SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

MAY 23, 1880.—I will now exhibit to you his patient for whom I prescribed Propylamino, and was then laboring under an attack of sortic rhoumatism. Bhe has steadily taken it in doses of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than the spected to be for a week or more, judging from her other stack. (The patient new walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot all to notice a warked change in the appearance of her pints, which are new nearly all of their natural size.—aur far our experiment would have seemed very suessful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be he result. SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been satisfied from a hronic rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knuckles were much swotlen and tense. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain doses every two hours, and you will parceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminated.

THREE DAYS LATER!!

THREE DAYS LATER!!

MAY 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine, the first of those to which I called your attention at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory reacts. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do wer? I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satisfactory, I think, as good jurymen, we small justly render our verdict in layor of propylamin

He is a seaman, sat 28, who was admitted a few days ago. Has has occasional rheumatic panus, but not so as to keep his bed, until sight days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. Those joints are all swellen, tense and tender. His tongue is furred; his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His putse is full and strong, and about 40.—He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours.

This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually doca, in the lower joints. There is lever and-the profuse swanting, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism. Indid not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture do all the points conjected with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the law remains and the sairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, avoiding the use of all other medicines, even anodynes, that there may be no misgivings as to which was the efficient vémedy. You shall see the case of a future clinic.

THE RESULT.

FAVORABLE VERDICT.

Jumes, 1860.—The next of our convalencents is the case of abute rheumatim beford you at our clinic of May 30th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two bours for four days. The gatient has got along very nucely, and is now, able to wasterbout, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have never seen as severe a case of acute rheumatism for soor restored to health as this man has, been, and without being prepared to decide positive by as to the value of the remedy we have used, I feel bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chloride o fropylamine, the patients have regained their health much carlier than under the treatment ordinarily fluriculed. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

For a full report of which the above is a condense; extract, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter. It is the report after a fair trial by the best medcal authority in this country, and makes it unnecessary to give numerous certificates from autonished doctor and rejoicing patients.
