This distressing Alection—which renders I lie miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improser indulacences. Young persons are too apt to commit excerses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. New, who that understands the subject will pretend to deapy that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived the pleusures of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms to both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged, the Physical and Mental Functions Weakened, loss of Procreative Power, Nervicus Irratibility, Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Consumption, Decay and Peath.

Dr. Johnson,
Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and alsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with rights to the head and ears when asleep, great near-ousness, being alarmed at sudden counds, bestitutess, with frequent blushing attended sometimes with derangement of mind were cured immediately.

were cured immediately.

Take Particular NoticeDr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper modulee, ce and solvary habits, which roin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business, study, society or marriage.

These are some of the sad and melancholly effects produced by early bablist of youth, viz: Weakness of the Bock and Limus, Paios in the Head, Dinness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsy, Nervous Irratibility, Deraugement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption, so the evils produced.

Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their deciloing neatth, losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emacitated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of consumption.

Wanne Mon

Who have injured themselves by a certain practice induged in when alone, a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the darling of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life, by the conrequence of deviating from the path of nature and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons must, before contemplating reflect that a sound mind and body are the most nocessary requisites to promote consubial happiness. Indeed, without these, the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prospect hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholly reflection that the happiness of another becomes bighted with our own.

Disease of Imprudence.

When the mi-guided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often hapens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery, deters him from applying to those who, from euction and respectability, can alone bettend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms on this borr d disease make their appearance, such as ucceated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deatness, nodes on the half and the victim of this awdid disease become a horrid in, and the victim of this awdid disease become a horrid in, and the victim of this awdid disease become a horrid object of commiseration, till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings, by sending him to "that Urdiscovvered Country from whence no traveler returns."

It is a melancholly fact that thousands fall victims to this terrible disease, owing to the unskilluliness of ignorant pretenders, who by the use of that Deadly Poison, Mercury, ruin the constitution and make the residue o lite miserable.

FROM THE 46TH PENNA. REGIMENT.

From our Own Correspondent.]

FORTY-SIXTH REGIMENT PENNA., Vols., Williamsport, May 27, 1862. Mr. EDITOR:-The confusion incident to the ecent stirring events through which we have passed, and the time required in securing the safe passage of our companies across the Poto-mac, and again locating in camp, prevented me from giving you an earlier account of our late ngagement. On Saturday morning we were awakened at three o'clock with orders to march at once, without the usual preparatory order—"cook rations," and on reaching the turnpike (being encamped about a mile from it on Tom's brook six miles from Strasburg,) were greatly sur-drised to find one section of Hampton's battery in position, the cavalry men destroying their forage, and every premonition of an immediat attack. On enquiry we ascertained that large body of troops under command of Jack-son, were rapidly advancing upon us, and that a heavy force under Ewell had the day previous completely routed our small force at Front Royal, and were moving on to Winchester with

Our brigade, consisting of the Twenty-eighth New York, Fifth Connecticut and Forty-sixth Pennsylvania—were joined at Strasburg by the third brigade, a small force of cavalry under command of General Hatch, and sixteen pieces of artillery, six of which were smooth bore guns (cally efficient in close action,) making the whole of General Banks' command, not exceeding 4,000 effective men, and moved toward Winchester. Our train consisting of about five hundred wagons was sent in front, and on reaching Middleton were attacked by cavalry and driven back, many of the teamsters having left their wagons—in fact it was a regular stampede. The Fortysixth being in advance was immediately ordered to unsling knapsacks, rid themselves of every incumbrance. load at will, and move down th pike at a double quick, which they did with a will, driving the rebels before us over four miles, to the village of Newtown, and following them about a mile to the right of the road killing two, wounding one and taking one prisoner. One section of a New York battery under command of Lieutenant Woodbury, then shelled them over three_miles, our regiment supporting the battery. We then returned to the pike, ahead of the train, reaching Win-chester about nine o'clock at night without any further annoyance, and bivouaced on the Front Royal pike, nearly a mile from town, having marched twenty-seven miles, without anything to eat, and having no blankets nor overcoats, we built large fires and passed a sleepless night. Revellie beat next morning before daylight the regiment fell into line under arms, and as there had been constant and heavy firing among the pickets close in front all night we anticipating an attack, and determined to make a stand. Gen: Gordan's, the Third Brigade forming the right wing of our defence, and Col. Donnelly's, the Third Brigade, the left. About 4½ o'clock the rebels opened fire upon the left wing from a battery of rifled pieces some two miles distant, and a simultaneous attack was made upon the right. Our regiment immediately changed position to escape the range of their shell, which were thrown with wonderful accuracy making and thrown with wonderful accuracy, making sad havoc in our ranks, and had just taken a new position when a terrible volley was poured in upon us from a stone fence not fifty yards off, takng us completely by surprise. We, however, answered the fire gallantly—and though volley after volley was poured into their ranks with fearful effect, the Fifth Connecticut upon our left, the meanwhile giving them a galling cross fire, they still doggedly maintained their posi-tion. Finding all other attempts to dislodge them useless, a bayonet charge was resolved upon. Our boys came up to the work beautibout one hundred of his regiment, the Sixteenth North Carolina, escaped. The firing had been so rapid and severe that the smoke upon the battle field completely sus-pended hostilities on each side about twenty minutes, during which our regiment again changed position. As the smoke cleared away the sun rose bright and beautiful, and heavy firing from artillery began on both sides. Their uns were well managed, and our batteries, though few in number, responded gallantly.

During this a heavy engagement was in progress on the right, which we could plainly see, and after a terrible contest, the right wing were compelled, by overwhelming numbers to retreat, the rebels pursuing and yelling like demons. The left wing, however, stood firm until a retreat was commanded, and fell back in perfect order, moving through the town amid the fire of round shot and shell—the deadly missiles falling all around us, and the rattle of musketry from windows of houses in which soldiers or citizens were concealed. The women also aided by throwing into our ranks hand grenades, and anything which would prove injurious. On reaching the end of town we met on our left a regiment of "Louisiana Tigers," who had pursued our right wing; but such was the order in which our regiment moved that they feared to advance too closely, and contented themselves with giving us a random volley or so, which from prudential motives we did not return.

from a prisoner taken we ascertained that only

Their batteries and cavalry then followed the retreat of both wings, nineteen miles, to within three miles of Martinsburg, shelling us all the way, and picking up all wounded or stragglers who, through fatigue, were forced to fall behind. At Martinsburg our batteries checked their advance, and the whole force reached the shore of the Potomac, opposite Williamsport, by twelve o'clock on Sunday night, having marched from three o'clock on Satur-day morning, a distance of over sixty miles, had two skirmishes and one severe engagement, without having closed our eyes in sleep, or had one mouthful to

Many instances of personal daring come under our notice, but where all were so brave contending with a force of not four thousand against over twenty thousand, and making so successful a retreat, it would be invidious to particularise.
