THE PANORAMA OF THE GREAT REBELLION .-This popular and highly attractive exhibition still continues to attract numerous audiences at Brant's Hall. The painting is a veritable prodigy in art, with the hand of genius breathing through every part of it, and we advise all who have not yet enjoyed the pleasure of beholding it, to do so this week, as next Saturday is posltively the last night of its exhibition in this

DEPUTY U. S. MARSHAL.—Hon. A. O. Hiester, of Susquehanna township, has been appointed Deputy United States Marshal, to make the enrollment for and superintend the draft in this county, which is to commence on the 3rd of September. Mr. Hiester was sworn into office and received his credentials yesterday. His appointment to this important post will give gen eral satisfaction to the people of our county

COL. ALLABACH'S REGIMENT.—The Washington Republic of this morning says : "Yesterday afternoon about half past four o'clock, the 181st Pennsylvania regiment, Col. Allabach, 1,200 strong, passed up the avenue, en route for Dixie. They were armed with the new muskets, and carried two splendid national flags. They carried a full drum corps, and were headed by the Colonel-a fine looking soldier-on foot."

COL. JOHN SOMMERS, late of one of the Maryland Regiments, and a native of Pennsylvania, is now in this city. He was formerly connected with the volunteer organization of the City of Lancaster, and as an officer, ranked very high in points of ability and discipline. The experience of such men should not be lost to their native State, and we trust that Col. Sommers may find a position in the forces of Penn sylvania, where he would be of invaluable service to his native State and to the Union.

PRESENTS FOR COL. P. H. ALLABACH.-Immediately after the commission of colonel of the 181st Pennsylvania regiment had been issued to Cor P. H. Allabach, Rev. James Colder. ordered through George W. M'Calla, a sword to be presented to Col. Allabach. The sword has arrived, and we had the pleasure of examing it this morning. Divested of useless ornament and display, the sword and scabbard are truly fine specimens of American skill and artistic taste. The blade is of the finest steel, and is mounted very handsomely. The scabbard is of bronge, and contains a plate on which is inscribed the words "Presented to Peter H. Allabach, by Rev. James Colder, Harrisburg. Pennsylvania." In addition to these words, the plate contains the magical masonic emblem of the compass and square. The necessary trappings, including a magnificent belt, accomparied the sword. We also had the pleasure of examining, yesterday evening, a magnificent mounted navy size Colt's revolver, the handle of which contains a silver plate with the words "Presented to Col. P. H. Allabach by his friends." The presents are intended for one who is in every respect worthy of the compliment which they are intended to convey. They were gotten up without any effort at display, and are the Capt. Vers, tributes of the immediate personal friends of the gallant Col. Allabach. They will be forwarded to Col. Allebach immediately.

THE GREAT REBELLION - Complimentary Benefit -By the following correspondence at will be seen that our young artist friend Harry Davis has been tendered a complimentary benefit, to take place at Brant's City Hall next Saturday evening, which will be the last time of the exhibition of the panorama in this city:

HARBISBURG, August 21st, 1862. Mr. Harry H. Davis :- The undersigned, friends, of yours are desirous of testifying their appreciation of your genius as an artist, and, therefore, request a special exhibition of your spendid panorama of the rebellion, on Saturday, the 28d inst. The tendency of your excellent painting is to refine the public taste as well as to excite patriotic sentiments, while at the same time it imparts clear views of the many thrilling scenes which have transpired in this wicked war. We trust you will find it convenient to gratify the wish we have herein expressed:

FREAKS OF A BACCHANALIAN.—The other day. among the passengers from Baltimore o Harrisburg, was a discharged soldier pretty well soaked with corn juice, who had purchased s ticket for York, Pa. When the train stopped at the latter place, the soldier was enjoying a sort of Rip Van Winkle snooze, and forgot to step or tumble out, and consequently was carried up the road some five or six miles before the conductor overhauled him while taking up tickets. After a dozen or so vigorous shakes. our conductor friend brought him to a sort of or not. consciousness, when the following scene occurred:

The many relations which exist between the citizens of old Dauphin and nearly every memprospects. The interest of the people of Har-risburg in the prosperity and success of the 127th regiment is beyond question deeper and more intense than in any other ten companies enlisted in our country's cause. This is natural, for in its ranks are more of Dauphin county's sons than in all other regiments combined. hundreds of firesides in our patriotic old county, whilst safety and victory must call forth the heartfelt thanksgiving and rejoicing from any lovel man and more in the county every loyal man and woman in the county Here, in this camp are centered the anxious affections of loving sisters and the earnest con cern of dear mothers and wives. But I find I am digressing from the objects of this com-munication. I desire simply to give a cursary account of our journey here and such informa-tion of a local character which may be of interest to the friends of the regiment at home. So to the point. The cordial greetings of the people between Harrisburg and Baltimore as-tonished us all and stired to enthusiaism our patriotic hearts. Doubtless Maryland is thronged with enemies of the government, but more genuine patriotism is found there than I had supposed, and after many demonstrations of encouragement, waving of flags and cordia huzzas, we arrived at about four o'clock at Ba' timore. Here the regiment became the recipionts of a bounteous repast. Truly the loyal citizens of Baltimore deserve the sincere thanks of our regiment, and I assure you we highly appreciate their kindness and cheerful acknowledge it. In the rooms of the Union Relief Association of that city we felt at home, and the wants of the inner man were fully supplied.— Between one and two o'clock on Monday morning we reached Washington and were quartered at the rooms of the Soldier's Relief About two o'clock on Monday afternoon we began the real duties of the soldier, and march ing up Pennsylvania Avenue, crossed the Long Bridge and in good spirits made a journey of about five miles, when we reached our present quarters on the sacred soil of Old Virginia.

The Boas Guards, now Company D of the regiment, held the right of the regiment during the march, and were the first to step upon this once noble, but now degenerate Commonwealth. We are now comfortably quartered a short distance frym Arlington Heights and very near to Gen. Blenker's former head quarters. The 130th Pennsylvania regiment reached here to day and are within a stones throw from our The 125th and 128th occupy a field immediately opposite us, so that we are surrounded by friends from our own true State. The regiment is rapidly settling down to camp du-ties under the kind but strict military discipline of our able Colonel, Jennings. Since our arrival here, some changes have been made in some of the company organizations, owing to Lieut. R. E. Cable has been unanimously elected Captain by the company to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of its former Captain H. C. Alleman; 2nd Lieut. Joshua M.
