PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL. FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.

May 19, 1860,—Ellen S., set. 28, single, never was very strong. Two years ago she baddin attack of acute rheumatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks strong. Two years ago she baddinattack of acute rheumatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks and subseqently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last flatur day, while engaged in house cleaning, the took cold, had pain in her back, falt cold, hot had no decided chill. Two days later her ankles began so swell, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. She has now dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender; red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fishinonably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object is bringing her before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean propylamsins. Dr. Awnarius, of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms, having derived great ueneft from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specifies; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER! MAY 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient-for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has attackly intern it in doses of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fall to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are new nearly all of their natural size.—Thur far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

niere is another patient who was placed on the use of stame medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from a bronic rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knucktes were much awollen and tenso. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain doses every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished. Here is another patient who was placed on the use of

THREE DAYS LATER!!

MAY 28, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine, the first of those to which I called your attention at our last clink: She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory results. The second c.se to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well: I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satfactory, I think, as good furpuen, we shall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamin

He is a seaman, set. 28, who was admitted a lew days ago. Has had coassional rheumatic pams, but not so as to keep his bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swellen, tense and tender. His tongue is furred; his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 90.—He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours.

This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rhoumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower folints. There is fover and the profuse coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is lover and the profuse loce, in the lower joints. There is lover and the profuse weating, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism. I did not bring this patient before you with the intended of giving you a lecture on all the points competed with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you this ypical case, as I have called it, than which there on the total to the a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, avoiding the use of all ther medicines, even anodynes; that there may be no misgivings as to which was the efficient remedy. You half see the case of a future clinic.

THE RESULT.

A FAVORABLE VERDICT.

June 0, 1860.—The next of our convalescents is the case of acuterheumatism before you at our clinic of May 36th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have neves seen as severe a case of acute rheumatism so soon restored to health as this man has been, and without being prepared to decide positive by as to the value of the remedy we have used, I feel bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chloride o Propylamine, the patients have regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a condensed extract, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter. It is the report after a fair trial by the best medical authority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous certificates from astonished doctors and rejoicing patients.
