The Latest from Virginia The Situation-Our Army in Virginia Up to

Monday Morning at Ten O'Clock. In the absence of all official information from the field of conflict, since General Pope's despatch of last Saturday morning, we take it, the situation of affairs will be found to be some what like this, from information which has reached us from the most reliable, though unofficial sources:

That Fitz John Porter reached the battlefield of troveton about 9 o'clock on Saturday morning, when General Pope renewed the attack on the enemy's position in four columns. two in the afternoon.

That there was then a partial cessation in the battle at that hour, arising from the fact that City Point eight cannon and about two hundred other reinforcements had not reached General riflemen, and opened fire on the Federal flotil-Pope, and did not reach Centreville until the close of the day, and that the arrival at that upon the Foint and demolished every building point of Franklin's troops was mistaken for a rearward movement of the main army, which gave rise to that rumor.

That Sumner reached the field of operations early on Sunday morning, when the attack was renewed upon the new reinforced columns of the enemy, massed near Gainesville, with such fury as to drive him still further back, as was indicated by the receding reports of the cannonade on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

That the favorable result of Saturday's battle up to half-past two in the afternoon, released Sedgwick's division from his position seven miles out from the Chain Bridge, and enabled No. 17 (Saddle Horses,) will assemble in front him to march to the scene of action, which he of the Judges' stand for exhibition. must have reached by Sunday, some time in the day, to take part in the fight.

That Burnside was making his way, when last heard from, with a heavy column, from the direction of the railroad crossing on the wedging him in between advancing Federal columns on every side. That the railroad was in working order, Sun day evening, out as far as Warrenton Junction thus demonstrating that the enemy had been forced entirely to the westward of our line of communication from Alexandria. That the slaughter on our side, since the bat tle of Friday, has not been anything like as great as on that day, but that on the enemy's side it has been greater, terrible as it was on that day.

That the surgeons sent forward hence on Satdesignated by the Judges.

FROM FORTRESS MONROE City Point Bestroyed by Federal Gunboats.

The Rebels at Harrison's Landing. They are Shelled by the Monitor and Galena.

FORTRESS MONROE, Aug. 80.

The steamship Baltic arrived here this morning, and awaits orders. Reinforcements are ordered to day to Jamestown Island. City Point has been entirely demolished by the federal gunboats. For some time past the rebels have been firing into our transports paswith increased fury, and that he drove him at sing up and down the James river, and Commo-all points towards Gainesvile up to half past discontinued he should destroy their buildings at City Point.

On Thursday last the rebels brought down to la, which at the time was near and abreast of that point, whereupon our gunboats opened fire in the place, and dispersed the rebel force.

delphia. Her trip has been successful. A flag of truce was sent up the James river to Aiken's Landing to-day with Col. Forney, of Alabama, who was wounded and taken prisoner and paroled some time ago. They also took up some women and children. The steamship Baltic is being loaded with troops to-day.

BALTIMORE, September 1 —We have received a private letter from Newport News, dated Aug. 30, which gives the following information: Nearly all the troops have left this place for parts unknown. Among those that remain are the 85th N. Y. Volunteers and the 11th Pennsylvania. The weather is extremely pleasant here now, and we expect to have a fine time for a while.

The Monitor, Galena and all the gunboats have arrived here from the James River. I learned from some of the sailors that the rebels have come down and occupied Harrison's Landing. The gunboats opened on them with Rappahannock, having in his march destroyed all the bridges behind him towards Manassas and Gainesville.

That our main army had cut off the retreat of the form of the first our main army had cut off the retreat of the first ourse arm not able to say, but you will know a first ourse arm not able to say, but you will know the first ourse arm for the first ourse arm for the first our will know the first ourse arm for the first our will know the first ourse arm for the first ourse arm of the enemy towards Thoroughfare Gap, thus very soon.
