[FRON CONGLAL HOSTITAL REPORTS.]

MAY 19, 1860.—Ellen S., set. 23, single, never was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rheumatism, from which she was comined to her; bed for two wocks and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last Satur day, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, fell cold, hot had so deeded chill. Two days later her ankies began so swell, which was followed by swelling of the tree joints and of the hands. She has now dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now flashonably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call stiention to a remeduable has recently been recommended in the treatment of the Petersburg, recommende it in the highest terms, having derived great benefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess i am always increduces as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specifies; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial. (FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.)

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

MAY 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatum. She has seedily taken it in does of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot fail to notice a marked change in the appearance of her joints, which are new nearly all of their natural size.—Thus far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but gentlemen, we must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of 20 same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from a monte rheematism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knuckies were much swollen and teuse. She took the obloride of Propylamine in three grain does every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THREE DAYS LATER!!

MAY 26, 1880.—This is the case of acute rheumatisms treated with propriamine, the first of those to which I called your attention at our lifth clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory rescite. The second c.se to which your attention was called at our last tecture, has also continued to do wel. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satfactory, i think, as good jurymen, we shall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamin

He is a seaman, set. 26, who was admitted a few days ago. Has had coassional rheumatic came, but not so as to keep his bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swotlen, tense and tender. His tongue is furred; the state and research there has been weed; in its right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swotlen, tense and tender. His tongue is furred; his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 90.—His has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours. This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rhaumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is tollowed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fever and the profess sweating, so generally attlendant on acute rhoumatism. I did not brug this patient perform you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rhoumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it, than which there could not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in agention. We are, therefore, synding the use other medicines, even anexpose, that there may be no other medicines, even anexpose, that there may be no other medicines, even anexpose, that there may be no

THE RESULT.

A FAVORABLE VERDICT.

June 9, 1860.—The next of our convalescents is the case of souterheumatum before you at our clinic of May 186h, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doese every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to sty that I have never soon as severe a case of acute rheumatism so soon restored to health as this man has been, and without being propared to decide positive by as to the value of the remedy we have used, I feel bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chloride o Propylamine, the patients have regained their health. that in the case in which we have regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a condensed extract, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter. It is the report after a fair trial by the best med ical authority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous certificates from autonished doctors and rejoicing patients.
