PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL. [FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.]

[FROM OFFICIAL REPORTAL REPORTS.]

MAY 19, 1860,—Elles S., set. 28, single, never was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rhedmatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two wocks and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last Satur day, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, felt cold, hot had so decided chill. Two days later her ankles begation awell, which was followed by swelling; of the knee joints and of the hands. She has now drill pain in her shoulders, and her knuckies are very temder, red and paintul; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rhenmalic lever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call attention to a remedy, which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. In the appropriation of the highest terms, having derived great cenefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specifies; hat the somes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

May 23, 1880.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doess of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fall to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now nearly all of their natural size.—Thus far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a little white before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

the result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from a bronic rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knucktes were much swellen and tease. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain doses every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THREE DAYS LATER!!

THREE DAYS LATER!!

May 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine, the first of those to which I salled your attention at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory results. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well: I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rhaumatism, and if the result be satfactory, I think, as good jurymen, we shall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamin.

He is a seaman, set 26, who was admitted a few days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swollen, tense and tender. His tongue is furred his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 90.—He has now used propylamine for twenty-four house. This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this proper atticular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fever and the profuse sweating, so generally attiendant on acute rheumatism.

I did not bring this patient before you with the intended of the lower joints. There is fever and the profuse sweating, so generally attiendant on acute rheumatism.

I did not bring this patient before you with the intended of the lower joints. There is fever and the profuse sweating the patient before you with the intended of the profuse of the same and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it, than which there cu uld not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, avoiding the use of all other medicines in the best selficient remedy. You shall see the case of a future clinic,

THE RESULT.

A FAVORABLE VERDIOT.

Juras, 1860.—The next of our convalencents is the case of kouterheumatism before you at our clinic or May 26th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain coses every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very uncely, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have gaven seen as severe a case of acute rhou matiem so soon restored to health as this man has been, and without being prepared to decide positive by as to the value of the remedy we have used, they hound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chloride o Propylamine, the patients in avo regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a condensed extract, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter. It is the report after a fair trial by the best medhority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous certificates from autonished doctors and rejoicing patients.
