MILITARY PROMOTIONS.

We alluded, a few days since, to the subject of military promotions, and the power to fill vacancles, as both the promotion and that power now exist in the volunteer forces of the armies of the Republic. Since then, while pondering the subject, our attention has been arrested by several facts, which it is important that the public should know and understand. Promotion in the regular army was a monopoly controlled entirely by the graduates of the no gallant service, no deed of daring, or no life government, when the accounts of Mr. Cum-West Point Military Academy, through which time of devotion by the private soldier, could mings had been fairly adjusted in the Treasury, break. He might as well attempt to pierce the rock of Gibralter with his bayonet, as seek to rival a regular officer in his grade by emulating his gallantry on even excelling his efficiency. The thing was impossible, until the necessities of this war authorized the raising of some twelve or fifteen regiments, to be attached to the regular army. When those regiments were organized, the commissioned officers were all appointed necessarily from graduates of West Point, with the exception of that of second lieutenant, which, by order of Gen. Cameron, then Secretary of War, was left vacant, to be with mismanagement and fraud, but it was refilled by appointment from the ranks of such jeded. It was rejected and warded off, doubtnon-commissioned officers as had earned the less because the truth in this instance would position by fair and manly conduct on the field. The result of thus leaving the position of second | that committee, who had been delighting their lieutenancy open at the organization of these peculiar friends with a relation of the proceednew regiments, will be to encourage the private ings of the committee and the rich' developwith the truth, that the highest grade in the ments its report would make; and thus to army is within his reach, if he evince the merit | maintain their assertions, the foulest slanders and exercise the courage to win the post of that ever were uttered against the reputation honor. This idea of promotion from the ranks of any man, were allowed to take an official is of French origin, and was carried out by shape against Alexander Cummings. His de Napoleon with the most satisfactory results. ▲ French soldier sees in the highest position in the army a post which he can reach, if he possess the talent and display the ardor to win that place. With the English soldier, and in but he has clearly convicted the committee fact with the soldiers of every nation, excepting those of France, the case is different. Neither service or deeds entitle him to promotion. He may become maimed, sickened and unfitted for all service. Still there is no other honor or frankly to our readers. His statements derecognition for him at the hands of his government, but a couch in a hospital, or a crutch, entitled to credit for the coolness and courtesy with a pension large enough to furnish him with which he deals with those who gave him with tobacco and grog. Hence the enthusiastic such just cause for ire and indignation. devotion of the French soldier, and hence, too, the desertions which so frequently occur in all the other armies of Europe.

Pennsylvania, invests the soldier in the ranks | tion, held at their rooms, in the city of Clevewith the power of electing his own officers and land, March 4, 1862, the following resolutions also filling any vacancy by such election, which may occur by the thousand casualities of war. By a decision of the Attorney General of Pennsylvania, that organic law remains in force in the regiments of the Reserve Corps, now on duty as Simon Cameron, for his able, energetic and a portion of the armies of the Republic. All patriotic services rendered to his country while of guns and stores, which they were unable to Secretary of War. vacancies of officers can only be filled by the election of the men themselves, a fact which, it is alleged, by the spirit of rivalry and the in- patriotism of Gen. Cameron, and sincere fluences of corrupt competition, has made it gret that he has resigned the station of Secreimpossible for the men to agree in numerous himself and fidelity to the nation. instances, thus leaving many vacancies yet unfilled. This of course is an evil with which the manner of creating officers and filling vacancies, has nothing to do, and is a reflection more upon the corruption existing in the army, than it is upon any system for its organization and discipline. In the case of the volunteers outside of the Reserve Corps, the manner of filling vacancles is different, because in those troops Congress has empowered the Governors of the various states to fill any vacancies thus occurring, by appointment. Thus, for instance, the Governor of Pennsylvania has the exclusive power of filling all vacancies occurring in all regiments recruited and organized by this state. except those comprising the Reserve Corps. The resolution before the legislature seaks to confer this power with respect to the Reserve Corps also, and it is on this point that a difference of opinion exists, such as we noticed in these col umns a few days since, a difference which has already been sufficiently discussed, as to make any further reference to it entirely unnecessary.

On the subject of the power which was conrelative to appointments to fill vacancies in the volunteer army of the Republic, Governor Curtin, on the 26th of February, 1862, issued a general order, in which he fixes the rule of seniority in all such cases. That is, all vacancies occurring in commands below the rank of field officers, will be followed by the promotion of seniority, "except in special cases, which may be presented through the Colenels of the regiments." This same order also fixes the rule We shall accept no arrangements that do not in regard to second lieutenants, that was place the "peculiar institution" in such relaadopted in the organization of the fifteen regiments of regulars Gen. Cameron. It leaves ther mischief. But for the present, let us look all second lieutenantcies vacant, to be filled by the appointment from the rank of such noncommissioned officer as may earn the promotion by gallant service. It is a rule calculated to excite the emulation and the gratitude of the soldier, and as it is rigidly adhered to, it will make our armies the means of calling forth the highest genius in the country, and of creating a rivalry such as can only produce soldiers.

