Medical. DR. JOHNSON'S LOCK HOSPITAL!

DR. JOHNSON HAS discovered the most certain, speedy and efficient remedy in the world for DISEASES OF IMPURITUDE.

Weakness of the back or limbs, Strictures, Affections of the kidneys and bladder, Involuntary discharges, Impotency, General Debility, Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Insanity, Low Spirits, Confusion of Ideas, Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling, Swellings, Dimness of Sight or Blindness, Diseases of the Head, Throat, Nose or Skin, Affections of the Liver, Lungs, Stomach or Bowels—those terrible and distressing symptoms of the Solitary Habits of Youth—those obscure and solitary practices more fatal to their victims than the most violent poisons.

Young Men. Specially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of Young Men of the most excellent talents and brilliant intellects.

Marriage. Married Persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, before they contract physical weakness, organic debility, deformities, etc., speedily cured.

Organic Weakness. Immediately Cured, and full vigor restored. This distressing Affection—which renders life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victim of the Solitary Habits of Youth.

Office, No. 7 South Frederick Street.

A Cure Warranted in Two Days. No Mercury or Nauseous Drugs.

Dr. Johnson, Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States.

Take Particular Notice. Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by impure indulgence and solitary habits, which remain both body and mind, uniting them for either business, study, society or marriage.

Young Men. Who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone, a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body.

Disease of Impuritude. When the mis-guided vanity of pleasure finds that it has imbued the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery, deters him from applying to those who can cure him, and he is left to the mercies of a friendless and deluding disease.

Strangers. Trust not your lives, or health, to the care of the many Unlearned and Worthless Pretenders, destitute of Knowledge, name or character, who copy Dr. Johnson's advertisement, or style themselves in the newspapers, Physicians, or Physicians in waiting.

Indorsement of the Press. The most numerous and important Surgical operations performed by Dr. Johnson, witnessed by the reporters of the "Sun," "Tribune," and many other papers, notices of which have appeared again and again before the public, besides his standing as a gentleman of character and responsibility, is a sufficient guarantee to the afflicted.

THE WOUNDED PENNSYLVANIANS. PENNSYLVANIANS WOUNDED.

Messrs. Editors.—In order that the many friends and relatives of soldiers attached to Col. Knipe's regiment, who reside in the vicinity of this city, may know what the Governor is doing in regard to the relief of our wounded, I herewith enclose you a copy of Special Order.

SPECIAL ORDER NO. 62.

I, Major O. W. Sees, accompanied by two Surgeons from Camp Curtin, is ordered to proceed to the city of Frederick, Maryland, or to any point where the wounded may be found, on the line of retreat, of Major Gen. Banks, from Stratburg, Virginia, and bring them to the city of Harrisburg, where hospitals, surgeons and nurses will be prepared to receive them.

Officers in command are respectfully requested to surrender to Major Sees all wounded soldiers of Pennsylvania regiments, that they may be brought to Harrisburg, and provision made for their comfort, in accordance with arrangements made with the authorities at Washington.

By order of A. G. CURTIN, Governor & Commander-in-Chief. A. L. RUSSELL, Adjutant-General, Pa.

The Retreat from Strasburg.

THE BATTLE AT WINCHESTER. GALLANTRY OF COLONEL JOSEPH F. KNIFE. PENNSYLVANIA VALOR VINDICATED.

The account published in relation to the retreat from Strasburg, by the column under command of Gen. Banks, and of the battle at Winchester, all agree in according to the 40th Pennsylvania regiment, Col. Joseph Knipe, the warmest and the fullest praise. A correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer gives a very full account of the stirring events of that retreat, from which we make such extracts as will be of interest to our readers.

The actions of this regiment are spoken of in the highest terms. Information having been received of the attack at Front Royal, an order was given to the regiment, at three o'clock on Saturday morning, to march immediately for the banks of a small stream called Tom's Brook, about six miles southwest of Strasburg.

The order was immediately obeyed. The regiment, without breakfast, the march started on their march. The Forty-sixth, being the right of Acting Brigadier-General Donnelly's brigade, moved in advance, followed by the Twenty-eighth New York, Lieutenant-Colonel Brown, (Colonel Donnelly acting as brigadier), and the Fifth Connecticut, Lieut. Col. Chapman. (The colonel of this regiment, Col. Ferry, is acting as brigadier-general of Gen. Shields' command.)

