> BARRISBURG, PA Monday Atternoon, May 19, 1862.

SINCE THE PUBLICATION of our notice of the fire in Strawberry alley last Friday night, Mr. Albert Hummel has informed us that he had no insurance whatever on that portion of the property destroyed which belonged to him.

TARGET PRACTICE. -The first City Zouaves made a parade and target excursion to Cumberland county last Saturday. Several excellent shots were made, and the silver medalwhich is a very handsome affair, manufactured in Philadelphia expressly for the occasion-was won by private Cornelius Dehart. The Zouaves made very neat appearance.

NORTHERN CENTRAL RAILROAD.—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Northern ing of the Board of Directors of the Northern of you. My position among you is one full of Central Railroad, held last Friday evening,, in perplexities: standing between the employer Baltimore George Small, Esq., was elected to fill the office of President, made vacant by the resignation of the Hon Simon Cameron, A resolution was also passed to remove back to Baltimore the different offices of the Company, now located in this city. Nothing more of general interest transpired.

A LADY, who is compelled to attend to the marketing for a large family, writes to us in complaint respecting the condition of the streets on either side of the market houses. The streets thus alluded to are roughly macadamized, and walking over these loose and sharp stones is anything but pleasant, particularly when carrying a basket heavily laden with the good things of our markets. But we confess to our fair correspondent that we know of no remedy except a petition to council, "humbly praying, &c.," that the aforesaid rough road may be smoothed for lady pedestrians attending

AT A stated meeting of the Hope Fire Company No. 2, held in their hall on Friday evening, May 16, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, viz:

Resolved, That the hearty and unanimous thanks of this company are hereby tendered to Mr. Charles Volmer for the commendible degree of taste and skill displayed by him in the trimming and decoration of our hose carriage on which the remains of our late highly esteemed brother fireman, George W. Geety were conveyed to their final resting place. His promptitude and generosity on the occasion vill ever be held in grateful remembrance by this Company, who appreciate him as a man and a skil ui mechanic

RAILROAD ACCIDENT. - A collision occurred on the Lebanon Valley Railroad last Saturday morning, which resulted in the destruction of of great responsibility, but of extreme delicacy, considerable property. It appears that a train We appreciate fully the thought expressed in morning, which resulted in the destruction of of empty coal cars stopped on the track near Derry station to wait for some cars that had been detached. They finally arrived, after cupying similar positions, the duties to the latconsiderable delay, and the conductor of the terare entirely overlooked. Instances are rare train, thinking that he could be able to reach | indeed where he who represents the employer, the next station previous to the approach of the train which he knew to be close behind ride and swallow up the duties he owes to the him, gave orders to move, but before this could employed. Between such men and those under be done the expected train in the rear suddenly their control, there is an entire lack of that be done the expected train in the rear suddenly made its appearance, and before its progress could be checked, run into the coal train, makes labor more laborious to the workman, causing a general smash up. Some fifteen or twenty of the cars, with the locomotive "Seneca" went over the embankment, and were much shattered. The rails of the track for a considerable distance were also torn up by the accident. No person was injured.

MEETING OF THE GRAND LODGE, I. O. OF O. F .-The Grand Lodge, I. O. of O. F., of the State of Pennsylvania, will hold its annual session in the Odd Fellows' Hall, North Sixth street, below Race, Philadelphia, commencing to-morrow morning, at 9 o'clock. M. W. G. Master Smillar to the one you fill, could it be said with Strawberry alley, on Friday evening, must not be attributed to a lack of gratitude or admirative. Daniel Washburn will preside. Several questions of importance will be brought before the Grand Lodge for its action. The Grand Encampment, I. O. of O. F., of the State of Pennsylvania, commenced its annual session in the Odd Fellows' Hall, North Sixth street, below Race, in the same city, this afternnon, at 3 o'clock. M. W. G. P., William F. Rackliff, will preside. A eulogy on the life, character and services of Past Grand Sire Thomas Wilder the founder of Odd Fllowship in the United States, will be delivered by Past Grand Master Robert A. Lamberton, of Harrisburg, on Wednesday evening, at the Musical Fund Hall .-The proceeds will be appropriated to the military hospitals of Philadelphia.

Each of the Lodges and Encampments in this city will be represented-Dr. W. Barr representing No. 68.

Good Sale .- On Monday last, Captain E. C. Wilson, Assistant Quartermaster of Volunteers, stationed at Harrisburg, sold at this place, sixty head of horses, condemned as unfit for service; which, considering the quality of the animals and the price realized, has done him much credit; many of them having brought from $100 to $125. By this transaction, as well as in numerous other iostances, Capt. Wilson has qualifications, and that he is "the right man in the right place." - Cumberland Valley Journal.

