HARRISBURG, PA.

Saturday Afternoon, February 22, 1862.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, (N. S.)—On next Sabbath morning, at half-past ten o'clock, Rev. Dr. Dewart is expected to deliver a sermon on the seventy-fourth anniversary of his ministry in this place.

SANFORD'S OPERA HOUSE—Star Spangled Banner—Night. Sanford, the indefatigable, partaking of the general enthusiasm of the occasion, presents a grand patriotic offering at his theatre, which cannot fail to be acceptable to every lover of his country. Read the programme by all means, and patronize Sanford.

HARE LIP skillfully operated for and the deformity removed in a few minutes, by Dr. Jones, at Herr's hotel. Dr. Jones treats successfully those affections which impair the intellect and destroy the memory. He will practice at Herr's hotel, in this city, till the third of March, but will not be able to visit Pennsylvania again professionally. He therefore requests all who wish to consult him to do so now, as this is their last opportunity.

SOMETHING FOR THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.—On Wednesday, in the House, Mr. Pershing, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported a resolution, which passed, that the Commissioners of each county be requested to inform their respective representatives of the number of families of volunteers, and the number of persons composing each family, who receive aid from the county, and the amount paid each family per week, and the aggregate amount paid by the county up to this date; and that the clerk be directed to have circulars printed, to be forwarded to the Commissioners of the respective counties, to be returned with the information required.

PROBABLE ADJOURNMENT OF THE LEGISLATURE.—The committee appointed by the Legislature to proceed to Washington and confer with the Finance Committee of Congress as to the probable quota of tax to be imposed upon this State, the payment of which could be assumed by the Legislature, failed, as was anticipated, to gain any satisfactory information. Consequently the Legislature can do nothing until after Congress has passed a tax bill. A joint resolution was introduced into the Senate on Wednesday providing for the adjournment of the Legislature from the 21st of March to the 17th of June. As there is really nothing for this Legislature to do, after passing the General Appropriation bill, but to enact tax laws, it is not improbable that this proposed adjournment will take place.

STRABISMUS, OR CROSSED EYES.—One of my eyes has been turned inward from birth and the sight was rendered useless, and it was very much disfigured. Dr. Jones made it straight in half a minute, two months ago; the eye is perfect in every respect. I formerly resided in Harrisburg; I now live seven miles from Chambersburg, Franklin county. Several physicians in this vicinity tried to prevent me from going to Dr. Jones, but I had no confidence in them, neither did I heed their denunciations of Dr. Jones, whom I have found a skillful surgeon and a high toned gentleman.

Mrs. EMILY SWITZER.

P. S. My post office is Chambersburg.

DEDICATORY SERVICES.—The services incident to the dedication of the new Methodist Mission Church, on Ridge Road, will commence next Thursday, in the Locust street Methodist Church, at three o'clock and at seven o'clock, P. M. Rev. Dr. Bartine will preach on both these occasions, and he will be assisted in the religious services by Rev. Andrew Manship and others.

The concluding dedicatory services will take place on the following Sabbath, March 2d.

Rev. Charles Cook, D. D., will preach in the Locust street Church at half-past ten, A. M. on that day and Rev. J. H. Torrence at seven o'clock, P. M.

The time of dedication will be held in the new church, on Ridge Road, on Sabbath, March 2d, at three P. M.

The re-dedicated choir of the Locust Street M. E. Church will be present, and favor the congregation with some choice music.

DEATH OF A DROVER.—A Mysterious Affair.—On Wednesday a drover, named Ross, from the State of Indiana, was found in a helpless condition, in a passenger train which had just arrived at Pittsburgh from the east. He was quite sick, and almost speechless. He was placed in an omnibus, and hauled to various hotels, but no one was found charitable enough to give him a bed. He was then conveyed to the railroad station, and laid upon a bench in one of the rooms. Here he became utterly insensible, and was finally sent to the Western Hospital, where he could not be admitted under the rules of the parties having no permit, and no one being willing to assume the cost of his keeping.

He was then hauled back to the railroad depot, where his pockets were searched, with a view to learning his name. Papers were found upon him, showing that his name was Ross, and that he had lately delivered hogs in Baltimore to the amount of $1,800. In his pocket-book were found $175, and he was forthwith conveyed back to the hospital, with better success than before, having "lucres" enough to gain admittance. He continued to grow worse, however, and died in a few hours. Coroner McClellan investigated the cause of his death, which was somewhat mysterious. There were no marks upon him indicating violence, and the occasion of his illness can perhaps only be determined by a post mortem examination. He may have been drugged with liquor and robbed on the railroad, or his disease may have been altogether natural, as he is known to have had a partner in Baltimore, to whom he may have given the money which he received for the hogs.

