PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL. [FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.]

MAY 19, 1860,—Elien S., set. 23, single, never was very strong 1 wo years ago she had an attack of acute rhoums tism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks tism, from which she was confined to her bed tor two weeks and subsequent, from a relapse ter four more. She has been well since then till has Saturday, white engaged in house deaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, lelt cold, hot had so decides chill. Two days later her ankles begue so swell, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and or the hands. She has now dulpain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very lender, red and painful; both hands are alle ted, but the right knows oo. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fashioushly called, rheumatic lever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present thesmelves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call situation to oas symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in briging her better you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of resumatism. Im an propylansine. Dr. Awenarius, of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms, having derived great seaself from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and i propose therefore to give it another trial I must confess I am always increditions as to the worth of new remedies, which are vanised as apecifies; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

MAY 23, 1850.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propynamue, and was then is boring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attace. (the patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fall to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now nearly all of their natural size.—
Thus far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but gentlemen, we must wait a little white before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

the result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the same mediums on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from a route rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chroate affection. The wrists and gauckles were much swollen and tease. She took the ouloride of Propylamine in three grain deservery two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diministed.

THREE DAYS LATER!!

THREE DAYS LATER!!

May 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism ireated with propylamine, the first of tones to which I called your attention at our last clinic. She is still very considerable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory crashia. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do wait! I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satisatory, I think, as good jurymen, we snall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamin.

He is a seaman, sat. 28, who was admitted a few days ago. Has had ocassional rheumatic pains, but not so as to keep his bed, until sight days ago. The pains began is his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swollen, tense and sender. His tongue is furred; his skin, as precent dry, though there has been much sweeting. His pulse is inil and strong, and about 90.—He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours. This gentieman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fever and the profuse sweating, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism. I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it, than which there on diagrings as to which was the efficient remedy. You shall see the case of a future clinic.

THE RESULT.

A FAVORABLE VERDICT.

Jums 9, 1860.—The next of our convalencents is the case of actuer heumatism before you at our clinic of May 186th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our pew remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain uness every two hours for four days. The patient has get along very nicely, and is now sole to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have neves seen as severe a case of note rineumatism so soon restored to peatin as this man has been, and without being prepared to dende positive by as to the value of the remedy we nave deed, I feel bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chloride of Propylanding, the parients any recained their hesith much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a condensed extract, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter. It is the report after a fair trial by the best med cal authority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous ceruficates from asp and rejoicing patients.
