HARRISBURG, PA. Thursday Afternoon, May 30, 1862.

MISS A. M. STODDARD will open, Thursday, May 1, Spring and Summer Millinery. [29.8to

Col. Geary has sent to the State Department a secession rag purporting to be a flag, which he captured at the battle of Sandy Hook. It hangs on the walls of the Executive Chamber, an object of the scorn and derision of the visitors to those apartments, and is certainly a miserable specimen of workmanship, treason and cowardice.

WHERE THE FIRE WAS. -The light seen in the horizon east of this city last Tuesday night, and which occasioned an alarm of fire, was caused by the burning of a barn belonging to Mr. Brinser, about two miles below Middletown, on the Lancaster turnpike. The barn was totally destroyed with all its contents, consisting of two horses, two colts, several cattle, and a large quantity of grain.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.-A young man an apprentice to one of our principal bakers, left his home in this city yesterday afternoon under very suspicious circumstances. He was last seen by a female acquaintance on the Harrisburg bridge, going in the direction of Cumberland county, and, in reply to a question she asked him, he bid her "good-bye," adding that she "would never see him again." He has not been heard of since.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WARE.-Mr. B. J. Harris, No. 112 Market street, has one of the most complete tin and sheet iron were manufacturing establishments in the city. Being a master mechanic himself he personally superintends the business of his establishment, and nothing is permitted to leave his manufactory unless it is A No. 1. His stock of tin ware and stoves is large, and sold at prices to suit the times. Give him a call.

THE PORTRAIT OF GOVERNOR ANDREW G. CUR-TIN has been added to the collection of the portraits of the Executives of Pennsylvania, which grace the walls in the reception apartment of the Executive Chambers. The portrait of Gov. Curtin was painted by Mr. J. Wilson, of Huntingdon county, an artist with whom we have no personal acquaintance, and with whose professional labors we have no knowledge beyond our examination of this portrait. As a work of art, regarding it strictly, it has as few defects per and salt, and a few boile i sliced potatoes. as any of the portraits by which it is surrounded. It is a faithful counterpart of the face the artist a pound of butter, well seasoned with salt; has attempted to deliviate on canvas. It is pour this over the fish, and bake half an hour. Andrew G. Curtin in one of those genial moods It should be served as soon as done. peculiar to the impulses of the man; it is his countenance, his face, glowing with the intellect that has made the man great, and still retains for him the friends who cluster around and cheer him in his noble pursuit of official and patriotic duty. Our only objection to the picture is its beavy background. With this relieved, so as to bring out the form, and thus support the face and head, it will attract quicker attention and a speedier recognition from those not familiarly acquainted with the face of the man This is a defect which the artist should remedy for the protection of his own reputation.

While on this subject of Executive portraits we cannot refrain from alluding to a fact in connection with this collection, which has attracted many remarks from those visiting these rooms. It is, that the portrait of Governor Packer should occupy a frame so much larger than those of the other portraits. This seems as if it was an illustration of the peculiar van ity of the Ex-Governor, and has been the subject of ridicule and criticism, which can only be abated by curtailing the dimensions of the frame in question. Whoever has the control of the portraits should order this alteration immediately. As the frame in question now appears, it looks odd, as well as out of place.

THE Crops are now the theme of many prolific pens, as well as the object of the solicitude of many more anxious people. We want grain, during the coming harvest, not only to feed the people of America, but to supply the people of the world, that the aforesaid people of America may be able to pay their taxes .-Taxes! That word is daily becoming of more imposing importance, and, as we all contemplate its stern meaning, it is advisable that we should go to work as well as talk about the crops. The crops and the country both promise encouragingly to the husbandmen, and if the nation throughout all its fields indicates a harvest such as is now indicated in the suburban farms of the state capital, the yield, the coming season, will be immense beyond all calculation. Of this fact we had ample opportunity to be convinced during a short but pleasant drive last evening, through the lanes and roads leading by our largest suburban farms. We drove along the extensive estate of Gen. Cameron, where acre after acre exhibited its rich and gorgeous green of growing wheat—the same gladdening sight was presented in the broad fields of William Colder, so also in those of Joshua Elder, while the ample acres of the farms belonging respectively to Messrs. Samuel Rutherford, John P. Rutherford, A. Boyd Hamilton, Mr. Shultz and others whose names we cannot now recall, were beautiful in their garments of green. In all these farms, we noticed that science as well as industry, was assisting the influences of nature. The land indicated the presence of the practical and the careful farmer; while the fences, in their long straight lines of bristling rails, showed that there was an effort at order Edwd. Bickel, as well as productiveness. Altogether our suburban farms are well advanced and promise largely in their crops. It repays the toil of a walk or the expense of a drive to pass them in succession, and behold the seasonable evidences of their approaching productiveness. It does a David Hoover, Daniel Heckert, man's heart good to look at the land, girded A. Penrose Lusk, in its green and living vesture. We delight to gaze upon fields and farms. It matters little an assault and battery upon her husband; was to us whether we have see simple rights in a sentenced to pay the costs, and ordered into single rod, because while the earth is the Lord's, custody, until the sentence was complied and the fullness thereof, its glory and beauty with. and richness cannot be hid from our eight and our admiration.