THE DAY AND ITS OBSERVANCE—Grand Military Parade.—Throughout the entire city to day a bright blaze of pure patriotic sentiment was discernable on the countenances of all who reverence the memory of the immortal Washington, and who love justice, honor, and the purity of our country's flag.

THE MORNING.—In accordance with the suggestion in last evening's TELEGRAPH, the day was ushered in by the simultaneous ringing of the city bells, including that at the Pennsylvania railroad depot, and a number of those belonging to manufacturing establishments, all, together, producing a clangor that was cheerful to hear, and which awakened a lively spirit of patriotism among our citizens.

THE DEORATIONS.—That which could not fail to attract the eye of the observer, was the great number of American flags that decorated the streets of the city. These were visible everywhere. They waved from lofty flag-staffs—from ropes suspended across streets, and from the windows of private residences. Juveniles too, of both sexes, went in strong on the banding, and nearly every one we met on the sidewalk waved a "star spangled" piece of silk or cotton from the end of a lath or piece of shingle, and felt as proud of the miniature national emblem, as if she was the Goddess of Liberty, or the Nation's Defender. It was emphatically a festival of flags; and as we gazed upon their bright colors we involuntarily recalled to our memory the following beautiful poem of Rodmann Drake, which no American citizen can read without feeling inspired with a deeper love for his country, and veneration of the memory of its immortal founder, the great and good Washington.

When Freedom from her mountain height
Unfurled her standard to the air,
She tore the azure robe of night,
And set the Stars of glory there!
She mingled with her gorgeous dyes
The milky badge of the skies,
And added to the purple celestial white,
With streaks from the morning light,
Then, from her mansion in the sun,
She called her eagle-bearer down,
And gave into his mighty hand
The symbol of her chosen land!

Majestic monarch of the cloud!
Who rearest aloft thy regal form,
To hear the tempest tramping loud,
And see the lightning lances driven,
When strikes the warrior of the storm,
And rolls the thunder-drum of heaven!
Child of the sun! to thee 'tis given
To guard the banner of the free—
To hover in the sulphur smoke,
To ward away the battle-stroke,
And bid its blinding shafts afar,
Like rainbows on the cloud of war,
The harbinger of victory!

Flag of the brave! thy folds shall fly,
The sign of hope and triumph high;
When speaks the signal trumpet's tone,
And the long line comes gleaming on,
Ere yet the life-blood, warm and wet,
Has dimmed the glistening bayonet—
Each soldier's eye shall brightly turn,
To where thy meteor glories burn,
And when the cannon's moutings loud
Have in wild wreaths the battle shroud,
Like a torch of flame on midnight pall
There shall thy victor glories fall,
And whirling foes shall fall below,
Each gallant arm that strikes below,
That lovely messenger of death!

Flag of the seas! on ocean's wave,
Thy stars shall glitter o'er the brave.
When death, careering on the gale,
Sweeps darkly round the belted sail,
And frighted waves rush wildly back
Before the broadside's reeling rack,
The flag waives of the sea,
Shall look at once to heaven and thee,
And smile to see thy splendours fly,
In triumph o'er the closing eye.

Flag of the free heart's only home,
By angel hands be valour given!
Thy stars have lit the welkin dome,
And all thy hues were born in heaven.
Forever float the standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us,
With freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

THE STREETS.—Throughout the day the sky was overcast with clouds, threatening snow, yet the temperature of the weather was pleasant, and a large portion of our population were abroad in the principal thoroughfares. The public offices, banks, the principal stores, and some of the large manufacturing establishments were closed; and the post office only remained open from 7 to 9 o'clock A. M. and from 1 to 4 P. M.

THE MILITARY PARADE.—The most attractive feature of the day was the grand military parade of all the troops at Camp Curtin, numbering altogether about twenty-seven hundred, the whole under the command of Col. S. A. Meredith, acting Brigadier General. They were nearly all uniformed and armed and equipped, and accompanied by several excellent bands of music.

The brigade formed at Camp Curtin at nine o'clock, A. M., and after being reviewed by Adjutant General Russell and other high military officials, entered North street by Ridge road, and proceeded on North street to Front, down Front to Washington avenue, out the Avenue to Second, up Second to Walnut, out Walnut to Fifth, down Fifth to Market, up Market to Third, up Third to Locust, out Locust to Second, up Second to State and from thence returned to Camp. The troops presented a remarkably fine appearance, and some of the companies marched with the precision of regulars.

