DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE.—When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shate or vireas of discovery determin from applying to those who, from education and respectability can alone befricud him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease, make their appearance, affecting the head, throat, nose, sikin; conprogressing on with frightful rapidity, till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings by seuding him to "that bourne from whence so traveler returns." It is a melancholy fact that thousands fall victims to this terrible disease, owing to the unskiththess of ignorant pretenders, who, by the use of that deadly rotzon, mercury, ruit the constitution and make the residue of life miserable.

Where the wild winds moan, and mad waves Where the storm-birds shrick and sea-gulls cry As they dip the wave or sail on high

Where the shadows cool at evening fall Gleams in the sun like a flame of fire

Where the tall grass waves to the zephyr free Like the bright breast of a fairle sea And the wild bird trills its mournful lay O'er the graves of lov'd ones pass'd away, I'd fondly dream'd that my lowly tomb Should be deck'd with flowers of sweet perfum I'd cherish'd the hope that a sister dear Should beddew my grave with affection's tear

But grim death came in this far-off land And touch'd my heart with his with'ring hand He laid me low, where the raging surge Shall chant me a mournful funer'l dirge, And the zephyrs sweet from a sunny zone Be the only mourners that o'er me moan.

But hark! soft whisperings greet mine ear; They tell of the friends I hold so dear, And say, oh! soldier mourn not to die Far from the land where thy kindred lie. T is sweeter thus with the brave to fall Than to expire in a princely hall; Nobler to die on this sea-wash'd strand For liberty and thy native land, Than in thy cot where the soft winds sweep

Through the rose-wreathed door so fresh and sweet; . And the first in the life They southe my soul as lays from the lyre Would soothe the brave soul and whisper pead

They woo my thoughts from the kirk-yard green, From my cherished hope and sunny dream, They caim my troubled and bleeding breast, And I, with the brave, can sweetly rest

HARRISBURG, Dec. 13, 1861.

From the Eastern Shore of Virginia. Captain Fowler, of the Sixth Michigan regiment, came up last night from the Eastern Shore of Virginia, bringing with him as a pris-oner, Col. B. T. Gunter, of Accomac county. Col. G. was Commonwealth's Attorney of Accomac, and a Colonel of militia. Some time since he went to Richmond, and recently ran the blockade. As he was very defiant, and seemed disposed to excite new trouble in the county, Gen. Lockwood thought it expedient to send him to Gen. Dix. He has been sent to Fort McHenry. Four or five others had recently returned from Richmond, and had been retained in custody by Gen. Lockwood. Affairs remained quiet in both Accomac and Northampton counties. All the arms in the possession of the military had been not attempt any new demonstration. The Second Delaware Regiment and Purnell's Maryland Legion were still stationed near Eastville Nim's Boston Battery was on its return, and LADIES' HEALTH .- In an article in preserving health in Godey's Lady's Book, says there are two faults characteristic of American women one to neglect to exercise and the other a too thin style of dress in winter. Every female, who can possibly do it, ought to walk in the open air from one to two hours every day. If suitable clothing was worn, and especially if the feet were properly protected, a daily walk, even in winter, would be more conducive to health and loveliness than all the panaceas ever con-cocted, or all the drugs prescribed by the faculty. It would give elasticity to the step, bloom to the cheek, brilliancy to the eye, gay spirits, for the Canadian military, and a strong reinbrightness of intellect, sound slumvers, every forcement of field artillery will be dispatched olessing, in short, that vigorous physical health bestows, and of which, alas, so many American women practically know nothing. Vitality would be strong and high, the definition of which in most cases is the beginning of con sumption. The lungs, too, would have needful play, for no one can go out, on a bracing winter morning, without inflating the lungs fully; and you would escape pulmonary complaints, ladies, if you would live to a good old age, if you would enjoy life while living, if you would add to your daily exercise in the open air. Let nothing ing up of the blockade of the southern ports at keep you in doors but inclement weather; but be always clothed to defy cold and wet, especially to your feet.

The same writer also gives these reasons why ladies should read newspapers: It is a great mistake in female education to keep a young lady's time and attention devoted to only the fashionable literature of the day. If you would qualify her for conversation, you must give her mething to talk about—give her education with the actual world and its transpiring events. Urge her to read the newspapers and become tamiliar with the present character and improvement of our race. History is or some import ince; but the past world is dead, and we have nothing to do with it. Our thoughts and our concerns should be for the present world, to know what it is, and improve the condition of it. Let her have an intelligent opinion, and be able to sustain an intelligent conversation concerning the mental, moral political and religious improvement of our times. Let the gilied annuals and poems on the centre-table be kept a part of the time covered with weekly
