for the station, and on turning around he discovered the man within about thirty rods lying on the track. He immediately whistled down breaks and reversed the engine, but it was too late-the train passed over the unfortunate man, crushing him badly; his bowels and liver being torn out and strewn along the road, and the body literally cut in two.

ABOUT BONNETS .--- We are not in the habit of commenting, favorably or unfavorably, upon ladies' fashions. We are prone to allow them to select and wear what they please, and we do the same. We may, however, speak of the fall style of bonnets, and be allowed to say that we think them very pretty. The form varies but little from that worn during the summer. It is somewhat more elevated over the forehead, and fits closer to the cheeks. The materials used are chiefly velvets-black and blue being the prevailing colors. A new shade-blue azulines the latest novelty, and it certainly is the most beautiful tint extent. Black and white

In our anxiety to save our country, we cannot forget those husbands, brothers, fathers and sons who have gone, battle-armed and brave, to the rescue! Ingrate and despisable shall we be if we forget them, or fail to furnish them with suitable and useful tokens of our remembrance. The camp is not home-the weary march is not an idle stroll-war is not peace. While we luxuriate in the soothing warmth of cheerful firesides, surrounded by all the charms of domestic quiet and happiness, the soldier, far away from home, presses on in the darkness to grapple with the foe, wearily paces the round of picket duty. or lays him down, perhaps, to a broken slumber upon the drenched ground, worn with fatigue and chilled with frost. How truly cheerless his condition at the best-but how much more des-