The brigade and regimental trains, in the meantime remained at a point about four miles south of Strasburg, for the purpose of protecting the removal of a large quantity of commissary's stores. Finding it impossible to remove all the stores, they were left, and the balance were prudently set fire to and destroyed. When the command reached Middletown, six miles this side of Strasburg, the rebel cavalry came out from the woods on the side of the road and attacked the train in front. A stampede took place among the teams, and while many wagons were upset in turning about, others were set fire to and burned. Among the wagons were several belonging to sutlers and refugees.

The Forty-sixth immediately, by companies, placed their knapsacks, blankets, and everything that would interfere with their movements, upon the roadside, loaded at will, and forwarded at double quick up the turnpike as far as Newtown, about four miles distant, driving the rebel cavalry ahead until they reached the village, where the rebels took to the woods to the right. One section of a New York battery, under Lieutenant Woodbury, followed, and taking position, opened fire, driving them back. At the same time two companies of the Forty-sixth, A and K, acting as skirmishers, fired, killing two and wounding one, which they left on the field. The Forty-sixth and the battery then returned to the pike and moved on in front of the train, which was protected in the rear by the rest of the command. No rebel interference was experienced after that, and the command reached Winchester about 9 o'clock P. M. Donnelly's brigade bivouacked that night, without food or blankets, on the Front Royal road, about a mile south of the town, Gordon's brigade resting on the left of the Strasburg road. On Sunday morning before daybreak, reveille was sounded, and the troops were called to arms. During the night there had been constant and heavy firing between the pickets.

During the night, anticipating an attack early in the morning, an order was given by General Banks that Gordon's brigade should form the right wing of the defence and Donnelly's the left. About half past four fire was opened upon the left by the rebel batteries, about two miles distant, and almost immediately afterwards an attack was made on the right. Our batteries then returned the fire and a general engagement ensued. A North Carolina regiment, several of the officers of which were in citizens' dress—one captain having on a black silk hat, and who was subsequently shot in the head—made an attack on the Forty-sixth, taking them by surprise; but most gallantly they made their appearance above the hill-top and fired their murderous volley, before the rified Minies of the Forty-sixth, had played havoc with their ranks. Bayonets were then fixed, and a charge being made, the traitors were driven from behind a stone wall, where they had taken shelter. Severe fighting continued for half an hour—the firing on both sides being desperate and the loss severe. Severe firing was also continued by the other two regiments of the two brigades.

Towards seven o'clock a heavy mist came on, the firing to be suspended on both sides. During this time the forty-sixth changed their position to raising ground, and when the mist disappeared, which was in about twenty minutes, firing again began. A regiment of Rebel infantry now appeared in a hollow near, but failed to advance against the skirmishers. About eight o'clock a combined attack of infantry and artillery was made by the Rebels upon Gordon's brigade—the right wing of the defence—and in such manner that a stand was impossible. About an hour before this attack, a regiment of Rebel cavalry, (Stuart's) charged down the turnpike into the town, thereby getting into our rear, and giving them an opportunity to cut off stragglers and sink and wound, and the supply trains.

The batteries of the Rebels are said to have been well manned, and shot and shell were thrown with the greatest accuracy. Their guns were mainly rified. Our own artillery also did most excellent execution. The left wing, notwithstanding the unfortunate position of the right, stood firm, General Banks adding to their determination his constant presence. About half past eight o'clock an order to retreat was given, which was made in excellent order under a heavy fire of shot and shell from the rebel battery on the hill, many of the deadly missiles going through and riddling the houses of their own friends. The Forty-sixth, in solid column and in perfect order, marched through the streets in Winchester as if on dress parade. As soon as the regiment entered the town the streets re-echoed with the shouts discharged from the windows of the dwellings. The destined attack upon our troops evidently well known by the people of Winchester, since no sooner had the battle commenced than the windows bristled with guns and pistols.

Wherever a Union soldier was seen, there a shot was fired. Not men only, but women, used with effect the deadly weapons. Accurate aim was not only taken by these female fiends, but large hand grenades were thrown by them from windows, which, as they burst, proved destructive to the lives and limbs of our gallant men. The shots were, of course, returned, and here and there were seen to suddenly disappear below the eaves.

