THE UNION—THE CONSTITUTION—AND THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAW.

HARBISBURG, PA.

Saturday Afternoon, June 28, 1862.

THE EVENING EXPRESS. Lancaster, exposes one of the mean tricks on the part of the Patriot which is in the babit of printing extracts, purcoming in competition with white labor. The Patrio recently credited one of these extracts to the Lancaster Patriot, but no such a newspaper is published in that city, and the only other locality named "Lancaster" is in Ohio, where, the Express declares, there is no journal with the title of Patriot published. These are the shifts becoming the conductors of the Patriot and Union. They must lie or fail in their most insignificant purpose; and nothing so delights the entire faction to which the Patriot belongs, as to belie all principles, parties or people opposed to negro slavery. The people of Harrisburg understand this fact; and here neither the veracity or the valor of those who control that sheet ever exceed their par value. They started a story in relation to negroes being employed to cut the grass on the capitol grounds and when the fact was elicited that those negross had been employed by a Democrat, the Patriot never had the manliness to retract the first assertion and state the plain truth.

-We leave this subject with the people here, with the reflection that journalists who will resort to the meanness of concocting falsehood, and crediting them to mythical newspapers, for the purpose of deceiving the public, are among the most contemptible of all liars, because too cowardly to father their own lies.

THE VIGOR AND EFFECTIVENESS OF THE ARMY we are now led to expect, will be practically increased, so that victory may follow fighting in a manner to keep up the spirits of the brave boys now under arms, and end the war before the warm weather of the south has been able to breed its usual series of diseases so fatal to northern men. We are assured that the visit of President Lincoln to West Point, and his interview with Gen. Scott, was part of the pro gramme adopted to ensure speedy results from the past and present operations of the armies of the Republic. The consolidation of the armies in the Shenandoah valley took place immediwest Point; now we are informed that Gen.
Scott has been summoned to Washington, and that important changes in other commands will soon follow, all having in view an immediate elosing of the campaign, by the prompt reduction of the rebel capital and overthrow of the rebel capital and overthrow of the rebel capital and overthrow of the recent in that abused class, the radicals.

Passage of the payment of the recent military operations in that vicinity. Ever ready and ever prompt, dollars for transportation. Passage of the payment of the payment of the payment of the payment of t ately after the return of the President from rebel army. These movements and consolidation of armies are no doubt the result of the deliberation and conviction of the President. They prove that President Lincoln has determined to bring the crisis to an end, by such a President, that the monstrous plans of a Demoon the part of the rebels has come to our know- Bailey, an uncompromising Democratic memledge. On the 15th inst., the citizens of Lew- ber of Congress, recently made a most powerisburg, Greenbrier county, Va., sent to Meadow ful speech. The application for aid against the causes that may have produced this rebellion—about that may have produced this rebellion—about about that may have produced this rebellion—about about the terrible and tangible fact staring us in the face, that a portion of the people of the United States have arrayed themselves in armed rebellion against their country. His presence in that locality is prolonged by the see that the laws be faithfully executed, and the serious importance of the surgical treatment to which he has been recently subjected, involving an operation at once terrible and critical in all its issues. We are happy, however, cal in all its issues. We are happy, however, to be able thus to relieve the public mind of all very or nis excellency from the shock of the treatment alluded to; and the letter we print this afternoon is another proof of the indomitable perseverence with which Governor Curtain disvotes himself to public service, even the short space of three quarters of a century? Why the south cannot be conquested to the south and the south go? The country will fall under the debt.

PRESIDENTIAL RADICALISM.

When a man boldly stands up for truth or ustice, and persists in refusing all compromises with error, he provokes what is called by obsequious lips, "the high-toned conservative sentiment of his age." Many of our doughface cotemporaries have thus stigmatized the Telegraph, but surely we have no right to complain, when the President himself falls into this spirit of radicalism, and pushes forward his own just convictions far beyond the comprehension of that "high-toned conservatism," of which we have all heard so much laudation. Thus when both Houses of Congress had passed that radical measure, the bill abolishing slavery in the District of Columbia, great was the anxiety in all conservative circles lest President Lincoln should commit the fatal error of approving the bill. Would he thus throw himself into the embrace of the radicals? His record was searched, and for a brief period hope was indulged and founded on some expression of his, years ago, that he would veto the enactment. "Seldom is such opportunity offered to man in this life," so we were told, "as is now open to President Lincoln to make himself an imperishable renown by vetoing that abolition measure."

Whatever of edium could be attached to abolition" belonged to this bill, which by its very terms abolished slavery. It had received porting to have been copied from its exchanges the support of the radical members of both in various parts of the country, deploring the Houses of Congress, and the fierce opposition influx of negroes in such localities, and setting of the conservative Democracy. Here was the forth that the freed slaves thus penetrating the orisis of Mr. Lincoln's Presidential career. By free states, north, east and west, are daily his action on this, it would be decided whether or not he would discard from his counsels the pestilent Abolitionists, and be governed by the opinions of prudent, careful, conciliatory advisers. With amazing perversity-in utter disregard of the short road to immortality and the ready guides to point it out-forgetful alike of the praise on the one hand and the wrathful censure on the other, of the conservative press, the President signed the bill and made it a law. Some gnashing of teeth there was at such reckless disregard of the feelings of "our Southern brethren;" but the act stands, and there is no slavery, by law, in the District radicals.

More recently the President has let slip an other opportunity of achieving what the conservative press would call immortal renown; but with the same heedless disregard of their wise and prudent counsels, he threw it away as a tired child casts away the toy of the hour.

A bill quite recently passed both houses of Congress declaring that there shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in the territories of the United States. Once more perennial conservatism was ready with her counsels. Would he but vero THAT! Was it not the offspring of radicalism? Had any Democratic Scribe or conservative Pharisee, in either branch, voted for the measure? Not one. Here was a vacant throne among the historic immortals for Mr. Lincoln, upon the sole condition that he should pronounce the imperative vero. Obstinate, perverse, reckless of counsel, forgetful of what was due to venerable stu pidity, the President, by his approval, made the bill a law. Other offences Mr. Lincoln has committed which are written down against him in all the records of venerable conservatism. He could have pardoned Gordon, convicted of the piracy hung. The mere subscription of the President's name would have saved that man's life.

this greatest and best form of government in a period much short of a century. Will a people who have accomplished these great purposes iu so short a time be alarmed at a debt of $1000, 000,000 incurred in the preservation of their Government? I think not, when they ascertain the share each one will be liable to pay.— In eight years more we shall have a population of forty millions and over. Divide $1,000,000,000 by this number, and we have the trifling sum of twenty-five dollars, for which each one of the people will be liable, the interest on which, per year, is $1 50. Double this amount of indebtedness, and you have the sum of fifty dollars as the liability of each one, subject to an annual interest of three dollars—not very alarming to a great and free people. The ordi-nary revenue has most generally been sufficient to defray the ordinary expenditures of the Government heretofore, and we may confidently expect that to be the case hereafter, at least as soon as we have peace, and trade and business have resumed their usual channels.

While a democrat of Mr. Bailey's stamp is thus pledging the unlimited resources of the government, dough-faces of the Patriot ilk are howling over the same subject, and attempt to induce the people to withdraw all their support from an administration that is honorably laboring to remedy the evils produced by a long series of locofoco misrule.
