My heart is swelled with thankfulness.

Yet grief my voice makes thick,

Could weep o'er memories of the past : And yet, a joy it brings at last, This school-house on the creek.

And leave you standing lonely so, You school-house on the creak ?

Yet once more hear me spee

We lately published a long poem, writtin in Pennsylvania German, which, we are informed was from the pen of Rev. Mr. Harbaugh, a dis tinguished clergyman of the Lutheran Church now residing at Lebanon, Pa. A correspondent of the Bulletin, who says the poem "produced s wonderful excitement among those who wer so fortunate as to comprehend the meaning o it in the original," sends us the following excellent translation :

(From the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.) THE OLD SCHOOL-HOUSE ON THE CREEK

(Das Alt Schulhaus on der Kriek.)

A free translation from the Pennsylvania Dutch To-day it is just twenty years Since I sought northern lands. Now, living still, I come to seek The quaint old school-house on the creek,

Near Arty's house that stands. In hundred houses I have been,

Of marble, stone or brick, Yet of those mansions grand and tall, I'd any day forget them all, For the school house on the creek.

He who forsakes the good of home, In peace I'd let him go : Still, let me say, ere he sets forth, It is all humbug in the North, As he full soon will know.

To every corner I have been, And traveled, well or sick, But ne'er in any spot have found Such joy as caused my heart to bound, In the school house on the creek.

Sweet home-joys here I always had ; Now as I stand and gaze, Old scenes before my mem'ry wave, Old forms arise as from the grave-The ghosts of vanished days.

The stream plays by just as of old, When I too blythely played, And where yon elder shades the stream, The little fish still gladly gleam ; Time yet no change has made.

Still stands the white-oak by the door, And ahades the old roof tree, The old grape-vine, too, still is green, And look ! the swallow's nest yet green ! A strange thing seems to me.

Over the fields the swallows play Their game of "first is best;" From gable end so quaint and old, A house of straw and dirt behold ! That is a swallow's nest !

There lie the young birds very snill, In sleep all scattered round ; Wait till some worms the parent brings, Then far their shrilly twitt ring rings, Till distance hears the sound

Yes! all the scene is as it was, When here a boy I ranged. Yet dearer things no more are here, And all must change and disappear I too, myself, have changed.

Like Ossian, by his desolate hall, I watch the clouds flit by, And half in joy—in sorrow half, My tears come trickling, yet I laugh, Your hearts can tell me why.

WASHINGTON. FROM Letter from Col. Lee, a Prisoner at Richmond.

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS. ------

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19. A letter has been received by Capt. Charles Candy, Assistant Adjutant General to Lander's brigade from Col. Lee of the 20th Massachusetts regiment now a prisoner at Richmond. Col. Lee states that he and the other imprisoned officers have been very kindly treated, and makes enquiries as to the disposition made of the enemy captured at Ball's Bluff. The rebels say that fewer of the Massachusetts officers would have been killed had they not been too proud to surrender.

John R. Myrick has been appointed Second Lieutenant in the Third artillery, by direction of the Government.

The oath not to bear arms against the United States has been administered to twenty-nine rebel prisoners at the old capitol; another has signified his desire to take the oath of allegiance. These proceedings are preliminary to their release for an equal number who have been or may be released by the rebel authorities.

I used to go to this old school. When but an urchin small There was the master on his stool, There was his switch, and there his rule,

The desks, the clothes rings on the wall, The shool room's ample bound, And on this side the girls sat, The boys, (not half so coy,) on that, See how they peep around. The master's eye is on them now, They'd better have a care ; The chap who writes the billets-doux, And he whose tricks the boys amuse, And you lad laughing there !

For big and little, one and all, Are neath one equal rule, Which is most just, for who doth break That canon, must a licking take, Or get turned out of school.

Inside, around the cosy stove, Sits all the little chaps, They study very hard, you see, For who shall miss his A B C, His ears shall meet hard raps.

Uneasy are the benches high, Which keep the feet from floor. One's back feels often strained and sick, In that old school-house on the creek, And just about right sore.

