CONDENSED MILE. -- The Soldiers' Aid Society of Cleveland have published the following receipt for preparing condensed milk, an article highly needed for use in the hospitals. Take new milk warm from the cow, strain it. To each quart add a pound of fine white sugar; pour the sugar in gradually, stirring it all the time; let it simmer slowly until it is like a thick, ropy syrup. Let it cool. When perfectly cool seal it up in cans. Care should be taken to prevent the milk from burning.

NEW BREECH-LOADING GUN .--- A new breechloading six-pounder passed through the city lately en route for Washington. The inventor, heavy as a twelve.

SPRING, sweet, glad, light spring, is almost a talked of, to be dreamed about, to be looked at away back in the days of childhood, when we wandered o'er our native hills, but hardly ever realized here. The weather to-day and yesterday was decidedly cold, dreary, rainy and tempestuous. To be sure, we are occasionally treated to the music of the birds, but they have precious little of the balminess of spring. This lack is, however, made up to them in the unsurpassed pleasantness of the summer, which they all heartily enjoy, and, we hope, duly appreciate.

The letter adds that "Willis is held in high esteem by Colonel White as one of the bravest men in his regiment, fearing nothing and doing his duty manfully." We are certainly glad to hear this more of the same sort. The "bars" are waiting for Samuel. ABBEST OF A THIEF. -- Last Saturday afternoon officer Cole, of this city, proceeded to Columbia, Pa., to arrest a colored man named Stephen Ward, charged with the robbery of an awning, a large quantity of coffee and various other articles from the store of Wm.

Dock, jr., & Co., Market street, in which he was formerly employed as a porter. The officer, however, did not succeed in making the afterwards a telegraphic dispatch was received in the 23d Massachusetts regiment, and his tiou that Ward had passed through that bo.ough from Wrightsville, and had taken passage on the "tub line" of cars that would arrive in this

A heavy force was in default of bail committed him to prison to answer.

The same night officers Cole and Fleck proceeded to an "old clos" shop, kept by a German Jew named Rudolph Feltman, in Walnut street, near Short, where they found the awning, a large quantity of coffee, and other articles, which were identified by Messrs. Dock & Co. as their property. Upon this discovery a warrant was procured and Feltman arrested and confined in prison, on a charge of receiving stolen goods. A subsequent search of Feltman's shop and residence this morning led to the discovery of an additional large quantity of goods, consisting of bags of coffee, boxes of washing soap, &c., all of which were also identified by Messrs. Dock & Co. as their property. From all accounts, Feltman appears to have done a thriving business in the "receiving" ness. He has our paayers for his convales line, and the officers deserve great credit for thus suddenly terminating his career. He is true, is not a novice in this illegal trade. The thief. Ward, has been in the employ of C. Thieme, of Cincinnati, claims that it can be Messrs. course was not the case, as that firm not only paid him his wages regularly, but upon their misnomer in this locality-a something to be final settlement, made him a present of three dollars-a generosity, as we have shown, alaltogether misplaced.

It is said the police have been informed of one or two more establishments in the city where goods have been sold by the thief Ward. Since writing the above, we learn that officers Cole and Fleck, acting under the orders of Assistant Quarter Master Wilson, this after noon proceeded to Feltman's shop, and took charge of about five hundred dollars worth of Government property, consisting of blankets, CAUTION .- The Wilmington Republican says shoes, overcoats and under clothing, all of

FOUND DROWNED .-- Last Saturday afternoon, as Mr. F. G. Lawch was proceeding to his flour mill, he discovered the dead body of a female, floating in the canal a short distance above the lock, about two miles east of this city. He immediately procured assistance, and succeeded in bringing the body to the bank, when Justice Beader was notified of the fact, and that officer at once proceeded to hold an inquest over the remains.

The girl was apparently about twenty years, had black hair, cut short, and notwithstanding a slight disfiguration occasioned by the lapse of time she had been in the water, her features still bore traces of former comeliness. She was respectably dressed, her outward apparal consisting of a dark colored calico frock, sack, blue stockings and gaiter boots. There was no mark on either article of her dress, or nothing found on her person that could lead to her identity, and the supposition is that she was one of that class of society so pathetically spoken of by Hood --- the skin, it was the opinion of some gentlemen on the jury that the body had been said to hail from Philadelphia, and if report be in the water about a week. The jury returned a verdict of death by drowning, after which the body was enclosed in a coffin and taken to the poor house for interment.

PENNSYLVANIANS AT PITTSBURG LANDING-Splendid Bayonet Charge.—It is now known positively that at least one regiment from the old Keystone State participated at the bloody battle of Pittsburg Landing. The honor of this distinction belongs to the 77th Pennsylvania, Col. Stambaugh, formerly Col. of the 2d Pennsylvania, in the three months service, to which the State Capitol Guard of this city was attached. The 77th regiment was attached to McCook's division, and played a most conspicuous part in the fight. The brigade left their camp on Sunday morning, and marched twenty three miles to the scene of the engagement, over the most horrible roads, arriving at Savannah about nine P. M. The battle field was reached that night, and the men lay down in the mud and rain until daylight, when they joined in an attack on the enemy, which was conducted in gallant style. The 77th made a brilliant bayonet charge, and covered itself with glory. The entire division complimented them for their steadiness and bravery, and the dashing manner in which the charge was executed. McCook's division, it is stated. was badly cut up, but the 77th, though in the thickest of the fight, had but five killed and ten wounded. A correspondent gives a de-There is a popular superstition that a cat, if al- scription of the sickening spectacle which the or grossly cheated. The Republican recommends lowed the opportunity, will "suck the breath battle field presented after the fight. Hun-
