D., Daniel Haddock, Jr., Henry Lapsley. ve LETTERS-In a contested will case in state of New York it was urged by one of musel that the absence of all love-letters on the testator and his wife during the y years of their wedded life was strong that there was no love between them. ounsel on the other side denied the inferand insisted that the ordinary acts of less and affection in their every-day life was a much higher sort of evidence than loveattack. That love-letters, in truth, were not to be expected between the most loving of martiel comdes. SPARE YOUR HORSES .--- In the present condition of the streets, it is of the utmost importsuce that horses should be rough-shod, and that care should be exercised in crossing slippery places. We notice in our daily rounds much carelessness in this respect, particularly by hackmen and cart drivers. Many fine horses are driven rapidly over the ground where the greatest caution should be observed, and it is the dictate of self interest as well as humanthat owners of horses should pay more at-i in to the matter than they apparently do. t few noble animals have been ruined by ack of proper care in shoeing, or by heed-riving in winter. TAL RAILROAD ACCIDENT .--- On Saturday

A States, is the showing the changes continually going on in Christian names. Fifty years ago it was quite uncommon to burden a child with more than one name in addition to the family cognomen, and if this prænoment was only of scriptural origin, it was considered that a child could go through the world comforta-tackid could go through the world comforta-bly and respectably, as far as name was con-cerned at least. But now double names are becoming almost universal, and some unforta-tacts are even encumbered with as many names as a royal infant in Europe. Puritanical names mostly fell into disuse long ago, and scriptural names of all kinds are rapidly disappearing from our nomenclature. Abraham, Isaac, Ja-cob, Job, Reuben and Ruth, are getting to be statesmen, poets and great men of all kinds, are always favorites, and there continue to be statesmen, poets and great men of all kinds, are always favorites, and there continue to be a good many George Washingtons, Benjamin Franklins and Daniel Websters, and now and then we fall in with some "mute inglorious Milton," and more rarely a seedy looking Vir-gil or bight-eyed Homer. struction of the side-way in this manner is a dear violation of the city ordinance, and we certainly are at a loss to see why it is not enforced. Within the last two weeks, at least one hundred and fifty of our citizens, many of them For women, were prosecuted by the supervisors for neglecting to shovel the snow from their pavements, and yet here is not only an equal violation of the ordinance, but an obstruction ei far greater extent, which the supervisor Thielly provits to exist without the least inter erence on his part. Why is this? Is the law not operative in this particular case? or do the parties "stand above the law ?"
