THE UNION-THE CONSTITUTION-AND THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAW.

HARRISBURG, PA.

Saturday Afternoon, March 22, 1862.

THE NATIONAL FOUNDRY.

By the proceedings of Congress yesterday, we notice that the subject of the National Foundry was up in the Senate, and that the debate on the question elicited the fact that Pennsylvania was in reality the proper locality for such an establishment. Of this fact there has never been any doubt in the minds of scientific men and mechanics, and we are pleased to notice that Congress begins to divine the truth. It wilt also find, on a more careful investigation of the subject, that while Pennsylvania is the only locality in the Union fitted for the establishment of a National Foundry, the vicinity of the State Capital, Harrisburg is also the best and resources essential to the national success of such an enterprise. As Congress has discovered the fact of the advantages of our great state, we trust that our fellow citizens will at once press on the attention of the same this vicinity.

THE DIFFERENCE.

One year ago the display of the Stars and Stripes was the signal of a man's loyalty and the evidence that he disapproved the hot-headed rebellion of the slave drivers. Everywhere in the north our starry flig was displayed, and in this city there were few exceptions to those who thus manifested their devotion to the Constitution and the Union. One of the most audacions of those ho refused to display this emblem, were the proprietors of the Patriot and Union. They objected to it, because the display might be construed into an act of coercion of their southern brethren, and persisted in their refusal, until an indignant community threatened the office with violence, when the flag was doggedly and reluctantly flung to the breeze. March, from one of the windows of the ple of Baltimore sold their stock to the people of Pennsylvania, and because those now holding friends had achieved a victory over their aging the interest of the road, the councils of of that sheet considered that their political fellow citizens and neighbors, in a contest fellow citizens and neighbors, in a contest pression that a great wrong was being perpenin which there was no policy or issue to be decided. With the Patriot it was the trist of the own bitter prejudices and grovelling. Baltimore were being sacrificed to the cupidity of its own bitter prejudices and grovelling of those who had really and honestly labored, hatreds, and because it deems that these have so far as the success of the Northern Central so far as the success of the Northern Central triumphed, it displays the Stars and Stripes. This last act is a blacker insult to that sacred hypocrisy and impudence.

35 A Congress is delaying action on the subject and enhanced, and that "the company is now It is fair to presume, therefore, that the aspect of emancipation, as provided for by the President's resolution, in the District of Columbia, where of all other localities, the pest of slavery should be abolished. If this delay is continued, the loval people of the land will begin to sus pect that there are other influences at work to retard this measure, than any doubt of its justice or its practicability. For the benefit of those of our readers who do not understand pany appear, therefore, to have been caused by There is room for a flank movement also. society in Washington city, we print the fact that in that locality the sentiment in favor of slavery is often stronger than that of loyalty. maintain the patriarchal dignities of the insti-Washington society is controlled by those who tution of slavery, so that it might possibly be just to suspect that this influence is at work in Congress, inducing it to falter on a question in which is involved the peace and prosperity of the country, in order to maintain the intercourse of members of Congress with the resident elite of the metropolis, or preserve their popularity in the saloons and restaurants along Pennsylvania Avenue. There is no necessity for this delay. Those who oppose legislation on this subject in the city of Washington, are the same who, one year ago, were tauntingly busy are glad that our neighbor is so easily satisfied tu predicting the downfall of the free states, and who, six months since, had the material election only six months since, we discover ready for weeks to illuminate the city in honor of the victorious entry of Jeff Davis and his city by a majority from three to six hundred, hordes. These are the men who now oppose whilst yesterday the democracy elected a mathe proposition of President Lincoln. It is time that the country understands the fact, however humiliating, that such an influence is sufficiently strong to deter the enactment of a just law contemplating the removal of a foul stain from the national capital. If no other end is achieved by our present struggle, let the result be that the shadows of the Capitol of the American states be made to fall on free soil, notwithstanding the protests of an insignificant and dissolute common council, or a few imbecile men and women, whom the follies and corruptions of fashion have made insensible to every impulse of honesty, pity or generosity for the suffering of the enslaved. Let the Capital be declared free, though around its borders slavery should exist for a quarter of a century to come.

