THE DEFENSIVE POLICY OF THE REBELS

The rebellion of the slave holders of the south, when they first raised their banners and shouldered their arms, led the people of the country to suppose that it was for the purpose tributed altogether during the last fiscal year of wresting certain rights from the national to the State Treasury, a grand total of one hungovernment of these states, of establishing slavery immediately in all the territories by force, because the prevention of this establishment was one of the grievances complained of ceeds that of any other county in the State. by the rebels in their declaration of the causes leading to their revolt. It seems now, however, that the rebels did not arm for the purpose of fighting. They did not organize a large by this time, nearly, if not quite, reached Engby this time, nearly, if not quite, reached Engarmy that they might, likemen, demand proper land. It is not, perhaps, unreasonable to expect that a distinguished ovation awaits them entrenched their hosts in safe positions, that they may succeed in wasting the resources of the government, and wearing out the energies of those who have buttled in its support. When been given them; and that all the honors of this is accomplished, the chivalry will be ready and willing to meet the mud sills in battle on equal terms. This policy is portrayed in the himself by taking slaveholders to his bosom, last number of Ds Bow's Review, and which we upon him let the disgrace fall. We have no can safely regard as an official exposition of the his forbearance. We ask nothing of him exdesigns of the rebels. The writer in the Review thus defines the rebel policy :

The confederate states present greater natoral obstacles to an invading army than any tual area of country on the globe. Armies cannot march down our Atlantic coast, because of the great number of bays, inlets, creeks and rivers; nor down the interior, because of mountain ridges, impassable roads, spare popula-tion and scarcity of provisions.

"The Mississippi is narrow, long, tedious and easily defended, and its valley is subject to overflow. No invading army will attempt a sensor invasion in that direction. It is our true policy to decoy the enemy into the interior and then cut them off, as were Braddock, and Burgoyne, and Cornwallis, and Ross, and Pack.

Burgoyne, and cornwallis, and Ross, and Pack. burgoyne, and cornwains, and hoss, aut rack-enham, and our ewn troops in the everglades of order that he might the better play the spy Florida. When we have defeated and captured and informer! "their armies, exhausted their treasury, and owed their spirits by defensive warfare, it will be time for us to begin to act on the offensive, and to invade their territory."

Absolution, open, duding these like it is a crime per se. But secret treachery under the guise of friendship—faithlessness to obligations solemnized by placing the hand and the and to invade their territory."

In reference to the invasion of Maryland. which has been urged upon the confederate itself. Let England beware how she defiles government by impatient spirits, the Review herself by taking to the embrace men whose

"Should we be defeated in Maryland, ou whole army, with their ammunition, would be captured by the enemy. We might in a short time repair the loss of our men, but the loss of our munition; of war would inflict upon us a stunning and appalling blow. One defeat in Maryland would do us more harm than ten in Virginia. We have the selection of the battle ground—why choose Maryland?"

In alluding to the same subject, the Wash ington Republic says that for months after the battle of Bull Run we had alarms of an intended attack upon this city, and of an intended invasion of Maryland, the point of speculation being whether the confederates would attempt the passage of the Potomac above or below Washington. As our readers well know. we never ceased to ridicule those alarms, and never ceased to insist that the confederates desired nothing better than to keep everything in statu quo, relying upon their greater power of enduring the strain of war, and the prospect of exhausting the strength and finances of the loyal states. While the press all around us was insisting that the rebel army must either disperse, or make an attack upon our lines, we and there is said to be three months' provi maintained, with equal pertinacity, that they desired nothing so much as entire inaction, and fortable in all respects as circumstances will that that was a game in which we, not they, must go to the wall.

Time has shown that the rebel leaders never ARMY. — There is in the Confederate Army dreamed of invading Maryland, and that they near Centreville, an Irish company called the had the capacity, as well as the purpose, to remain calmly and patiently within their own leans. Two of them were recently shot for lines, upon the exhaustless resources of their some trifling military offence—some disrespec agriculture, and the labor of four millions of to their "chivalrous" officers, construed into slaves, held sacred by their scrupulous and mutinous resistance. An account of the execution has been published from the Richmond tender enemies.

papers. An Irish private soldier is, in the eyes of the Southern blades, of about as much account as a negro. But the sequel of this execution is told in a letter from the rebel THE MARCH OF EDUCATION.—Our soldiers in South Carolina and at Hatterss, have opened camp, which appears in the Nashville-Louis schools to teach the young and adult negroes ville Courier, thus:

"As a sequel to the execution of the two are anxious to learn, and are industrious. FORTRESS MONROE, Jan. 17. It is confidently asserted to-day that General Wool sent notice to General Huger, at Norfolk, to remove the women and children from that city.

The Minnesota to day took down top maste The Minnesota to-day took down top masts and spars, and will, it is said, proceed to Elizabeth river to-night with the frigate Cumberland. The Pensacola is also lying here, and every evidence of active naval operations are apparent. A flag of truce took to Norfolk to-day released rebel prisoners Col. Pegran, Capt. Lutten, Lieut. A. E. Bell, Capt. Tansill, Lieut. John W. Pool, Lieut J. C. Lassell, Dr. B. W. Luffries and Capt. T. J. Johnson and several Jeffries and Capt. T. J. Johnson and several ladies.