Poor little souls, ah ! there they sit ; Just think ! how ill at case ! It is no wonder, I declare ! They learn so little, perched up there, On forms so high as these

With all the drawbacks, anyhow, It was a first-rate school, For pedagogue in vain you'd look Like ours-he's schyphered through the book, And never skipped a rule.

Cross was he ; yes! I can't deny, He flogged us all around : Yet he most equal rules observed, Who felt the birch, the birch deserved Completely !--I'll be bound.

At dinner time, when school was out, We felt "so good" just then, And some the flying ball did chase, While some amused them in the race, And some played soldier men.

The big girls swept the school-room out, The boys hung round the spot, Prefending but to help about, But soon the master drove them out, The rules allowed it not.

The girls did "Copenhagen" play, The girls did "Copennagen party, On yonder sod, so green, But when the big girls crossed the ring, Why then (it was a curious thing), The big boys, too, "pitched in."

Big Both did always big girls ing, And small ones always miss, How swiftly ran they up and down, And this you may depend upon ! Who won-did carnest kins. . to in W

STILL LATER,

A letter from Port Royal dated the 16th. states Gen. Sherman on the 14th, sent one of his aids, Lieut. Wagner, under a flag of truce to carry his proclamation to the people of South Carolina. Lieut. Wagner was accompanied by Dr. Bacon of the Sixth Connecticut regiment. They proceeded within two miles of Gardner's corner place, opposite Port Royal ferry, which was said to be occupied by rebel troops and of the campanies was struck by a spent ball, there had an interview with the rebel officers which disabled him from walking. The mul-work of the blacks, and entirely exculpated our troops from any conplicity with them. On their return they met a squad of rebel cavalry, who gave them fodder for their horses.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

CAPE BACE, Nov. 19. The steamer United Kingdom, from Glasgow on the 9th inst for New York, has arrived. The news is unimportant.

The steamer Breman has arrived out.

The convention regarding the Mexican expedition does not fix the number of ships or troops to be used or stipulate for march to Mexico.

ANOTHER SLAVER CAPTURED.

GREEN POINT, Nov. 19.

"In fairness to our American friends we ought to admit that no more tremendous issues were ever submitted to the dread arbitrament of war than these which are now submitted to it upon the American continent. 1 do not care whether we look at it from the northern or from the southern point of view. Take the mere ques-tion of what is called the right of secession. I know of no government which has ever existed in the world which could possibly have admitted the right of secession from its own allegiance. There is a curious animal in Locn Fyne, which have sometimes dragged up from the bottom of the sea, and which performs the most extraordinary and unaccountable acts of suicide and self-destruction. It is a peculiar kind of starfish, which, when brought up from the bottom remains of one of the most beautiful forms in nature but a thousand wriggling fragments.-Such undoubtedly would have been the fate of the American Union, if its Government had ad-

A FIGHTING NEGRO.-A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, describing the battle of Belmont, says :

Mont, says: "During the thickest of the fight the body servant of Gen. McClernard, a mulatto named William Stains, of Decatur, exhibited conspicuous courage. He was close by the General, during the whole engagement, cheering the soldiers and swearing that he would shoot the first man that showed the white weather. Many of us laughed heartily at the fighting darkey, while the bullets flew like hail about us.

"In the course of the fight, a captain of one there had an interview with the rebel officers which disable nim from walking. The mul-atto boy, who was mounted, rode up to him and should out, 'Captain, if you can fight any longer for the old Stars and Stripes take my the property of the citizens of Beaufort were the and should dhow men.' He then dismounted and helped the wounded officer into his saddle. When he was walking away, a rebel dragoon rush forward at the officer to take him prisoner. The darkey drew his revolver and put a ball through the rebel's head, scattering his brains all over the horse's neck.

"I relate these little circumstances so that merit may be justly dealt with, even if the hero is a 'nigger' as some people would call this brave fellow."

MAKING THE SOUTH PAY THEIR DEBTS. -- Pro-vost Judge Freese, of Alexandria, publishes a etter in the Newark Advertiser, in which he says if the government will allow him to follow out his course, he will undertake to collect one-third of the $150,000,000 due from the south without doing injustice to a single individual.