We fully endorse every word of the above from our Cumberland Valley cotemporary, the more so because we believe the compliment to have been conferred in no "Jehu" spirit, or "controlling" desire to win a "pass" from Gen. Wilson for some spavined "hack" or ringboned "courser." The Quartermaster in this locality understands how to distinguish between a real compliment and a newly fledged "jockey's" fulsome praise; and hence Gen. Wilson cannot occasion. be balted by any paragraph bearing on its face a desire to hoodwink.

TELEGRAPH office, together with the proprietor inscription: and a few personal friends, convened at Breitinger's Restaurant, in Market street, about nine o'clock last Saturday night, upon the invitation of Mr. Wm. H. H. Sieg, superintendent of the office, for the purpose of joining with him in celebrating his birthday.

When the company had assembled in the dining saloon, Mr. Sieg addressed them as follows; after which "all hands" sat down to a table well filled with the luxuries of the season, to which they done ample justice:

Gentlemen :- The object of our meeting to gether this evening, at my invitation, is to celebrate en important event in my career, and which I cannot let go by without some demonstration. This is my twenty fifth birth-day; and at this time it seemed proper for me, as our labors on the Record are rapidly drawing city were at half mast to-day, as a token of respect to the memory of Brigadier General might have a jovial hour or two together before we separate I thank you for your presence here this evening; and it gives me great pleasure to have you assembled around this festive board. There is one pleasant countenance absent-our mutual friend PORTER-who but two short weeks ago was among us, attending to his post of duty; to-day he is beneath the sod. His name, as I mention it, quite unmans me. He was a kind hearted man, and one beloved by all who knew him. Our combined labors during the winter have been crowned with success in every department; everything has passed off pleasantly, leaving no action on my part to regret, and none on yours, I trust, to complain of. You have done your parts well—even more than was expected and the employee, I owe certain duties to both.

I have worked in almost every branch of the utmost capacity. During six years' connection with the TRLEGRAPH office, I must admit that this is the happiest hour that I have spent among my fellow-craftsmen. May long lite, peace and prosperity attend vou.

After the cloth was removed, Mr. C. G. Williams, of Tioga county, a compositor in the office, rose from his seat, and, approaching Mr. Sieg, addressed him as follows:

Some weeks since, the employees of the Tel-

EGRAPS Office determined, before the close of the present business season, to present you with a token of their esteem for you as a man, and their high appreciation of your fitness for the position you occupy in the establishment in which they are employed. It was thought this would be the most appropriate occasion that would present itself previous to the departure of some of them for their homes, and therefore this time was fixed upon, and the pleasant duty of making the presentation was assigned to me. The testimonial I am about to present you will be but a mute reminder of this scene, and those who feel pride and pleasure in participating in t, and it is therefore expected of me to give audible expression to the sentiments of which that is only the silent symbol. Some of these interested in this presentation have known you long and well; with others, the acquaintance is of more recent date; but among them all there is no difference of feeling or opinion. Those who have long labored under your direc-tion and control, and those who have been ander your superintendence only during the past winter—a winter of severe toil for you and for them-alike entertain those sentiments of respect and esteem which I am expected to ex press to you. As you intimated in your remarks at the time we gathered around this festive board, the position you occupy is not only one your remark, that you stand between the employer and the employed, owing duties to each and we feel, also, that with too many men ocdoes not not allow his interest in a busines thus committed to his hands, completely to overfeeling which begets confidence and kindness, and care more oppressive to the Foreman. It is not my purpose, nor indeed would it be appropriate for me, to enter upon the subject which this thought suggests—that subject which is as old as civilization, and yet as new as today, and that will be new in all time to come -the relative rights and duties between capital and labor, between the employer and the employed; and I allude to it only as affording me an opportunity to say what every one pre-sent feels to be true, that, while you have been watchful over the interests, and vigilant in the discharge of your duties to our common and respected employer, you have not been unmindthe employer nor the employed had just cause tion for their great services. My age and alfor complaint; of few men could it be said, most constant indisposition must afford the they never used the power thus given them to make unreasonable demands or impose upnetardy acknowledgement of their most valuable cessary burdens. Yet such, sir, we feel to be labors; and yet neither age or sickness can ditrue of you, and even more; for we have received at your hands that kindness and considment which has literally grown strong and beeration which fosters friendship, and awakens come incalculably efficient under my own eyes a feeling that will be slow to depart. Such is the nature of the sentiments I have been directed to convey to you in connection with this more substantial expression of esteem. In the Department; while the service thus rendered name of the employees of the Telegraph office I present you this chain, and in their name I vidually, of Harrisburg.

