PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL.

[FROM OFFIGIAL HOSPITAL REFORMS.]

C. MAY 19, 1860.—Ellon S., st. 28, single, never was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rhommatism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till hast Satur day, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her book, felt cold, not had so decided chill. Two days later her ankles began so swell, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. She has now dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of soute rhoumatism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rhenmatic fever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean propylamsias. Dr. Awenarius, of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms, having derived great benefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specifies; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial. THOM OPPORAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

MAY 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I found har much more confortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the reom.) The mprovement has steadily progressed, and you cannot ult to notice a marked change in the appearance of her linus, which are new nearly all of their natural size.—nur har our experiment would have seemed very suessful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a little while better examine a decided opinion as to what is to be he result.

he result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of Lissame medicine on Sunday last; she has long been sufering from chronic rheumatism, and i found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knuckles were much swollen and teuse. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain doses every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joins has much diminated.

THREE DAYS LATER !!

MAY 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism treated with propylamine, the first of those to which I called your attention at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory resaits. The second case to which your attention was called at our last fecture, has also continued to do well. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of sectory. I think, as good brywnen, we shall justly render factory. I think, as good brywnen, we shall justly render do well? I will now bring before you a very characterletic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satfactory, I think, as good jurymen, we shall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamin

He is a seaman, set. 28, who was admitted a few days ago. Has has casalional rheumatic pains, but not so as to keep his bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in his right kines, aubsequently affected the left kines, and later, the points of the upper extremnics. These joints are all swoiten, tense and tender. His tongue is furred; his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His paise is full and strong, and about 90.—
He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours.
This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower points. There is fever and the profuse sweating, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism;
I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to again give a triat to the new remedy we are tessing, and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it, than which there could not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, avoiding the use of all other medicines, even anodynes, that there may be no misgivings as to which was the efficient remedy. You shall see the case of a future clinic.

THE RESULT.

A FAVORABLE VERDICT.

JUNE 0, 1860.—The next of OUR convelescents is the case of acute rheumatism before you at our clinic or May 20th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doese every two hours for four days, the patient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have neves seen as severe a case of acute rheumatism as soon restored to health as this man has been, and without being prepared to decide positive by as to the value of the remedy we have used. I see bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chioride of Propylamine, the patients have regained their health much earlier than under the treatment erdinarily pursued. I wish gouldemen, you would yourselves try it,