Altogether it was the finest military display we have witnessed for a number of years. Throughout the parade the brigade was followed by a dense multitude of people on the sidewalks; and in every street through which it passed the door-ways and windows of the dwellings were filled with the fair sex, whose sunny smiles and waving handkerchiefs betokened their patriotic feelings.

MORE BELL RINGING.—Precisely as the Capital clock struck the hour of twelve M., and while the Brigade was still moving, according to a previous arrangement, the bells of the city again rang out their loud peals, making the streets resound with their cheerful chime, and increasing the enthusiasm of the occasion.

As the Brigade passed the corner of Third and Walnut street, it was saluted by a tremendous report from one of the cannons captured during the Mexican war, stationed on the public ground in front of the State Arsenal, and fired by some of the attaches of that establishment.

THE NATIONAL SALUTE.—When the military arrived in State street, Capt. Seymour's company of the 5th U. S. Artillery, detached itself from the right of the brigade, and proceeded to the corner of Front and State, where the guns of the company were unlimbered and placed in regular battery position for the purpose of firing a national salute, which duty was performed with a regularity and celerity that spoke volumes for the proficiency of the firing squads. Indeed, the fine appearance of this company was the subject of general remark and admiration.

The salute terminated the military ceremonies of the day.

THE DAY IN THE GERMAN REFORMED CHURCH.—The members of the German Reformed congregation assembled in their church at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of hearing their pastor, Rev. Mr. Gauss, read Washington's Farewell Address. The pulpit was decorated with a handsome American flag, and the national anthem was played on the organ with fine effect. After an impressive prayer by Rev. Mr. Cattell, of the Old School Presbyterian church, the choir sang the "Star Spangled Banner," in which many of the congregation heartily joined. The Address was then read by Mr. Gauss, and was listened to with great interest by the large and intelligent audience. The exercises concluded with prayer, the doxology and benediction.

ESCAPEES.—A lad, eight or ten years of age, narrowly escaped being run over by one of the artillery horses at the corner of Market street, as the brigade was passing along Front street.

We did not witness a solitary case of drunkenness on the street during the day, nor have we heard of any arrests by the police for violations of the peace—a result chiefly due to the precautionary measures adopted by the Mayor which prevented the indiscriminate sale of liquor.

During the afternoon several of the volunteer companies favored our citizens with independent parades through the city, and some of them attracted much attention, for the soldierly appearance of the men, and their proficiency in the drill movement.

TO-MORROW.—There will be no general illumination to-night, which we deeply regret, as it would have been a fitting wind-up to the festivities of the day. The only building to be illuminated, besides a few private residences, that we know of at the time of writing, is the Truck House of the Mount Vernon Hook and Ladder Company in Locust street. The members of this company deserve great credit for the patriotic spirit manifested by them in this matter.

Altogether the observance of the day in our way of the most gratifying character. It not only bore unmistakable evidence of the love and devotion of our citizens to the Union, and their veneration of the memory of the illustrious Washington, but it gave evidence also of their unfeigned gratitude to Divine Providence for favoring them with so great and glorious a character to imitate, and that the victory so lately achieved by our armies gave promise of perpetuity to that flag and country for which it may be said he devoted all the energies of his life.

GENERAL GEORGE WASHINGTON.—The principles and deeds of Washington, though the material and frame work has mouldered and decayed, has stamped his greatness upon the tablet of his country's history; it is our privilege and duty then to render the admiration, reverence and to awaken emulation by the proper observance of the day that gave birth to one so closely identified with his country's history, and now with the reader's permission, we respectfully call your attention to the large stock of dry goods at the cheap store of Ulrich & Bowman.

A CARD TO THE LADIES.

DR. DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILLS FOR FEMALES.
"Read the following certificate" from one of the first ladies in this city, who call upon agents in this city (Mr. Wm. Bristol & Co.) and told them that she, of course, did not wish her name made public, but if any one should doubt the wonderful efficiency of Dr. Duponco's Golden Pills, they might refer any lady to her, as she considered it a duty, as well as a pleasure, to her knowledge of their efficacy, as administered to her daughter, a young lady 17 years old, who was fast going into consumption, had taken cold—nature became obstructed. Two boxes of these Golden Pills entirely cured her, and she is now in robust health. "We were particular in buying the genuine. Full and explicit directions accompanying each box.
