ELIXIR PROPYLAMINE, THE NEW REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM. A NEW REMEDY, FOR ACUTE RHEUMATISM, CHRONIC RHEUMATISM, RHEUMATISM OF THE JOINTS, HOW STUBBORN, HOW LONG STANDING, WILL CONQUER IT, WILL CURE IT.

DOCTORS READ, DOCTORS EXAMINE, DOCTORS TRY IT. THE BEST TESTIMONY. BEST MEDICAL AUTHORITY. DOCTORS KNOW IT, PATIENTS BELIEVE IT, TRIED AND TRUE.

PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL. [FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.] MAY 19, 1860.—Elias S., 28, single, never was very strong. Two years ago he had an attack of acute rheumatism, from which he was confined to bed for two weeks and subsequently from a relapse for four months. She has been well since then till last Saturday, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, feet cold, and on Sunday the 11th her back ached, her ankles began to swell, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. She has now dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender, and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well recognized typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean Propylamine. Dr. Avenarius, of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms, having derived great benefit from its use in 200 cases which came under his observation, and in his secondary testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are recommended so highly, but we will give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER I. MAY 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She is very comfortable, and in doses of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night). The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better, than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her condition. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now nearly all of them restored to their normal size. Thus far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but gentlemen, we must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from a chronic rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knuckles were much swollen and tender. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grains every two hours, and a few days will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THREE DAYS LATER I. MAY 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine, the first of those to which I called your attention at our last meeting. She is very comfortable, and is now taking three grains three times daily. In this case it has been followed by very satisfactory results. The second case to which your attention was called at our last meeting, and which also continued to do well. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satisfactory, I think, as good judges, we may justly render our verdict in favor of acute rheumatism.

He is a man, aged 35, who was admitted a few days ago. He has occasional rheumatic pains, but not so to keep his bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in his right hip, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swollen, tense and tender. His tongue is furrowed; his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 80. He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours. This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism, and he is now confined to bed, and this exposure is followed by a fever of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fever and the profuse sweating, so general in acute rheumatism. I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy, which I have already had a fair opportunity of testing. We are, therefore, prototyping the use of all other medicines, even if they are not so efficacious as the propylamine, as to which we are the efficient remedy. You shall see the case of a future clinic.

THE RESULT. A FAVORABLE VERDICT. JUNE 9, 1860.—The next of our observations is the case of acute rheumatism before you at our clinic of May 26th, which I then called a typical case, which was remarkable was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The patient had got along very slowly, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that we have never seen a severer case of acute rheumatism recover so rapidly to health as this man has been, and without being prepared to decide positively as to the value of the remedy we have used. I feel bound to state in the cases in which we have tried the Chloride of Propylamine, the patients have gained all their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a condensed extract, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter. It is the report after a fair trial by the best medical authority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous certificates from astonished doctors and rejoicing patients.

A SPEEDY CURE. AN EFFECTUAL CURE. THE SAME RESULT. IN EVERY CASE, WHENEVER TRIED, IT WILL DO AGAIN.

Bullock & Greenhaw, a firm well known to most medical men; by whom the Elixir Propylamine has been introduced, have sold to us the exclusive right to manufacture it according to the original recipe, and we have made arrangements of such magnitude as to enable us to scatter it broadcast amongst suffering humanity.