THE MANAGEMENT OF THE NORTHERN CENTRAL RAILROAD AND THE CITY COUNCILS OF BALTIMORE. We have no disposition to interfere with the nternal differences of any corporation, or take part in any quarrel which does not particularly interest ourselves or the public at large. With the private arrangements of corporations or be-praised by the opposition, but we have yet individuals we have nothing to do; but when the issues growing out of any different either between individuals or corporations, affect the interest of the whole community, we deem it our duty to interfere, either to expose the wrong still they claim to be loyal, and only ask for a or applaud the right. In this light we have long viewed the attempts of certain parties in the city of Baltimore, to embarraes the management and obstruct the operations of the Northern Central Railroad. For many years ed and upheld by Buchanan, Floyd, Breckthe parties in the interest alluded to, were enridge, Jeff. Davis, Mason, and others of vainly attempting to establish a road which would attract to Baltimore part of that trade with which Pennsylvania so largely abounds, but having failed, after bankrupting themselves and their friends, they succeeded in inducing the enterprize and capital of Pennsylvania to undertake the accomplishment of the same purpose, and thus do for Baltimore interests and industry what Baltimore enterprise and energy could not do for themselves. Accordingly a large number of the stockholders in the Northern Central Railroad residing in Baltimore, sold out their interests to parties in this state, while the city of Baltimore devoted certain stock at the time worthless, to the road under its new management, in consideration that stipulations be observed and certain extensions of the road be made, when the company found itself in a condition to fulfil the agreement. On assuming the control of the road, the present management found it in a condition of almost and only locality affording proper facilities hopeless bankruptcy. It had been incumbered with debts growing out of a connection with other roads of the most worthless character. whilst the competition to which in was subjected, left it for a time unable to meet its engagements or discharge its liabilities. These body, the superior advantages of this locality, facts were patent to all who understood the and that nothing will be left undone to se- real condition of the road, and yet certain parcure the location of the National Foundry in ties in Baltimore sought to organize an opposition to the management, and if possible bring the Directors of this road to cisgrace and distruction. To accomplish this the more speedily, a resolution was offered in the Baltimore city councils some time since, to the effect of inquiring into the management of the Northern Central Railroad, for the reason of recommending measures calculated to promote the interests of the city of Baltimore in connection therewith. The report of that committee made some week ago, is a clear, concise and convincing vindication, not only of the present management of the road, but it leaves those who thus attempted to bring the enterprise into disgrace in the plight of being clearly guilty, first, of the cause of the embarrassments of the road when they did exist; and, second, of conspiracy again to create embarrassment, after the road doing a great deal in the way of manufacturing had been placed in a condition to pay its debts, banner was flaunted to the rain and wind of Railroad was concerned, to promote and extend, increase and perpetuate those interests. But than the refusal a year ago to display its the question is set at rest by the report of the the question is set at rest by the report of the patriotism of the Patriot, chairman of the committee in question. DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES.

We hear a great deal said at the present time about Democratic principles, but we have as yet seen no statement of what those principles are supposed to embody, and what application is proposed to be made of them in the existing crisis. Democratic principles are pr ised and seen no line of policy marked out by those who are so much in love with these principles. It is true that they generally are engaged in a factious opposition to the Government, but return to Democratic principles. We know of a Jeffersonian Democracy which was patriotic, and embodied principles of great value, and we know of a Demacracy which was sustainthat class, whose practices and principles have culminated in the present rebellion, but which set of principles these individuals claim who are harping so long and loudly about Democracy, we do not know, but judging from the tone of their editorials and the character of their speeches, we should imagine that the latter would suit them best. We take it that at the present time all truly loyal men are primarily interested in putting down the rebeilion and preserving the Union. But these strenuous advocates of "Democratic principles" seem to take but little interest in these matters —with them the paramount consideration stoms to be to bring us under the reign of Democracy again, for they scarcely ever mention the rebellion. The course of such men may be eminently conservative and patriotic, but we think the people will wait till a full exposition is returns below. given of what these principles are claimed to embody before they give their adhesion to them. as they will be desirous of knowing whether they were of the class advocated by old hickory Jackson and the sterling patriots of his school or these promulgated and sustained by Davis and Floyd.

WE WOULD LIKE to see an inventory of the arms, stores, &c., captured from the rebels during the past six weeks, "stacked up" into one agglomerated whole. They would make an imposing appearance. We must have taken at least fifty thousand stand of small arms, three or four hundred picces of artillery, thirty or forty thousand tents, several thousand horses wagons, &c., thirty or forty steamers of various sizes, many of them loaded with stores, ammunition, &c., some hundreds of tons of "groceries and provisions," with a world of stuff too numerous to mention, since the first of Our guns at Fort Pickens put a quietus on operations in the Pensacola machine shops. The great conflagration made short work of the ordnance foundry at Charleston. The arsenals, both at Memphis and Nash ville, met a similar fate a few months since Later still, the cannon foundry near Clarksville was destroyed by our gunboats.

We don't wish to be deemed impertinent, but will somebody tell us how long the repels can stand such ruinous losses in the way of the material of war as they have been sustaining Visit of the Prince de Joinville and Third Street, below Market the past few weeks?

Thauks to the larcenous genius of Floyd, the rebels commenced business with a good atock of implements of war on hand; but what be the designs of Capt. Blakely, formerly of the royal artillers. About twenty of these Blakely 100-pounder rifle cannon have been delivered to the rebels, which with thirty smooth seige cannon constitute all the heavy ordnance of the enemy obtained from abroad which have escaped capture. Most of the rifle canaon used by the rebels have been smooth navy guns rifled, and many of them have burst from the strain which they were not designed
