THE PEOPLE'S STATE CONVENTION

THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA, who desire cordially to unite in sustaining the NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION in its patriotic efforts to suppress a sectional and unholy rebellion against the UNION OF THE REPUBLIC, and who desire to support, by every power of the Government, one hundred thousand heroic brethren in arms, braving disease and the perils of the field to preserve the Union of our Fathers, are requested to select the number of Delegates equal to the Legislative Representation of the State, at such times and in such numbers as will best respond to the spirit of this call, to meet in STATE CONVENTION at HARRISBURG, on THURSDAY, the SEVENTEENTH DAY OF JULY next, at eleven o'clock, on said day to nominate Candidates for the offices of AUDITOR GENERAL and SURVEYOR GENERAL, and to take such measures as may be deemed necessary to strengthen the Government in this season of common peril to a common country.

A. K. McCLELLAN, Chairman People's State Committee.
Geo. W. HAMMERSLEY, Secretaries
JOHN M. SULLIVAN,

HARRISBURG, PA.

Tuesday Morning, July 1, 1862.

WHEN SHALL WE HAVE RICHMOND, is a question asked daily, but not yet answered. It would be a fitting thing in the drama of the present time that the day which so long ago dawned upon a nation's birth, should again be marked white in our national calendar by the possession of the Capital which is now the focus of the lurid light that has shot forth malignant beams for so many months along the southern sky. But Providence may consult the "unites" in this matter, and the capture of Richmond may antedate or follow the celebration of Independence day. That it will be captured eventually, those who are on the ground seem to have not the slightest doubt. So disciplined are our troops, now so well retrained, such enormous quantities of artillery of the most powerful and improved description, such reliance upon the soldier's weapon—the bayonet—all combined seem to place our success beyond the limits of dispute. Probably the world has never seen in spite of the sickness which is eating into its ranks, so effective an army, possessing such remarkable efficiency in the matter of munitions and supplies, in respect to which we are overwhelmingly superior. It is a question of time, then. Let our people be assured of this and none will wait more patiently for the final blow. It may come to-day, it may not be for many days, but it will be struck, effectually and sure, when all is ready.

BETWEEN THE "Army of the Potomac" and the new "Army of Virginia," there will be a wholesome rivalry, which will help matters on, perhaps, in the Old Dominion. The corps of Fremont, Banks and McDowell were too insignificant in point of numbers to have an important influence on the campaign. They were rather a corps of observation and occupation in Western Virginia, the Valley and about Manassas. Small as were their numbers, however, the armies of Fremont and Banks have shown themselves to be composed of excellent material. The diminished and retreating forces of Banks fought well against Jackson's overwhelming numbers, and made themselves a bar to the Stonewall General's advance, which, without doubt, defeated his hopes, and the rapid march of Fremont's gallant little army across the mountains, their steady pursuit of Jackson and defeat of his forces at Cross Keys, must convince General Pope that he has the kind of men under his command with whom, to use his own words, "a brave and enterprising General may achieve almost anything." The battles of Winchester, Cross Keys and Port Republic were so well fought on our side, against an able and desperate enemy, that any General may have confidence in the troops who gained them.

THE WASHINGTON correspondent of the New York Evening Post says that the sudden rise in the value of gold, as contrasted with the legal-tender notes, somewhat alarms the leaders in the scheme of making money out of paper. If Congress were not so near an adjournment, the Senate would not pass the Treasury note bill at present, but would wait to see the experiment tried before adding another one hundred and fifty millions to the currency of the country. But an early adjournment is a foregone conclusion, no matter what the emergency may be; members are bent on leaving this hot and dusty place before the worst of the summer heat upon us. It is a singular fact, however, that the dust, the heat and the unhealthiness of Washington never seemed to make any impression upon Congress so long as the pay was per diem.

DEATH OF GENERAL SCOTT'S WIFE.—A telegraphic despatch from West Point states that General Scott has received intelligence of the death of his wife at Rome, on the 10th inst. Mrs. Scott (formerly Mrs. Mayo) was attended in her last illness by her daughter and son-in-law. Her age was seventy-two years.

RICHMOND is described by fugitives who have lately arrived in Washington, as a hospital and graveyard. Bread and whisky compose the staples of consumption; the one stale and the other strong and poisonous, being all that are left to feed the starving masses congregated in that doomed city.

DEATH OF PENNSYLVANIA SOLDIERS.—The following Pennsylvania volunteers died at the General Hospital, White House, Va., on the 27th inst.: Hiram Gibson, company A, 100th regiment; Henry D. Ferguson, company A, 85th regiment.

AN UNJUST STATE TAX.