When the Forty-sixth arrived at a point just this side of the depot, they received a volley from a regiment of Louisiana Tigers, stationed some two hundred yards distant, but did not return the fire, from prudential motives. The retreat was then continued, Gordon's brigade being about half a mile in advance on the left, and the remainder of Donnelly's about a mile to the right, the rebel battery which had been previously engaged against our right having positioned in the earthworks made by Johnston last summer, on the top of the hill, shelling our men as they moved forward.

About six miles this side of Winchester a very heavy fog came on, and the word was passed that reinforcements from General Dix were within a short distance. Heavy clouds were given, and the spirits of all were revived. The rebels themselves, who were following about two miles behind, were surprised and alarmed and came to a sudden halt. The reinforcements, however, did not come, and the retreat was recommenced, the rebels following and shelling until within three miles of Martinsburg. About three o'clock on Sunday afternoon the command reached Martinsburg, and passing immediately through, marched up the pike to the Potomac, opposite Williamsport. The troops bivouacked on the Virginia shore that night, and on Monday crossed over in a ferry boat and two boats formerly used for a pontoon bridge.

The Forty-sixth is now encamped one mile from Williamsport, on the St. James College road. The men are naturally much fatigued, but are anxious and determined to return at an early day to Winchester and Strasburg.

The events of Saturday and Sunday will long be remembered by General Banks' command. Not only did they march sixty-five miles in five or six days, without anything to eat save what could be picked up by the roadside, but they fought one severe battle and two engagements.

To specify individual acts of gallantry and bravery would be invidious, where all fought so well. The field officers of the Forty-sixth were ever in the thickest of the fray and won everlasting praise. Col. Knipe received a slight flesh wound in the shoulder, and his right pistol holster was the recipient of a ball which, glancing, passed immediately under the leg of the gallant rider. Lieut. Col. Selridge made a narrow escape, a shell bursting in front of his horse, causing the animal to fall, slightly bruising Colonel's leg.

XXXVIIth Congress—First Session, SENATE. WASHINGTON, May 30.

Mr. TRUMBULL, (Ill.) did not see any necessity for extra haste in passing the tax bill. This session of Congress was not bound to adjourn at any particular time, and he did not think Congress ought to adjourn in the present condition of things, and leave the post of duty. He was opposed to any attempt to push the bill through by night sessions.

Mr. DIXON, (Conn.) spoke in favor of early action on the tax bill. Mr. SIMMONS moved to amend the tax on whisky so as to make it twenty-five cents until July, and after that thirty-five cents per gallon.

Mr. SHERMAN opposed this amendment as being too high a tax on one article and operating injuriously on the agricultural interests. Mr. HARRIS (New York) said that he would assume that the expenditure would go on and the debt become one thousand million, this was certainly enough to satisfy any body—he thought this bill was calculated to raise more than was actually needed to pay the current expenses of the Government, besides an interest on the debt, and create an ample sinking fund—he was willing to vote every dollar that was necessary, but no more—he would not add to the already heavy load on the people.

The discussion was continued by Messrs. CHANDLER and McDUGGAL, (Cal.) The latter speaking at length upon the merits of the bill, contending for the superiority of the substitute offered by him, which raised sufficient revenue and taxed only those things which were legally subject to taxation, while the bill from the House taxed everything which should be encouraged, and by the great mass machinery and detail renders itself impracticable.

Mr. SIMMONS' amendment was rejected—yeas 15, nays 21. Without further action the Senate adjourned.

WAR DEPARTMENT. WASHINGTON, May 30. The following dispatches were received at the War Department this afternoon:

From Gen. Halleck's Army. To Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War. Gen. Pope's heavy batteries opened upon the enemy's entrenchments yesterday about 10 o'clock, and soon drove the rebels from their advanced batteries.

Maj. Gen. W. T. Sherman established another heavy battery yesterday afternoon within one thousand yards of their works, and skirmishing parties advanced at daybreak this morning.

Three of our divisions are already in the enemy's advanced works, about three quarters of a mile of Corinth, which is in flames. The enemy has fallen back of the Mobile railroad.

[Signed] H. W. HALLECK, Major General.

From Gen. Halleck's Army. To Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War. Conflicting accounts as to the enemy's movements, and they are believed to be in strong force on the left flank, some four or five miles from Corinth, near the Mobile and Ohio railroads.
