LIST OF THE SICK AND WOUNDED.

We print this afternoon, a long and graphic account of sick and wounded Pennsylvanians, who were engaged in the recent battles before Richmond. To make room for this account we are necessarily compelled to defer other important matter. It will be seen that the wounded in these battles, named in the list printed, are not seriously endangered, and consist mostly of flesh wounds, or injury in the hands or arms. Those who were wounded seriously in the legs, have fallen into the hands of the enemy. The list as published is as complete a return as has yet been made of the condition of our sick and wounded. Its preparation reflects great credit on the industry of its author.

THE TENDER OF TROOPS BY THE LOYAL GOVERNORS.

The following letter from Gov. Curtin puts to rest some misapprehension in regard to the unanimity which existed among the loyal governors of the loyal states, in the tender of troops to the President of the United States. The letter is addressed to the Evening Bulletin, on account of certain statements which appeared in that journal on this subject: EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, HARRISBURG, July 6th, 1862.

To the Editor of the Evening Bulletin: In answer to the inquiry which appears in the Evening Bulletin of this evening, I deem it just to the Governors of Iowa and Delaware to make an explanation as to the memorial presented to the President last week, by the Governors of loyal States, offering additional troops to suppress the rebellion.

At the time the memorial was prepared, we could not reach, by telegraph, either Governor Kirkwood or Burton, and it was sent to Washington without their replies from them. On my return to Harrisburg, on the morning of the 4th inst., I received a letter from Governor Burton, asking that his name be signed to the memorial, and expressing, for the people of Delaware, his cordial approval of the offer, and his willingness to co-operate to any extent, in all just measures for the active prosecution of the war for the suppression of the rebellion.

The letter of Governor Burton was immediately transmitted to the War Department, and there is no doubt his name has been appended to the memorial, and that the public will be so informed. Failing to reach Governor Kirkwood, I united in a despatch with Governor Morgan, of New York, to Messrs. Grimes and Harlan, Senators from Iowa, asking them to call at the War Department, and if they were willing to assume the responsibility, to sign the name of the Governor to the memorial. I have a letter from them in which they say they called at the Department to sign the name of the Governor, but that the memorial had already been published. There can be no doubt the Governor of Iowa will signify his approbation. I am, very respectfully, yours &c., A. G. CURTIN.

While on this subject, we deem it due to the truth to refer to a telegram which appeared in the New York city papers, sent out from Albany. The author of the dispatch in question, with the precipitation peculiar to the people of New York, claims for Gov. Morgan all the credit of proposing a tender of troops by the loyal governors to the President, when the real facts of the case are, that the proposition had been prepared and submitted to several of the Executives in question, before Gov. Morgan, of New York, knew that there was such a movement being discussed. This voracity for credit and reputation amounts to a mania, which is leading the people of New York into all sorts of practices of falsehood and false pretence. The state and the people would be respectable, were it not for these faults.

THE EIGHTY-THIRD REGIMENT.

In the late battles on the line of march to Richmond, it would be ungrateful and untrue to make a distinction between the Pennsylvanians there engaged. All behaved with equal fortitude, daring and devotion. All seemed animated with the sole purpose of achieving a victory, or yielding their lives in the struggle, rather than retire in defeat. Among those from this state particularly distinguished, is the Eighty-third Regiment. From information which we have received this morning, we are induced to believe that more than one-third of the Eighty-third are either in the hands of the enemy or were killed in the encounters of last week. This is a terrible destruction in a regiment composed of so many brave men. Capt. M'Lean of the Eighty-third was shot in the eye and fell dead instantly, and as he fell a charge of cavalry was made over his body. This is only one incident of the battle, going to show the terrific force and energy of the struggle.

The Eighty-third is mainly made up of recruits from Erie and Crawford counties. We sympathize with those who are to feel in anguish the carnage of battle in this regiment.

