ed place of rational amusement nightly increases the admiration of our citizens. Without exageration this is the best Operatic Troupe that has ever visited this city. The drolleries of Dixy and Moran keep the audience in a continual rear of laughter, while the sweet ballads of Curreross must charm the most fastidious ear. Stephens, evidently young in the minstrel business, possesses a very pleasing tenor voice. and sings with much taste and feeling. The dancing of Sanford, Jr., and Dougherty elicited much merited applause. An entire change of programme will take place this evening, and those who wish to "laugh and grow fat" should not fail to see Dixey and Becket, in the extravagauza of "Handy Andy."

DAVIS' PANORAMA OF AMERICA AND THE GREAT REBELLION.-This popular and highly artistic panarama will be again exhibited at Brant's Hall in this city, next Friday evening. It is new fairly before the public, and the interest it has excited, and the applause it has elicited. wherever it has been exhibited, are the best evidences of its intrinsic artistic merit. Time does not detract from but increases its attractions: a first visit will insure a second. As we have often referred to this sublime painting citically, and as thousands of our citizens concur in our estimate of its splendor, it seems unnecessary to refer to it more in detail. The readers of our country's history should by all means witness this glorious delineation of events. in which the art of the painter speaks to the mind and heart of every spectator.

The immediate cause of Mr. Boyd's death was a severe attack of congestion of the brain at an early hour yesterday morning, a notice of which appeared in last evening's TELEGRAPH. The deceased was about 45 years of age, a native of this city, and has always borne an irreproachable character for honesty and integrity. His death will create profound grief among his numerous friends. He leaves a wife and six children to mourn his untimely loss.
