PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL. [FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.] MAY 19, 1860.—Ellen S., et. 28, single, fever was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rheumatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last Saturday, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, felt cold, but had no decided chill. Two days later her ankles began to swell, which was followed by the hands, and the joints and of the hands. She has now dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism, a man propylamine. Dr. A. W. C. has used it in a number of cases, and in the most difficult terms, having derived great benefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specific; but this comes to me recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER! MAY 25, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was a then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night). The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, being free from pain. The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now free from swelling, and she is able to walk as well as usual. Thus far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but gentlemen, we must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

Dr. J. B. S. Channing, of New York City, writes: "I most cheerfully comply with the request of your agent in saying I have found your SARSAPARILLA a most excellent alternative in the numerous complaints to which we are exposed, especially in Female Diseases of the Scrofulous character. I have cured many inveterate cases of Leucorrhoea by its use, and in several cases of Uterine Ulceration, Female Dropsy, &c. I have cured many cases of Scrofulous eruptions, such as Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Dropsy, &c. I have cured many cases of Scrofulous eruptions, such as Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Dropsy, &c. THREE DAYS LATER!! MAY 28, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine before you as our clinic of May 19th, which I then called a typical case, and which I was remarking was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily taken in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have never seen so soon to health as this man has been, and without being prepared to decide positively as to the value of the remedy we have used, I feel bound to state that in the case of this patient, the Chloride of Propylamine, the patients have regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.