WHEN CONFISCATION WILL BE DE-

A BRAVE DEFENCE. We print to-day, the defence of Alexander Cummings, whose name has been connected with certain alleged frauds in contracts, for furnishing the government with munitions of war, country for several months in no very enviable light, and that he has been charged with dishonesty in the speeches of members of Congress, in the correspondence of Washington letter writers, in the editorial of newspapers, and in every way possible to damage and damn him, have his public acts and private reputation been assailed. Those who pursued Mr. Cummings thus relentlessly, had other objects in view than the destruction of one man's char ncter, a work of itself sufficient to gratify com mon hatred and vindictiveness. They hoped poisoned shafts would carry their venom through the person of Mr. Cummings to others whom they dared not personally assail, but whom they no less desperately desired to destroy Thus while these assaults were understood and scorned, they could only be answered by Mr. Cummings, who was compelled to withhold his reply until within a few weeks since, owing to his severe illness and absolute confinement to his room, a fact which his wretched enemies turned to good account, by perverting his silence into a report that he had gone to Europe there to escape the odium of his acts and the punishment which was his due. All this mistatement was used to swell public clamor against the man, and create suspicion in regard to his official disbursement of the monies of the when any member of the committee whose chairman intently sought to blast his character, could have informed himself of the of the conduct pursued by Mr. Cummings. The statement which we present this afternoon is a plain and unvarnished series of facts, sustained by the corroborated evidence of the heads of two Departments and the certificate of adjustment of the proper accounting officers of the government. All this was proffered to the committee that charges Mr. Cummings have affected the veracity of certain members of fence, however, clearly establishes his inno cence. It establishes the fact, too, that he was not only the subject of malevolence so far as the misrepresentation of facts were concerned, which so unfairly resolved on his destruction, with having garbled and misprinted his own written letters.

The Forest City Union Association is an orcanigation similar to the Relief Committees of New York and other large cities, and was mainly instrumental in facilitating the successful transportation of troops in various parts of for. the west, and also in affording the government much valuable aid in conducting the war operations in that direction. Under such circum- their worthlessness stances, the passage of there resolutions may b considered as highly complimentary.

IN THE GREAT STRUGGLE WITH REBELLION, We need have no fear that slavery will get the upper hand. GoD will take care of that. The doom of that monster iniquity is sealed. It is bleeding to death internally. No human powferred on the Governorsof the various states, by er can save it from the grave toward which it the act of Congress of the 22nd of July, 1861, is madly hurrying. Circumstances are doing more to bring it to an end, than could be accomplished by all the emancipation acts passed between now and doomsday.

When the war is ended the people of these loyal States will take good care that the power of slavery shall not be restored. Upon this question we shall stand united. We shall listen to no terms of adjustment that do not leave Freedom virtual master of the field .tion to the Government that it cannot do farrather to the rebellion than to slavery; let us remember that the freedom of twenty-five millions of whites, as well as the freedom of four millions of blacks, is involved in the final issue of the struggle:

treason he asked a suspension of public opinion. Receipts of flour, 10,511 barrels; wheat, 17,521 Now public opinion asks a suspension of him.

Those who assume that confiscation would lead to certain destruction, will change their arguments, when the practical effects of clothing, subsistence and transportation for the tax bill begins to be felt by the people. troops. Our readers will remember that the name of Mr. Cummings has been before the not merely constitute the defrayal of the expenses of the civil list. That will sink into insignificance, when compared with other demands which will be made upon the treasury and the resources of the people. In the first place, the civil expenses of the government will be augmented, notwithstanding Congressmen are prone to reduce the clerical expenses of each department, without evincing the least disposition to cut down their own salaries. Added to this, the interest on the millions which are being expended to crush rebellion, must be met every year, while the principal of that debt will press that while they were striking at him, their hard for liquidation, and must of course eventually be paid. These are additional expenses. They occur at a time when trade and mechanism are not in the most prosperous condition; and in addition to all these demands on the treasury, where will we derive the means neces sary to support a large military force, after the rebellion has been conquered? It will require at least fifty thousand men to insure the certain operation of the federal law in the rebel states. for a term of years which no man can now calculate. Where is the money to come from to pay these expenses? Whence are the means to be derived to assist also in aiding those who are loyal to emancipate their slaves? Must it come out of the sweat and toil and cheerless struggle of the white man? These are questions that never enter into the consideration of legislators. but we have a notion that when the taxes are being collected, these toiling white men will begin to regard confiscation scarcely as unconstitutional as some of our legislators now esteem that question. There is nothing like practical operations for the production of practical results. Nothing will so clearly demonstrate the influences and evils of slavery as the necessity of maintaining an army of fifty thousand men to keep a fifth that number of slave drivers from destroying the peace and prosperity of the country. When such effects begin to startle the country, and when the pressure of an immense debt begins to be felt on the ribs and the wants of labor and business, look out for something even more stern than confiscation
