The Georgians arrived this morning, having on board upwards of three hundred passengers, consisting of soldiers, sailors, negroes, and a few civilians.

When the steamer quitted Fortress Monroe the Burnside fleet was anchored in the Roads awaiting sailing orders.

From officers who came up in the boat, we were informed that everything remained quiet with McClellan's army at latest dates.

A large number were on the sick list, suffering from swamp fever, a disease troublesome in the extreme.

The effective portion of the army is in an excellent condition, and the boys are anxious to have another bout with the rebels.

During the late battles the rebel defectors to their old method of using explosive bullets. These devilish missiles when they strike a person produce a terrible wound.

Our informants corroborates the statements already made relative to the rebels using whisky mixed with gunpowder. In some of the rebels' caucuses there was no powder used with the whisky, but the latter being nothing further to fire the blood; it was the meanest trick that could be imagined, and appeared to have been about two days old.

XXXVIIth Congress—First Session.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, July 10.

CONTINUATION OF YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

In the opinion of the Senator from Michigan, Gen. McClellan must have committed an atrocious crime worthy of the severest penalty of the law. Gen. McClellan has not been a newspaper General, written up by correspondents, but had been most indiscreetly denounced, yet he made no reply.

Mr. Wright, would not get back to his operations on the Potomac, but ventured to say that General McClellan's ten days campaign in front of Richmond, fighting an infuriated enemy, would arouse as much admiration among the people of foreign countries as it has awakened hope and confidence among our own people.

There was no doubt that General McClellan would come triumphantly out of any examination, but this was not the hour to go into any such question, and make an attempt to divide our people. Mr. Wright was in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the war and in favor of a strong confidence in the true Union men of the country.

This was not the place to pass such resolutions as this with the sanction of the speech of the Senators from Michigan. If President Lincoln can trust McClellan and Stanton he was willing to trust them, and he would stand by the man who was fighting the battles of the country.

Mr. Chandler said it was plain to every man that when we sent an army to the Peninsula, we must have retained forces to defend the Capital. He had the evidence of nine Major Generals, taken before the committee on the conduct of the war, in which it was absolutely necessary to retain a force for the defence of Washington.

Gen. Richardson in a sworn statement, said that it would require 40,000 men, and a corps of 60,000 men to stop the movements of the enemy above or below. Gen. Franklin thought 35,000 to 50,000 would be necessary, and all said that from 50,000 to 75,000 men were necessary to be left here.

When Gen. McClellan went to Fortress Monroe it was found that he had not left a solitary regiment, except nineteen, and not left a solitary gun on the wheels for the defence of the capital. Was it not proper that these facts should go to the country, and that the people should know what the facts are?

Mr. Lane, (Kansas,) moved to postpone the resolution till next December.

Mr. Cowan, (Pa.) thought such a resolution should not have been introduced, but now that the issue was made, the resolution ought to be passed and the facts made forth.

Mr. Henderson, (Mo.) thought this was going to have the effect to make two parties in the country in regard to the operations of the General in the field. It is idle to talk as the newspapers have that the rebels will not fight. They will meet us at every point but if reinforcements are promptly sent to McClellan the rebel capital can be taken in a month.

These mischievous resolutions only tend to excite party feeling. If any General is incompetent let the President remove him at once, but he had seen no incompetency in front of Richmond.

The resolution was then passed—yeas 39, nays—Messrs. Anthony, Foster, Lane, (Kansas,) McDougal, Saulsbury and Wright—6.

On motion of Mr. Wilson, (Mass.) the bill amendatory of the act relating to the calling out of the militia, &c., was taken up. The question being to receive negroes into the service for labor in entrenchments, &c.

Mr. Collamer said he should vote against the bill as it stood on the ground that it provided for unlimited conscription. He said this country had always decided in its resolution and in the war of 1812, not in any way to adopt the system of European conscription, but in this bill allows the President to draft men in such numbers and for such time as he pleases, which in fact, is conscription, but he believed the country had the right to the services of all people whether black or white. He knew they did us good service last war, and believed they did good service.

Mr. Saulsbury moved to postpone the bill. Mr. Saulsbury, moved to postpone the bill indefinitely. Rejected—yeas—Messrs. Carlisle, Davis, Henderson, E. P. Mears, McDougal, Powell, Saulsbury, Stark, Wilson, 27.
