We heard many causes asigned for this-some remarking that the thenomenon was the forerunner of some conlagious disease. Others attributed it to the gitated state of the atmosphere and the densiby of the upper straita, which prevented the bry we think may be found in the immense rolumes of smoke from an extensive fire which has been raging for several days on the Blue Mountain, on the opposite side of the river, above the city. A gentleman who visited the tene of conflagration yesterday describes it as
