WHAT IT HAS DONE, IT WILL DO AGAIN. THE BEST TESTIMONY, BEST MEDICAL AUTHORITY. DOCTORS KNOW IT, PATIENTS BELIEVE IT, TRIED AND TRUE.

PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL. (FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.) MAY 19, 1860.—Elias S., 29, single, never was very strong. Two years ago he had an attack of acute rheumatism, from which he was confined to bed for two weeks and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been since then ill but latterly, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her neck, but had not decided chill. Two days later her neck became so swollen, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. She had dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumatic fever. His well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. It is an elixir of propylamine. Dr. A. W. C. has prescribed this, and he has had the highest terms, having derived great benefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose to try it in another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specific; but this comes to me recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial.

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER. MAY 25, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night). The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more. Her neck had subsided. (The patient now walked into the room.) The improvement has steadily progressed, and you cannot but be much gratified to see the appearance of her face, which are now nearly all of a natural color. I am confident our experiment would have seemed very successful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

There is another patient who was placed on the use of the same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from chronic rheumatism, and she has at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knuckles were much swollen and tender, and she took the elixir of Propylamine in three grain doses every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THREE DAYS LATER!! MAY 28, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism, as you will perceive, the first of those to which I alluded to you at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains three times a day. In this case it has seemed to me that the elixir has produced satisfactory results. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if it should be successful, I think, as good jurymen, we shall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamine.

He is a woman, 26, who has been admitted a few days ago. She has occasional rheumatic pains, but not so severe as to keep her bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in her right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and then, the joints of the upper extremities. Her joints are all swollen, tense and tender. Her tongue is furred; her skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. Her pulse is full and strong, and about 90. He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours. This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold, and the patient had been fatigued by very early coldness, severe arthritic pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fever and the profuse sweating, so generally attendant on this disease. I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to show you that the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you the typical case, as I have called it, than which there can be no better a fair opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, without hesitation, to give our verdict, even as you do, that there may be no misgivings as to which was the efficient remedy. You shall see the case of a future clinic.

THE RESULT. A FAVORABLE VERDICT. JUNE 9, 1860.—The next of our convalescents is the case of acute rheumatism, before you at our clinic of May 20th, which I then called a typical case, and which was remarked as a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have never seen so severe a case of rheumatism as soon restored to health as this man has been, and without being prepared to decide positively as to the value of the remedy we have used, I feel bound to state that in the cases of the female and the female of propylamine, the patients who regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily pursued. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves try it, and report the results.

A FULL REPORT OF WHICH THE ABOVE IS A CONDENSED EXTRACT, see the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter. It is the report after a fair trial by the best medical authority in this country, and it makes it unnecessary to give numerous certificates from astounded doctors and rejoicing patients.

A SPEEDY CURE. AN AFFECTIONATE CURE. THE SAME RESULT. IN EVERY CASE, WHENEVER TRIED, WHENEVER TRIED, IT WILL DO AGAIN.
