PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL.

FROM OFFICIAL REPORTS. MAY 19, 1860.—Ellen S., et. 23, single, never was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rheumatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last Saturday, when she was seized with rheumatism, she took cold, had a severe cold, felt cold, but had no decided chill. Two days later her ankles began to swell, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. Her hands were very tender, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is the most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to draw attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean propylamine. Dr. A. W. Bennett, of St. Petersburg, recommends it in his 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess, am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specific; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

MAY 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three grains every two hours, continuing, and now feeling, as you see, her health, I found her in more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attacks. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has been gradually progressing, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now nearly all of their natural size.—Thus far our experiment would seem to have succeeded. I would, therefore, recommend you to give it a little while before we give a decided opinion as to what is to be done. Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from an acute attack of rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack superadded upon her chronic affection. The wrists and ankles were much swollen and tender. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain doses every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THREE DAYS LATER!!

MAY 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine, the first of those to which I called your attention at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and now feeling, as you see, her health, I found her in more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attacks. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has been gradually progressing, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now nearly all of their natural size.—Thus far our experiment would seem to have succeeded. I would, therefore, recommend you to give it a little while before we give a decided opinion as to what is to be done. Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from an acute attack of rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack superadded upon her chronic affection. The wrists and ankles were much swollen and tender. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain doses every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THE RESULT.

A FAVORABLE VERDICT.

JUNE 9, 1860.—The next of our conversations is the case of acute rheumatism before you at our clinic of May 26th, which I then called a typical case, and which I then remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy, and to exhibit to you a feeling of giving in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have never seen as severe a case of acute rheumatism so soon restored to health as this man has been, and without being prepared to decide positive by as to the value of the remedy, we have used it, and to exhibit to you that in the case of which we have tried the Chloride of Propylamine, the patients have regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the result.

A WORD TO DOCTORS.

If you prefer to use the same remedy in another form we invite your attention to the PURE CRYSTALLIZED CHLORIDE OF PROPYLAMINE, PURE PROPYLAMINE LIQUID, PURE PROPYLAMINE CONCENTRATED, PURE IODINE PROPYLAMINE, of which we are the sole manufacturers.

DR. W. BARR—Dear Sir—As I have learned that you have purchased the right to manufacture and sell M'Connell's Golden Electric Oil, for the benefit of the afflicted, I send the following—I have been afflicted with a running sore on my leg for ten years. During that time I have been under the treatment of the best Doctors in Harrisburg, Baltimore and Cumberland county; but all could not effect a cure. A little over a year past, going into my blacksmith shop after my horse, my right leg also, below the knee. It spread all around the leg, and became a running sore. Several Doctors told me I must have my leg taken off, mortification having taken place. I then got a bottle of M'Connell's Golden Electric Oil for my child's sore mouth. It cured so soon that I thought I would try it on my leg. I have been using it about six weeks, and my leg is now healed up about and well.

ELISHA T. HOUGH.
