SHORT DAYS .- The days are getting intensely short at each end-about as short as they make them in this latitude, we think, without consulting the almanac. It is true the nights are longer, and one can make the rounds of al loafing places and still have a long time to spend at home before bed time; but those who have a given amount of labor to perform find it difficult to do so without the use of artificial light. The breakfast alarm breaks our morning nap just as the red tints of the rising sun appear in the eastern horizon, and yet we are surprised to find before the morning meal is concluded that the town clock has told the hour of eight. Stopping on the way to your business to chat with a few friends on the current events of the day, you find the minute hand has passed she cyphers marked twelve, and nine o'clock is upon youin fact you scarcely get a fair and regular built start before the dinner gongs sound. The afternoon runs away in the same manner, especially when the day is cloudy, and you are compelled to light the gas at 4 o'clock. Short days, although sometimes inconvenient, are not without their benefits, if for nothing else than the contrast they afford to the long summer days, which commence at four in the morning and end when it is almost bed time.

-----PROF. M'COY'S ORATION .- We have before alluded to the fact that at the earnest request of a large number of our citizens, Prof. M'Coy, of Massachusetts, had kindly consented to deliver his great oration on the "London Times on the rebellion and the war for the Constitution," at such place in this city as would best accommodate the large audience that its delivery would naturally attract. The arrangements have since been finally completed, and the oration will positively be delivered in the House of Representatives, at the Capitol, on Saturday evening, the 14th inst-the anniversary of Washington's death. His Excellency Gov. Curtin will preside, assisted by the Heads of Department. The Governor's Stuff, and the field officers of regiments in and about the city will also be present on the occasion. Our readers will remember that this is the celebrated oration delivered before President Lincoln and his Cabinet on the National Fast Day, and is pronounced one of the most brilliant and powerful productions ever listened to in this country. In order to bear the expenses that will be incurred in making the necessary arrangements to have the lecture delivered here, it is found necessary to charge an admission fee of fifteen pal hotels and book stores some time to-mor-

TO THE MEMORY OF EMMA C. WILT .---

To the dark grave, where silence reigns, And death his shadowy host detains; Of life bereft and quenched its fires, Emma in her bloom retires.

Environ'd in that dark abode. The bosom cold with life that glow'd; No more we trace its wonted charms, No more the gentle spirit warms.

Blest form, tho' mouldering in the dust, This is not all thy dream we trust; To other worlds thy active mind, Some new perfection goes to find.

From height to height, advancing still, To Him that doth creation fill; The power that measured out our span, And planted reason first in man.

In her whose memory ne'er shall fade. Each milder virtue was displayed ; The breast of sentiments refined, And beauties native to the mind

To make her image all complete. How many of her sex must meet ; Virtues in them but thinly sown. In her conjoined, were all her own.

She, doomed to shine in heaven's page, A model to the coming age; Was graced with all that could impart, Affection to the coldest heart.

Removed from hence, so far away, What shall your pensive poet say; By friendship led and grief sincere, He drops his pen, and sheds a tear.