Boots, Shoes, &c. - John F. Hummel, dealer Market street, presents his card to the public morrow, (Friday,) evening at 7½ o'clock. in this evening's TELEGRAPH. Our readers, in Punctual attendance is required. want of anything in his line of business, should drop into his establishment.

FRUIT STANDS .- A decision was had in one of the Philadelphia courts, on Monday, to the effect that the maintainance of fruit stands on the city sidewalks are a public nuisance. Several of our sidewalks are encumbered with stands of this description, and from the crowds which sometimes collect around them, they greatly inconvenience the public. The proprietors should look to this, otherwise their stands may be removed altogether.

IDENTIFIED.—The body of the man found for their own consumption. drowned in the river opposite this city, a notice of which appeared in last Monday evening's TELEGRAPH, has been identified as that of Louis Deffenbach, of Georgetown, Northumberland county. The deceased has been missing from his residence since the first of April, and as he was strongly addicted to the vice of intemperance, and had been last seen in the neighborhood of the river, the presumption was that ne had stumbled into the water and was drowned. A relative of the deceased was in town this morning, for the purpose of raising the remains and taking them to Georgetown for

Col. Frederick K. Boas.—The many personal friends, with the numerous clients of this gentleman, will be pleased to learn that he has man in the private walks of life or by the profession of which he is so noble an ornament, is more highly esteemed than Col. Boas. We rejoice, with the public, for his recovery and restoration to the usefulness and public spirited enterprise for which he has been always so distinguished.

SHAD-A-LA-CREME. -- A correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph furnishes that paper with the annexed new receipt for cooking shad: "Boil a shad sufficiently for the table. When partly cooked, remove the tail, the fins and the head. With a sharp knife separate the upper part of the fish from the back bone, and divide into pieces about three inches square, being careful to remove all the bones, and treat the rest of the fish in the same way. Put these pieces in a baking dish and season with pep-Make a sauce of a pint of cream, a quarter of

SPECIAL MEETING OF COUNCIL -- Veto Message of the Mayor .- At a special meeting of the City Council, held at the council chamber in the court house last evening, a message was received from the Mayor, returning with his objections, an ordinance authorizing the laying of water pipes in Third and Cumberland streets. After the message was read,

On the question, "Shall the ordinance pass, notwithstanding the objections of the Mayor?'

nored" as frivilous, and for want of testimony to support the charges therein set forth. They report that they have visited the county ail and found the affairs in good order, so far at least, as they came to their knowledge. They have approved of the report of the viewers appointed by the Court, on the petition of sundry inhabitants of Washington township, for a bridge over Wiconissco creek, near the residence of John Cooper, and recommend the county commissioners to build the same. The Grand Jury beg leave to present that many of the soldiers now in the service of their country have left their families in destitute circumstances; many left their homes with the understanding that their wives and children would be cared for in their absence. We therefore recommend that the county commissioners appropriate a sum sufficient, in their judgment to relieve the wants of those families who stand in need of support.

They further present that the stream of water passing over the turnpike leading from Harris-burg to Middletown, near Mish's property, now in the lower part of the city of Harris readers the road nearly impassible. > CULTIVATE SORGHUM. - Would it not be advisable for our farmers to cultivate the Chinese sugar cane extensively this season? One acre of this cane will yield from seventy to two hundred gallons of molasses, according to the skill in making it. The seeds of the same bring a high price, and the stalks are worth ten dollars per ton, for making paper. Every Aeholds, L part of the plant can be made available for useful purposes, and is, therefore, valuable. The Bashore, cultivation of it is no more difficult than corn. We hope that our farmers will be induced to try the experiment of raising enough at least Black, E.