And here, upon this pleasant occasion, while we are sharing your generous hospitality—an evidence of your kindly eeling—permit me to add that all those in whose behalf I am speaking, feel for you, aside from that respect which has grown out of their business relations, strong personal friendship; and in coming years, as that chain shall recall to your mind this scene, and those here assembled, you may feel assured that wherever they may be wandering, they will carry with them pleasant recollections of their association with you. In conclusion, I have to express the sin-may attend you and yours through life. Mr. Sieg, taken entirely by surprise, replied as follows: Mr. WILLIAMS :- You have taken me quite by surprise—unprepared to say anything; but I bow in submission, and accept this testi-monial from you on behalf of the company assembled, thanking you for your kindness and promising to keep you all in grateful remembrance. I cannot say more. My heart is too full to speak—my feelings beyond expression; but with the hope that when the sight of this chain calls me to reflect over this evening's transaction, I may be able to call to recollection. the actions which prompted this presentation, and that this scene may never be blotted from my memory, gentlemen, I thank you, and beg to be excused for not saying more on this > Pennsylvania Telegraph Employees to WM H. H. SIEG.

The motives which prompted the employees in thus testifying their regards for Mr. Sieg as a man, were as honorable to their feelings as it was complimentary to him. The integrity which has marked his intercourse with them, and the gentlemanly deportment which has always characterized his manners, appealed to the best instincts of their nature, and threw a radience over the occasion that will make it live in the recipient's memory like a bright spot amid a waste of dreary recollections.

After the presentation ceremonies, in response to a toast, Mr. George Bergner, proprietor of the TELEGRAPH, expressed his real gratification for the di-play before him. He regarded it as a manifestation which in part approved of his own confidence in the man whom they met to honor. It done his heart good to see such an assemblage of printers. Twenty five years ago he had come to this city as poor a journeyago he had come to this city as poor a journey-man printer as had ever sought employment, with only a single Spanish dollar in his pocket, and not a single personal acquaintance in Harrisburg. He obtained the employment he sought, and then commenced, his struggles with the world, with business and for honorable success. There was not a man at the table but had the same opportunity, if not even more propitious opportunity to labor, as was vouchsafed to himself. There was not a journeyman printer present but who had equal encouragement to persevere, so that no man need complain, if in the race of life he is left behind, while the efforts of those who labor with zeal and integrity are crowned with success. Mr. Bargear then paid a high compli-I have worked in almost every branch of the business, and can appreciate the position of a "jour" to his employers. He entrusted to Mr. S. the entire direction of the business of his establishment; he had ever found him faithful, and now that those employed under the control of Mr. S. also expressed this confidence, he had a double reason to believe that he (Mr. S.) was diligent and impartial in the discharge of his duties He trusted tout this occasion might be productive of the most lasting friendships; and that as they separated to-night, some still to remain in his establishment as employees, others to go nence, as the time of their employment ended, to other and distant portions of the State, he six-inch cast iron water pipe, with the necessary repeated, he trusted that the blessings of God cross-branches stop cocks and fire-plugs, in might rest upon each individual now present. FIRE. -The alarm of fire about nine o'clock last Saturday night, was occasioned by the burning of a portion of the hog pens belonging ages that may be sustained during the progress to the distillery of Mr. Leiby, on the Pennsylvania railroad, just outside of the southern limits of the city. The fire apparatus of the city was early on the ground, and succeeded in arresting the progress of the flames before much damage was done. The distillery has not been in operation for some time, and of course the hog pens were unoccupied. The fire js supposed Dick & Fitzgerald, New York City.-One of the mere cleverness of Mrs. Wood, as a writer, there can be no dispute. But she is more than clever. She has intensity, force and passion, and draws each judividual character clearly. The volume before us combines the peculiarities and merits of her style, in the most perfect way. The characters of Lauretta Carnafix Lady Pope are distinct and vivid, and the plotting of the former is finely made out. The interest of the story is maintained throughout consistently, and the whole book, without and in its place a jealousy and suspicion that being of the sensation school, gives a strong sensation to the most blass. One thing can be said of the story, and of another, "Moat Grange." which follows it, that a father may let his youngest daughter read each without fear. We wish as much could be said of a good many other novels. For sale at BERGNER's Cheap Book Store.

FOR CONGRESSMAN-THEODORE ADAMS.-The selection of a person properly qualified to represent this congressional district in our national legislature is at all times no ordinary task, and especially so now through the disorganized condition of our country. While his watchful care will be taxed in securing the immediate interests of the district, more enlarged views of national rights must ere long comu.and his prudent action, in the adjustment of the affairs of our unhappy country. Our choice must then be influenced for the general good, and in this connection, we mention the name of Theo-dore Adams, who is favorably known and enti-tled to the confidence of his fellow-citizens; but In thinking of a congressman, do not forget the cheap dry goods house of Urich and Bowman.