A movement is on foot in various parts of the Commonwealth, having for its object the purpose of procuring the repeal of what is regarded as an unjust state tax. This injustice is contained in the levy of a tax on the money which Pennsylvania has borrowed at the legal rate of interest, so that the tax demanded is regarded as an advantage which it is unfair and unjust for the Commonwealth to take, reducing as it does, the rate of interest so materially on this description of investment. This matter has been frequently agitated, heretofore, and many State Treasurers have called the attention of the Legislature to the subject, urging a reform as an act of great justice, but failing each time to induce the Legislature to relieve the public from the burden. A bill to remedy this matter was introduced last session, by Senator Connell, but it was allowed to die on the calendar. The Sunday Dispatch, referring to this matter, says that Sydney Smith, years ago, stigmatized the "drab coated men" of Pennsylvania as reprobates, because they paid their interest in relief notes instead of gold and silver. To our own people this made no difference, as the paper money was available in ordinary business transactions; but the foreign loanholder, who had transferred his capital here upon the faith of the Commonwealth, was compelled to submit to a shave in order to get coin which he could use abroad. Hence Pennsylvania got the odium of repudiation, which, although the difference was not appreciable to us, was a violation of our contracts with foreign creditors. The tax upon loans is a more unjust form of repudiation, and the persistence in levying it is a violation of contract which is dishonorable to the state.

Attention being turned to the subject once more, a memorial has been prepared to be signed by the creditors of the state, which will be presented to the Legislature at its next session. If it is signed by a good proportion of the numerous parties interested, and presented at an early period after the next meeting of the General Assembly, there is hope that it will accomplish its purpose; and cause the members of the Legislature to pay more attention to the matter than they have yet done, and thus remove a stain from the escutcheon of the Commonwealth which has been too long allowed to sully our honor.

MILITARY RESIGNATIONS.

Our attention has been recently called to a fact at once disgraceful and humiliating. It appears that the resignations among the officers in command before Richmond, are becoming so frequent as to lead to the suspicion that these gentlemen shrink from meeting the enemy, and therefore thus cowardly leave their commands to struggle alone when the hour of battle arrives. That hour may have come and passed, as we write this paragraph, and with it has or will come the eternal disgrace of every man thus deserting his post. None but the most abject coward will desert his post at this hour, when battle is impending, and when every arm is needed to assist in achieving a victory. The fight before Richmond has been a foregone conclusion, a fact steadily before the eyes of the army ever since it left Manassas, and therefore those who are resigning thus, as it were, in the face of the enemy, do so at the risk, not only of the success of that army, but also of their own reputations as brave men. The plea of sickness made by many of these officers, does not stand the test of examination. The story of wounds has no truth to sustain the fact of resignation, and we therefore have no hesitation in declaring that the presence of many of these officers in our own midst and in many other northern cities, is an evidence of the cowardice, which many of them will find it difficult to explain. The community will stigmatize such as these as cowards; and the brand will stick to them as long as they live. Many of these men have been in the receipt of considerable money, and have managed to make a paper reputation by their first show of service. We regard the money received by such men as having all been obtained under false pretences, and the reputation they gained, as being based on claims equally as worthless. Let the community, therefore, watch and mark such fellows.

ENLISTMENT—ATTENTION.

We are daily and hourly waiting for the sound of battle and the news of victory before Richmond. But that battle and the victory we have a right to expect from its result, will not end the war. Such a consummation would be hailed with delight by the civilized world, but the wretches who conduct this rebellion, have "fired the southern heart" with a malevolence and hatred which will not be eradicated by one defeat, but which will rather be augmented, and which will be nursed to keep the government in constant array for its suppression. In view of the great battle which is now impending, and in view also of the slaughter on both sides which we are constrained to anticipate, we must expect another call for troops, and Pennsylvania will again be summoned to contribute men for the army. We have the men, and Pennsylvania can furnish from twenty-five to fifty thousand recruits to meet any emergency in a very short period of time. It would be well, too, for every fighting man in the Commonwealth, to hold himself in daily readiness for such a call. When blows begin to be given to the concentrated forces of traitors, they must be dealt out heavily and fast; that the work may be as finished as to leave no possible fear that rebellion will ever again organize a military force to oppose the operation of the Constitution and laws of the land.

TIOGA COUNTY will be represented in the Republican State Convention by H. A. Williams and B. B. Strang, instructed to vote for Hon. Thomas E. Cochran for Auditor General; F. E. Smith, Esq., of Tioga County, is a prominent candidate for Congress in that district. He is an able lawyer and an accomplished scholar. In 1856 he was a delegate to the Chicago Convention and one of the Presidential electors in that year. As a leading Republican in northern Pennsylvania, Mr. Smith yields an immense influence, and would be consequently as great a control for good, in the legislation of the country, if sent to Congress.

