[For the Telegraph.] HANCOCK, Jan. 19. Mr. Editor-We have been so buily en gaged in changing quarters and receiving the kind and ever welcome attentions of paymaster Sherman, that I have been unable to write earlier concerning our march from Frederick to Williamsport via Hagerstown, and our subse-quent arrival at the "deserted village" of Hanock. But "better late than never.

Leaving our camp, near Frederick on Monday morning, January sixth. Just before day-light we were joined by the nineteenth and twenty-eighth New York, and fifth Connecticut regiment—all belonging to the brigade of Gen-eral Williams—our regiment taking the ad-vance. The snow was about four inches deep, and the weather very cold. The men were in excellent spirits, and although we "trod on alippery places," yet all marched well and cheerfully. Along the route, and especially in the pretty little villages of Boonsboro' and Funkstown, we were cheered with every demonstration of loyalty to the Union. The stars and stripes floated garcefully from the window of macy dwellings, and many a fervent wish and hearty God-speed were given us. At half-past four o'clock in the afternoon we reached Hagerstown, having marched a distance of twenty-six miles through the snow, the toes of many being entirely exposed, and leaving but nine stragglers behind—a feat unparalleled in the history of the present rebellion. As we entered the streets of Hagerstown the bane struck up a lively tune, and the men marche as though they were just starting on a holiday excursion. We halted in the public square, and were soon anugly ensconsed in comfortable quarters. The citizens almost overwhelmed quarters. The citizens almost overwhelmed us with kindness, and coffee and sandwiches were abundantly supplied, after which the men were given the freedom of the city. It is a pleasant and neat town, quite a brisk business place, and ever will the forty-sixth Pennsylvania remember the hospitable reception given them by her generous and benevolent people.

On Tuesday morning at ten o'clock we were active formed every near head in the sales. again formed, every man being in his place, and started for Williamsport, having been detached from our brigade and ordered to report to Col. Leonard of the thirteenth Massachusetts, act ing Brigadier-General, where we arrived at noon, distance seven miles. We quartered in large open warehouses below town, on the river bank, remaining there until Friday morning. The men suffered greatly, it being very cold and having no stoves. The feet of several were frozen badly. Many of the citizens were On Friday morning we received the very cheering news that we were again to join our brigade, and by eight o'clock were under way. Marched steadily and reached a small place called Clear Spring, and starting from there on Saturday merning at an early hour, arrived in Hancock about 3 o'clock, just as it began raining severely. It was nearly an hour before quarters for the whole regiment could be procured, by which time all were pretty wet.— Our company, the "Riflies," was finally placed in a very comfortable "secesh" house, and ev-erything evinced the baste in which the af-frightened occupants had left during the bombardment of this place on the Sunday previous to our arrival. The carpet still remained on the floors, papers, letters &c., were scattered through the rooms, and a fine collection of books evinced the taste and refinement of those who had resided therein. Visiting the sitched shortly after we were located, I found the boys regaling themselves with canned fruits and other edibles, having made fire in a large cook stove, and all the culinary appliances necessary being convenient, they were generally "at home." On Sunday morning rumors were current that the Confederates would probably make an attack upon us, companies were ordered to stav in quarters, and every premonition of "lively times" was apparent. About noon we were of dered to leave, as the enemy had threatened to bombard the town, and retiring in good or-der, halted on a hill back of the batteries of Captains Matthews and Knapp, who occupied a commanding position. All anxiously awaited the appearance of the rebels but they came not, and after remaining three days in camp we again removed to town and are now quartered in a large warehouse, in the principal street.

Considering the hardships and exposure which we have encountered during the past few weeks the regiment is enjoying excellent health; very few are seriously ill, and not one of the "Verbeke Rifles," is unable to be about—though rived, and we only await orders to advance. Promising to write again in a few days,

MADAME ANNA BISHOP To-NIGHT.—After what has already been said, we presume it is only intended to follow him or making an attack. It is not known whether Col. Canby intends to follow him or tists, will give a grand concert this evening, at Brant's Hall. The choicest seats have of course been taken, but there is still room in eligible parts of the hall, for those who wish to attend. The programme is of a high order, and will be admirably executed throughout. Nothing further need be said on the subject.
