> MARRIED WOMEN LAW. - There is a very gen eral mistake in the community as to the power of married women to bind themselves by contract, and this mistake allows a great deal of swindling to be carried on under the name of married women. A married man being insolvent sets up business in the name of his wite, perhaps calls himself her agent. She, or he in her name, makes bargains, signs notes, gives bonds and confesses judgments. Persons dealing with such parties, knowing or believing A SUPPLEMENT to an act in relation to public that the wife has property in her own right, and thinking that her obligations are good, give her credit. They probably find out when too late that the note, bond or judgment confessed by a married women, though she may be worth thousands, is not worth a copper. No judgment can be obtained against her on any translation of English matter required to be contract, note or bond, which she enters into or gives, and a judgment confessed by her is a mere nulity. She may, possibly, give a judg-ter not actually translated.
