The enthusiasm in localities, throughou Pennsylvania, is once more of that character which inspires all who behold it with confidence in the loyalty and martial spirit of the and other states went out of the Union on the people. Every county or town that sends plea that the northern states voted for a secaway its one or more companies, regard their tional President. Is this so? They leave home accompanied by the blessings and the prayers of their friends, and turning their backs on the scenes of their youth and manhood, these brave men almost become soldiers the moment they are mustered into service. The g nerous emotion the number of her votes cast against Mr. Linis thus calmed—the manly tear at leaving helpless loved ones is dried—and the spirit of the patriot takes hold of the form of the man, to mould in the Old Dominion. It has been a favorable cry with those who are leading in the great slave-holders' rebellion, and those who sympathis with its enormities, that the sectionalism of the north gave the first incentive to treason in the south, and that the election of Mr. Lincoln was the culminating point from which sprung rebellion.