ISA C. MITCHELL appears as the author of a batch of sophistries and falsehoods, in the Patriot this morning, which he says he had no opportunity to deliver in the doughface convention that was in session in this city on the 7th inst. Mitchell of course intends this production as an advertisement in Luzerne county, where he has hung out his shingle, having left Centre county for Centre county's good. He is a mere adventurer, possessing considerable brains, but entirely void of political honesty or personal veracity. He has been an advocate of all sorts of politics and religions, and before he ends his career, we expect to see him embrace the delectable doctrines of Brigham Young. In the address referred to, Mitchell talks about diverting the public moneys from military uses, and prates of extravagances and fanaticism, as if he had been an honest man all the days of his life. Had he devoted the time he wasted on this production, to a history of his career in Centre county and his performances while playing soldier in Hollidaysburg and this city, he would have enlightened the public as to the real facts of divesting money from the public service.

If the Democratic party of Pennsylvania must depend on such a man as Mitchell for the exposition of its principles and the defence of its policy, it is in a sorry plight, indeed.

IN LOOKING OVER THE NAMES of soldiers wounded in battle, we occasionally meet those of men we know—knew when peace lulled us all with the feeling of security, and yet even then, the fiends who are now conducting were then also organizing rebellion. Among the names of the fallen brave that have elicited our most profound regret, we notice that of Lieutenant McElhone, of the 12th Regiment, U. S. A. He is a native of Philadelphia, and perhaps of all the young men lately appointed to position in the regular army, he is most eminently fitted for a soldier. Ardent, yet cool and discreet, impulsive and yet calm in his judgments and purposes, he is organized for a soldier and well qualified for heroic deeds. But the young Lieutenant has fallen into the hands of the enemy, wounded and a prisoner in rebellion before he has scarcely entered on that brilliant career for which he seemed destined. Surely the deeds of such men must become the richest inheritance that this generation can bequeath to that which is to follow.

Also enclosed find schedule D. E. F., taken by Ex Governor Bigler, to whom I am greatly indebted for the services this day rendered me in the examination of the sick and wounded of the Pennsylvania Volunteers now in this city. There are at Fort McHenry some fifty patients, Pennsylvanians, who are convalescent. I did not visit them, for I had neither time or strength, but I have made such arrangements as will enable me to have their cases stated in detail if desired by your Excellency. I learn that there are quite a number of Pennsylvanians in private families in this city, taken there by their friends. Enquiry after such persons should be a part of the business upon which you sent me. At the several hospitals, I did not look at the books, but went into the wards and conversed personally with each individual whose name I have given you; those marked D, E, F, ex-Gov. Bigler conversed with personally. Mr. Hartshorn, formerly of Chester county, Penna., gave me the use of his private carriage, and rendered his personal assistance. The different wards of the hospitals I found all clean, the nurses kind, generally from the New England states; but there is something wrong, either in the military or medical department that calls for reform. "Red tape" should not bind a sick or wounded soldier from Pennsylvania in Baltimore for any considerable time. Every State in the Union I found represented, but Pennsylvania by far exceeds any other State, let the estimate be made upon any basis you please. By a close examination, you will see that there are no men in these hospitals that there is no good reason why they were not long since discharged. The first excuse, and the most general one given to a soldier applying for his discharge or leave of absence, is that he has no description papers, and those who have these papers and who are honestly entitled to a discharge or furlough, too often get but little satisfaction when they apply for it.

The wish is universal on the part of the sick and wounded, shared in by their female nurses, that they be taken to Philadelphia or sent to their homes. I respectfully recommend to your excellency, that you obtain an order from the Secretary of War for the removal of all Pennsylvanians, sick and wounded, now in Baltimore; that you charter a steamboat, send them under a careful superintendence to Philadelphia, and from thence to their friends. You can judge of the necessity of some one being here to receive and care for the Pennsylvania sick and wounded, as they come in from the south. You will see from an examination of the detailed statements herewith sent you, that many of these persons have been here for months, and I was too often told by many of them that I was the first Pennsylvanian who had enquired for them.

John Lurch, 104th regiment, from Bucks county, Capt. Brown, co. G, just brought out dead. Went to the door to hear funeral service; clergyman Episcopal; services were impressive; soldiers with their camp hymn books sang "O where shall rest be found."

Very respectfully, Your obedient servant, M
