Cows THERE AND HERE. - We agree with s otemporary, that in a rural scene the presence of the cow is almost a necessity to its perfecon. The poet's or painter's fancy never revels in country pictures without the rippling tream, the green pastures and the patient kine owing on the hill side or in the meadow. Inere seems to be a natural necessity for the acteal animal to perfect rural imaginings or realities. No one can question that there she is "the right individual in the right place." But she is not always kept there. There are people who so greatly admire her presence that they insist on her presence as an adornment to urban life; and we consequently see her (not singularly, but in startling plurality,) Perambulating our streets and pavements with ecome a grand pasture field for dairy men; that the filth of cattle should interfere with Pedestrians through our town; that hungry ven-footed creatures should be despoiling our shade trees and breaking down our fences, are 'e commend the matter to our "city fathers,"

"IBON CLADS" FORTY-EIGHT YNAMS AGO. - The ime since that there had been discovered in the U. S. Patent Office, at Washington, the speci fications and drawings of an invention made forty-right years ago, by Thomas Gregg, of tolfeatures, was a fac simile of the famous rebel steamer Merrimac.

Through the kindness of Rev. Joseph Gregg, of the Ridge Avenue Methodist Mission Church, of this city, who is a son of the inventor, we re now enabled to lay before the public the specification of the patent, together with a short plography of his father's life. The fact of this important invention lying latent for so many years, is a striking proof of the necessity of expatents:

The following are the Letters Patent, con-Thomas Gregg himself, of his ball-proof vessel, ind in her concave stern : the bow to the stern, except a small distance Police—Mayor's Office—An individual wearing be reversed to propel her either way; said power is connected to upright levers to make horizontal strokes alternately. The elevation of her timbers and gearing will be proportioned by her keel and tunnage.

The record of the above Letters Patent was signed by James Madison, attested by James Monroe. Secretary of State, and certified by Richard Rust, Attorney General.

Thomas Gregg was born about the year 1776. in Newcastle county, State of Delaware, on the west aide of the Brandywine, near Messrs, Duponts' powder works. The ground on which the mills stand was bought by Mr. Dupont from home that while out with his company recently Mr. Gregg's fore fathers. During the war of 1812 he invented his ironclad, ball-proof, naval vessel. Had it patented March 19, 1814.

Thomas Gregg was also the first to invent and have a patent for smelting iron with bituminous coal, to test which he spent some thousands of dollars, which invention was very satisfactory, not only to himself, but to all who witnessed the wonderful discovery. He also invented a double draught furnace; and just before his death he had invented a plan to keep steam boat boilers from exploding. Thus we see that Mr. Gregg spent the most of his life in improvements. It is satisfactorily proven that he was the first man who invented and built a blast furnace Bilm of a Thousand Flowers," and you his patent issued, and was about completing his second furnace on a large scale, (having to suspend his work for the want of means,) an iron master in England obtained by some means a copy of his model, and had a furnace in blast before he could finish his. Therefore Great Britain claims the invention when there is proof that Gregg had his furnace patented years before John Bull's sons ever thought of smelting iron ore with coal.

I have for several years been intimately acquainted with the key. Thomas W. Cattell. Ho has had charge of two of my sons, and I can safely say I have never known any one in whose fidelity and devotion to has pupils; I have equal confidence. He is a good scholar, and a successful leacher. I know no one who has a greater facility in gaining the love of his scholars or who elects over them a better influence

I am aware of the responsibility in specking in such torms of commendation of a teacher; but I am satisfied i am doing nothing but simple just, to to an excellent man, in using the language which I have here employed a teacher, both in his spiness to give listruction, and his tast in the administration of discipline. I have had two suns under his care, an i from the most careful observation I am free to recommend the riggehill school as one of safe and thorough instruction.