Official Report of the Battle of Cross Keys.

HEADQUARTERS 27th REGIMENT, P. V., CAMP NEAR MT. JACKSON, VA., June 17, 1862.
HON. ANDREW G. CURTIS, Governor of the State of Pennsylvania.
Sir: I have the honor to report to you that on Sunday the 8th of June, 1862, a battle was fought at Cross Keys, on Mill Creek, near Union Church, Virginia, where again the State of Pennsylvania gave proof of her valorous and gallant men. At six o'clock, a. m., the combined forces of General John C. Fremont left Harrisonburg, Virginia, and met the enemy under General Jackson at eight a. m., when skirmishing began generally.
Our brigade, under command of General J. S. S. Smith, consisting of the 8th, 45th, 41st and 39th New York volunteers, and the 27th regiment Pennsylvania volunteers, were on the advance, and was in reality the only brigade in action during the day. After a heavy cannonading for more than six hours, whereby the enemy lost a considerable quantity of men and horses, and our left wing being left entirely unprotected we were obliged to retire. The enemy now directed their whole strength towards the right wing of our forces, where a battery of eight rifled pieces were stationed under command of Captain Russell, and supported by my regiment, having done good execution during the action. The enemy advanced and charged on the battery with Indian-like yelling, coming within thirty yards of my force, then my regiment, notwithstanding having been exposed during the whole day to the hottest fire of the enemy's batteries, and being now, far outnumbered, charged upon them with a deafening cheer, and succeeded with a loss of eighty-three killed and wounded, this being about one fifth of my force, in driving the enemy from the field.
The loss of the enemy here was considerable, amounting to seventy-six killed and one hundred and fifty wounded.
All of which I most respectfully submit to your honor.

A. BUSCHBECK, Col. Comm. 27th Reg., P. V.

PARTIAL LIST OF THE KILLED AND WOUNDED.

New York, June 30.
An extra has just been issued here, with dispatches dated on the battle field, on Sunday morning.

The dispatches state that a severe and most determined battle was fought on the right wing on Thursday and Friday, which is claimed by some of our officers as a successful strategic movement, driving the enemy immediately into a trap which will soon capture Richmond and the entire rebel army.

The attack was made by the rebels in immense force, who crossed the Chickahominy near the railroad above Mechanicsville on Thursday afternoon.

The rebels fought desperately, but were unable to drive our men a single rod, though the enemy were ten to one against them. The only force engaged that day was McClellan's division. The battle lasting from two o'clock till nine p. m., when the division was ordered back.

General McClellan was on the field, and expressed himself satisfied with the result. Another report is also published, dated June 27th, which states that our killed, wounded and missing will number twelve hundred.

The object of the movement was to bring Gen. Porter's and other Divisions into close connection with the rest of the army, in fact changing the front of the whole of our forces, with our centre and our present position immediately on Richmond itself, which could be done and was expected on Saturday. It was a virtual surrender or vacating of a long line of defence, heretofore kept up, to Mechanicsville, in order to have the whole force within a more effective distance, also to allow the rebels to follow up on it, if possible, to order them.

Gen. McClellan ordered Gen. Porter to withdraw to two miles this side of Gaines' Mills early on Friday morning, which was done, the enemy following and thinking they had gained the victory, our troops slowly moving back in order, fighting as they went, crossing the Chickahominy, and reached the position designed for their occupation by Gen. McClellan, by rebels followed in great force, and by three o'clock in the afternoon a general and heavy engagement occurred here lasting till seven o'clock when a lull took place but the rebels again renewed it with a greater ferocity having been reinforced. Our brave men stood the unequal contest like heroes, and the shell, grape and musketry did fearful havoc. Our forces were increased by Generals Slocum, Palmer, French's and Meagher's brigades, and the rebels were beaten badly. The rebels' bridge was cut, and their retreat cut off, and they were driven back to the river, where they were completely surrounded.

The ground which Gen. McClellan ordered Gen. Porter to occupy and hold, was occupied and held in the first part of the day. Gen. Porter's corps only contained against the rebels, but subsequently reinforcements swelled our numbers to 45,000. The rebels had 30,000 under Generals Lee, Hill, Anderson and Branch. Among the killed are Col. Black and Lieut. Col. Switzer, of the 63d Pennsylvania, Col. Gane, of the 22d Massachusetts, Col. Roberts, of the 1st Michigan, Col. M. Quade and Lieut. Col. Skellen, of the 14th New York, and Major Patterson, of the 62d Pennsylvania.

