----RECRUITING for the old regiments is going on vigorously. Some thirty men were recruited in this city last week. The prospect now is that the old regiments will be speedily filled.

THEN AND Now.-The drafted men of 1814 received no bounty, but on the contrary had to knapsack, canteen, cartridge-box and twentyfour rounds of amunition. Their pay from Government was $8 per month. Offers of substitutes were numerous, but very few were accepted.

RECRUITS FOR THE FORTY-SIXTH REGIMENT a name which will make every man who has playing at the time. been or who becomes identified with it immortal. Our gallant boys should not forget the Forty-sixth when they seek gallant service as well as honorable reward.

DEPARTURE OF THE DAUPHIN COUNTY REGIMENT. on the opposite of the river, about half-past eleven o'clock, en route for Washington city.-The following are the field officers of the regiment: Col. W. W. Jennings, of Harrisburg; Lieut. Col. H. C. Alleman, of Harrisburg; Major Jeremiah Rohrer, of Middletown.

Good SAMARITENS .- Some of our citizens who have sympathy in their hearts, can find a wide field to exercise their charitable intentions by visiting the hospitals at Camp Curtin. We do not assert that the sick and wounded sol diers are not receiving the proper attention due them, but we are of the opinion that an additional force of help will tend in a great measure to alleviate the sufferings of the poor soldier. Our Harrisburg ladies, (God bless them.) have been on the alert for months past to administer to the wants of those who have suffered while battling for the honor of their cherished flag. Like ministering angels these ladies have been contributing to the various wants, and nursing the sick and wounded as if they were some of their own flock. Such acts of kindness will be registered in Heaven.

ELECTION OF DRIEGATES.—The election for delegates to the Union Republican County Convention came off in the several wards and town ships of the county last Saturday evening. The following gentlemen were elected delegates in

THE GREAT REBELLION .- Davis' panorama of the great rebellion was exhibited last Saturday night at Brant's Hall, to an unusual large and intelligent audience, among whom were Gen Wool and Staff, who seemed to be much interested in the exhibition. The General was greeted upon his entrance into the hall with three cheers and a tiger by the audience rising. which he acknowledged by graceful bows. The panorama is in every way striking and startling, and a wild and strong excitement is maintained through every scene. So admirable is the execution, so perfect are the effects produced and brought out, that they are themes that we can only dwell upon to praise and admire. It will be exhibited again this evening, and we advise every lever of the grand and beautiful to be on hand.

DRAFTING. -- If the army of the Union is one of the largest and patriotic that ever rallied around a country's flag, it is because every soldier in that army is in the strictest sense a volunteer. When they joined the army, they thought nothing of bounties, but marching to some recruiting office, offered their services and were accepted. They did not wish to linger in camp, and when the word was given that they were to be brought face to face with the enemy, how the shouts rang along the whole line. Nor did they blench amid the cannon's roar, but at the double quick they charged upon the foe which fled before them. That noble army has become decimated by disease of the camp and by death upon the battle field, and its ranks must be filled up and new regiments raised to crush out the rebellion. To do this, if there are no more volunteers, the Government must determine who shall be called upon to defend it. There may be more volunteers, but they will choose their own time of offering their services. The Government wants men, and wants The Government must maintain its own exis. were at the Adjutant General's office this morntence and protect itself, and a Government that ing. will not do this is beneath the contempt of the civilized world. It has the right to tax the last ments for the three year's service, recruiting dollar, and draft to the last man, if need be, to maintain itself. It not only has the right, but it is its duty to do this, for when the Government goes down, then anarchy reigns.
