AN INCIDENT.

The recent battle of Webb's Cross Roads, in Kentucky, at which the rebel Zollicoffer lost his life, was one of the most desperate that has yet been fought, and will be followed by results of the most important character to the Union cause. Among the incidents of this struggle. is the capture of a large quantity of cannon, comprising parrott, howitzers and brass rifled guns of the most superior range and quality. Among these trophics, are two splendid pieces. which were left on the field of Bull Run, after our troops had become panic stricken by the confusion and flight of a few terror stricken and glorionsly redeemed and sufficient other ordifirst loss. Altogether, at this battle, our troops that the recent meeting of the Democratic (?) captured sixteen cannon of all discriptions.

A JUST ALLOWANCE.

In all great enterprises and organizations, there are exceptions by which great injustice is done to individuals. In our present military organization, we believe, the rule has been not to pay the captain of a company until his ranks were filled to the maximum prescribed by law, and, in the same respect, allowed no pay to regimental officers until the regiment had reached the numerical standard, prescribed in the same menner. By this law and rule, many men, acting from patriotic motives, were subjected to great expense, and in cases which have come under our own personal observation, have actually become bankrupt before they could succeed in raising a company or regiment. And vet, while they were recruiting, they were as much in the service of the state or nation as are those who took their positions in camp, or the field, at the head of full companies or regiments; but the law denied their remuneration, and no other alternative presented itself, time, or stand aloof altogether from the service. To these statements and facts there are, of course, some exceptions. We will not deny that many men started to recruit companies who never intended to enter the service, while we are equally certain that there are others who laid the foundation of regiments and brigades. not for the purpose of smelling powder, or run-Gen. Cameron, accompanied by his family ning the risk of loosing life or limb, but enenemy. If the law could be applied with disbusiness and profit that he may serve his counment those services commenced, seems like an a glorious cause.

. In order to obviate the rule by which this injus. tice was produced, a bill has passed the House of Representatives, allowing pay to regimental officers, from the date of their order in writing to raise their regiments, emanating either from the President, Secretary of War, or Governor; provided the time for such recruiting does not exceed three months; and the same allowance to captains, to be made on the same orders emanating as aforesaid, provided the time for recruiting a company does not exceed two months. This is an improvement on the old rule, and will be the means of doing justice to many brave and devoted men. We therefore trust that no time will be lost in giving effect to the law, as we are certain that it will afford relief to many who are now actually suffering for the means of providing themselves with the common necessaries of their positions.

"Where did you get acquainted with Governor ____ ?'

"I never was acquainted with him - never spoke to him in my life."

"How, then, did you get such a strong letter from him to the Secretary?"

"Oh, I have a pretty sister, who went to Alexandria the other day with the Governor. She procured the letter for me!"