List of killed as far as ascertained:

der to get the particulars, and learned that some time during the morning the enemy, numbering some twenty-five thousand, under the command of General Branch, crossed the above named stream, over the meadow bridge, and following down the west bank, they soon found themselves in the immediate vicinity of our troops under Gen. McClellan. He being apprised of their coming, had his men drawn up in line of battle, preparing to give them a hearty welcome.
The Rebels commenced the firing, which was at once returned by our forces, and was kept up without intermission until near seven o'clock, our loss in killed and wounded being trifling, when we consider the rapid and successive firing, and the time occupied in the engagement, while that of the rebels must be very heavy, from the fact that several of our best batteries were on hand and succeeded in doing good and efficient service.
During the afternoon, Gen. Fitz John Porter marched to the relief of Gen. McClellan, his reinforcement coming in just at the nick of time, enabling us to maintain our position during the night against an overwhelming force, even with the addition of these reinforcements.
This morning, however, the commands of General McClellan and Porter fell back from the position they held during the night, and halted and formed a line of battle some three miles in the rear of, and near to the house of the Rebel Gailes. This retreat, if it may be so called, was by no means a forced one, but was done voluntarily, and in all probability to secure a better position, where they could be nearer the main body, and hence be more readily reinforced, should they need them.
This retirement was done in a quiet and orderly manner, the retreat being covered by the First, Second and Fifth Pennsylvania Reserves, who promptly returned the fire of the Rebels, who were following.
These portions of the two armies are now facing each other, and they may at any moment commence another engagement.
During the fight, yesterday, one company of the First Penna. Bucktail Reserve Regiment was entirely surrounded, and all were taken prisoners. Some few, however, managed to escape, but were compelled to leave their dead and wounded comrades in the hands of the enemy. Among the number in this regiment who were wounded we gather the following:
Capt. Irwin and Lieut. Welsh of Co. K, Capt. Irwin, however, managed to effect his escape. This regiment covered themselves with glory, winning from their officers the highest medal of praise; from early in the afternoon until this morning, they were actively engaged and in the thickest of the fight.
The Pennsylvania Reserve, are deserving, too, of their well-earned praise; throughout the fight they stood their ground against an unequal force, and in front of a galling fire. Their conduct upon this occasion does honor to the Keystone State.

CAVALRYMEN.
We were unable to get an official list of the casualties, but we gathered the following from those who were participants in the battle:
Col. John H. Taggart, one of the proprietors of our Sunday Mercury, wounded, but we are told not dangerously.
Lieut. Welsh, Company K, First Pennsylvania Rifle Regiment, wounded.
Hartshorn, Company K, First Pennsylvania Rifle Regiment, wounded.
Jewitt, Company D, First Pennsylvania Rifle Regiment, wounded.
These wounded are in the hands of the rebels.
Sergeant Heber, company F, 1st Pennsylvania, killed.
Corporal Eckert, company F, 1st Pennsylvania, killed.
The number of killed on our side cannot be more than fifty, while the wounded will barely reach one hundred and fifty.

WOUNDED ON PICKET DUTY.
Rooswell Sweden, of the 1st Michigan regiment, picked out last night, by one of the rebel pickets belonging to a Georgia regiment. He was wounded so bad in the leg, that it was found necessary to amputate it.

FROM NASHVILLE, TENN.

DISLOYAL CLERGYMEN IMPRISONED.

NASHVILLE, June 28.
At the special conference of clergymen before Governor Johnson, all of them declined to take the oath of allegiance. Most of them were sent to the penitentiary prior to their removal to General Halleck for the purpose of being exchanged for Tennessee prisoners. Many of the Nashville churches will be without pastors to-morrow. Among those sent, a distance were the Rev. Drs. Baldwin, Shouse and Lawrie, Methodists, and Drs. Ford and Howell, Baptists. The Rev. Dr. Wharton was allowed some days' grace on account of illness. The Rev. Mr. Elliott did not appear. The Rev. Mr. Hendrick is expected to take the oath. The Catholic Divines being loyal were not disturbed.

THE NEW EDITION

PURDON'S DIGEST HAS JUST BEEN PUBLISHED, PRICE $5.00.

AN ENTIRE new edition of this well known Law Book has just been issued. It is now distinguished by the following superadded features: The laws contained in the various annual Digests published since the date of the eighth edition (1853) have been incorporated in the body of the work. Many thousands of new authorities have been cited; the report of the revisors of the Penal Code has been embodied in the notes to the various sections of it, and the appendix contains for the first time, the Acts of Congress for the Antislavery Convention, with full and elaborate notes of the decisions explanatory of them. The work has been prepared by the learned editor, Mr. BRIGHTLY, and its freshness and permanent value will be preserved by the continuation of the annual Digests, which have given so much satisfaction. For sale at DEGENER'S BOOKSTORE. J. T. d-1w
