neral took place on Tuesday. It is supposed that the unfortunate man fell asleep, the train running very slowly, slipped from the bumper, probably so stunning himself that although he fell clear of his own train, he could only struggle into the track of the one following. The trains were, as we have said, running slowly, and the two were close together, so that the flagman on the rear of Wagner's train was busy watching for and showing his light to the following engineer ; otherwise by the light of his lantern he might have discovered the insensible man on the track and saved him from destruction. Mr. Wagner was a young man of steady habits, and leaves a family-a wite and several small children.

PROF. M'COY'S ORATION .--- Prof. M'Coy delivered his celebrated oration." On the London Times and the American Rebellion," in the Hall of the House of Representatives at the capitol, before his excellency, Gov. Curtin, a number of military field and staff officers, and a large number of our citizens, including many ladies, last Saturday evening. Among the audience we recognized the venerable form of ex-Governor Porter, who, although very feeble, from recent severe illness, still desired, by his presence, on this occasion, to manifest his love and loyality to the Union. He seemed very much interested in the oration, joined heartily in the applause, and at its terination, was among the first to congratulate the orator on his success. The band attached to Col. Wm. Murray's Regiment was present, and entertained the audience with a number of lively and spirited airs suitable to the occasion.

But we shall not want to report the oration; nor yet to describe it in adjectives. It was simply grand. Patriotism flashed in every sentence from first to last, and the music of the Union rang through every paragraph. It was received throughout with great applause, and marked satisfaction by the brilliant audience. All were delighted and moved to a feeling that made true, genuine, patriotic love for the Union and the Constitution tingle through every nerve. At the close of the oration the band played the national airs.

Several of our leading and most influential citizens have intimated that the oration should be repeated before the orator leaves the city; many who heard it would rejoice at the opportunity to hear it again, and we apprehend the only great trouble would be to keep those away in order to give others a chance to hear. Let our citizens take this into consideration and act promptly in the matter. If possible by all means let us have it over. This sort of medicine our people can take in large and frequent dozes, the more and the oftener, the better.