The body of Lieut. J. W. Kinsey, who died at Fort Warren was also taken. The flag steamer then proceeded up James river, about nine miles above Newport News and met the steamer from Richmond with one hundred and fifty released prisoners, two of whom escaped from prison last night, got aboard the boat, were concealed by their com-rades, and one evaded examination by jump ing the guards, whilst the other was detected and taken back. All of the prisoners were convalescents from the hospital. About twen-ty had crutches, and a dozen had to be carried on board, some on cots. All had been wound ed. Dr. Higginbotham accompanied them, and the men were loud in their commendation o his uniform kindness to them, and after cordially grasping his hand gave him three cheers. They then saluted the old stripes and stars with a burst of enthusiasm that brought tears to the eyes of many, waving crutches over their heads on their way back. The wharves and em-

Information has been received that the rebels have abandoned Boanoke Island in Pamlico Sound, and it is also said to day that they are preparing treagents of the constitution in the factor is not generally credited.

The Wilmington (N. C.) Journal of Wednesday says that nothing had been heard there of the Burnside expedition, and thinks it singular if it left Old Point on Sagurday night, as reported, that its appearance on the coast had not, up to that time, been anyounced.

The Raliegh Register of Wednesday says that some gentlemen in that city say that they heard on Tuesday evening reports of heavy pose to honor, are felons not only in our own eyes, but in the eyes of the world. It might be worth while to remind them that they have added to the political offence of treason the so-heard on Tuesday evening reports of heavy cannonading towards the coast, but the editor thinks that they were mistaken as the distance is too great.

The Norfolk Day Book of Friday says that nothing has been heard there of the expedition since it left Old Point, and professes to be at a loss to know what may be its destination.

The same paper announces that thirteen large steamers loaded with troops left Old Point on Thursday and presumes that they are intended lips upon the word of Gon—is a crime not against the State merely, but against society or another expedition to some other point. Destruction of a Rebel Light-Ship off Wimington, N. C.

Firing heard along the Potomac.

THE NEW SECRETARY OF WAR,

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. The Navy Department has received dispacthes from Commander Glisson, of the United States steamer Mount Vernon, dated off Wilmington, North Carolina, giving an interesting account of the burning of a Light-ship. Having heard the rebels made use of it as a beacon for briding vessels in and out of the barbor, and for the purpose of annoying our vessels by hoisting lights at night, he deter-mined to take adventure of adventure. mined to take advantage of a dark night, with the wind off shore, to effect her destruction — Accordingly he despatched a cutter under the command of acting master Alick Allen with John P. Foote, coast pilot and crew five men, and a gig under the command of acting master Sturges, and crew six men. The boats soon got within a short distance of the light vessel on the off side of Fort Caswell. The two officers, a boatswain's mate and a quarter master, climbed on board by a rope which was hanging at the side. The light boat was quite deserted. The carpenters had been at work. The vessel was being pierced for eight guns. No attempt was made to molest the expedition until they had kindled the fire, which effectually destroyed the light ship. The forts did not open on our boats until they were clerly out of harm's way. Firing down the Potomac was heard last night between 11 and 12 o'clock. It has since been ascertained that the rebel batteries had opened on Gen. Hooker's command on the Maryland shore, but without damage.

GEN. SIGEL TO COMMAND A DIVISION.

An Ice Blockade of the Mississippi River.

Rolla, Mo., Jan. 17. The brigade which has left here for the West within the last three days, is composed of the Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth Illinois, the Fortyfourth Missouri, and Bekhoff's and Hoffman's batteries, under command of Gen. Osterhaus. Another brigade, under General Sigel, will probably leave in a day or two. Gen. Sigel will, doubtless, assume the command of the entire division at the proper time. Sr. Louis, Jan. 17.—The navigation of the Mississippi river is entirely suspended here, in consequence of the gorging of the ice twenty miles below the city, extending to a point some distance above.

The troops are now being sent to Cairo by railroad, but their advance is materially re-tarded by the inadequate means of crossing the river, our ferry boats not being able to run, and the ice not sufficiently strong to bear heavy weights. The weather is now moderating again, and the prospects of a speedy opening are fair.

How Napoleon Punished Swindling in His Army.—Just before the great battle of Wagram, while the army was encamped on the Island of Lobau, near Vienna, Napoleon walking one day with one of his Marshal's on the shore, passed a company of grenadiers seated at their dinner. "Well, my frienda," said he, "I hope you find the wine good?" "It will not make us drunk," replied one "there is our caller," replied one "there is our caller," replied one replied one, "there is our cellar," pointing to the river Danube. The Emperor, who had ordered a bottle of wine to each man, was surprised, and made an immediate inquiry. He found that forty thousand bottles sent by him a few days before, for the army, had been pur-loined and were unaccounted for by the Commissaries. They were immediately brought to trial and condemned to be shot, which sentence was speedily carried into execution. Here was a venal offence, insignificant, indeed, when compared with the frauds upon the urgent wants and necessities of our soldiers, recently brought to light, but it received a severe and merited punishment. A few such examples in our army would do a world of good.
