

Medical ELIXIR PROPYLAMINE, THE NEW REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM. A NEW REMEDY, A CERTAIN REMEDY, FOR ACUTE RHEUMATISM, RHEUMATISM OF EVERY KIND, HOW SUBDUED, HOW LONG STANDING, PROPYLAMINE WILL CONQUER IT, WILL CURE IT.

PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL. [FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.] MAY 19, 1860.—Elias S., 28, single, never was very strong. Two years ago he had an attack of acute rheumatism from which he was confined to bed for two weeks and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She had been ill since then till last Saturday, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, feet cold, and had a decided chill. Two days later her right leg was so swollen, which was followed by swelling of the knee joint and of the hands. She has now dull pain in her shoulders, and her knees are very tender and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well recognized typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. It is a propylamine. Dr. Avenarius, of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms, having derived great benefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his observation. Numerous testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are put out as specifics; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER! MAY 22, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, the first of which I called your attention to in a case of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night). The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, and she was expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attacks. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are now nearly all of their natural size. Thus far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result. Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from chronic rheumatism, and she had her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knuckles were much swollen and tender. She took the Chloride of Propylamine in three doses every two hours, such you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THREE DAYS LATER!! MAY 25, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine, the first of which I called your attention to at our clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains three times daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory results. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and the result of its satisfactory, I think, as good judgements, we must justly render our verdict in favor of propylamine. He is a man, set 29, who was admitted a few days ago. He has occasional attacks of rheumatism, but not so as to keep him bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swollen, tender, and painful. His temperature is 100.4, at present day, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 90. He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours. This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fever and the profuse sweating, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism. I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it, thus worth your attention as a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, avoiding the use of all other medicines, except such as you may think proper to administer, as to which was the efficient remedy. You shall see the case on a future clinic.

THE RESULT. A FAVORABLE VERDICT. JUNE 9, 1860.—The next of our convalescents is the case of acute rheumatism before you at our clinic of May 25th, which I then called a typical case, and which was remarked as a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very well, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have never seen as severe a case of acute rheumatism so soon restored to health as this man has been, and that being prepared to do so, and to now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chloride of Propylamine, the patients have regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results. For a full report of which the above is a condensed extract, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter. It is the report after a fair trial by the best medical authority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous certificates from astonished doctors and rejoicing patients.

A WORD TO DOCTORS. If you prefer to use the same remedy in another form we invite your attention to the PURE CRYSTALLIZED CHLORIDE OF PROPYLAMINE, PURE PROPYLAMINE LIQUID, PURE PROPYLAMINE CONCENTRATED, PURE IODINE PROPYLAMINE, of which we are the sole manufacturers.
