War in Virginia. THE ARMY AT MUNSON'S HILL

Death of Generals Rearney and Stevens. Present Position of Affairs.

Want of Confidence in Gen. Pope-Incompetency of Gen. McDowell.

The Battle of Monday.

Correspondence of the Bait more American.)

Washington, Sept. 3, A. M. Washington city was last night in a state of great excitement, and not without most substantial cause. Crowds were gathered at all the hotels discussing and speculating on the future, and the announcement that Gen. Mc-Clellan had been assigned to the command of all the troops assembled for the defence of Washington was generally predicted to mean that before twenty-four hours should elapse the whole Army of Virginia would be within the area of territory under his jurisdiction.

The facts are that the Army of Virginia has been outgeneralled, outflauked, and so distant the duly and hours are the control by the control of the heartened by the daily and hourly evidence of superior generalship on the part of the rebels that is now on the way to Alexandria, mourning the loss of many gallant officers and men who have lost their lives, or are suffering from wounds and exhaustion, many of them in the hands of the revels. By the time this letter reaches you the whole command of General Pope will have fallen back upon the entrenouments and works for the defence of Washing ton, under command of General McClellan. As far as I can learn here the history of the past three days has been a succession of small disasters both in the front and rear. Last night there was a series of skirmishes along the whole front, in .ne of which Brigadier General Isaac I. Stevens was killed. His color bearer having been struck down he took the flag up himself and was leading on his troops when a minic ball plerced his forehead and he instantly fell designated by the Judges.

8 o'clock P. M.—At the sound of the bell, there will be a trial of speed of Thorough Bred Horses designated by the Judges.

4 o'clock P. M.—At the sound of the bell, there will be a trial of speed of Thorough Bred Horses designated by the Judges.

4 o'clock P. M.—At the sound of the bell, all horses to whom premiums have been awarded, will assemble on the half mile track, at which time the awards will be announced from the time the awards will be announced from the bell, all those of the enemy's scotts. He was missing during the night, and this morning his body was sent in by General Lee, under a flag of truce. It is now here, along with those of of truce. It is now here, along with those of Colonel Flether Webster and General Stevens, being embaled for transmission to their fami-

The whole number of killed and wounded in all the battles up to the present time does not exceed 11,000. In the first battle on Friday at Bull Run the loss on the federal side did not exceed 4,000, although General Pope announced it at 8,000. What the loss of the enemy has been, or whether any of their prominent officers have suffered in not known parts. have suffered, is not known. It is, however.

believed to be equal if not greater than ours.

In conversation with the wounded who are constantly arriving here, I find that they have ith in Gen. Pope's capacity to command a great army, and ridicule the pretentious announcements he put forth at the commence ment of the campaign, with "headquarters in the saddle," etc. They complain of bad generalship, and say that the whole campaign has been without a plan or strategy, and that he has walked into every trap they set for him, without foresight or common prudence.

As to Gen. McDowell, his withdrawal from the Army of Virginia is a necessity that the President can no longer resist. Not only his own command, but every other division, de nounce him in terms and language that it would not, perhaps, be proper to repeat. Suffice it to say that those fighting under blm complain that his orders led them constantly to disaster. whilst he kept himself in safe position; and other commanders charge him with having failed to properly guard and protect the points as-signed to him. In fact, his longer presence, whether these charges are true or false, will have a most demoralizing tendency. At four o'clock yesterday morning, a train of one hundred wagons, with commissary stores was intercepted by the enemy between Fairfax Station and Centreville, and driven off towards Manassas before the party could be intercepted. They secured the whole train, and doubtless fared sumptuously to-day. So soon as this raid in the rear of our army at Centreville was known, the necessity of "looking to the rear" again be came apparent, and at noon the whole army o Virginia had abandoned Centreville, and was massed this side of Fairfax Court House. Last evening they again took up the line of march and at five o'clock the advance was in sight o Munson's Hill. The enemy's cavalry followed them in the distance, but made no attack, and the whole movement was being accomplished in excellent order. At noon yesterday, Gen. McClellan, at the request of the President, rode out to meet the returning column, and was re-ceived by his troops with the most enthusiastic demonstrations of gratification and pleasure. This state of affairs has of course caused con siderable excitement here, and has doubtless led to the order which virtually places General McCiellan in command. To the great mass of our citizens there is safety in this change of commanders, and by the military it is halled as an omen of success. All begin to feel that the time for trifling has passed, and that there can be no success to our arms unless the men who are to do the fighting have confidence in their commander.

It is now prepared to furnish officer's military c'othing, a cording to regulations at short multiple and a confidence in their commander.

The works for the defence of Washington are all in excellent condition and strongly manned by experienced artillerists, so that no fear is entertained of an attack on them; but it is supposed that the enemy will strike at some line on the Potomac this side of Harper's Ferry. General McClellan has already seen to the strengthening of these points, and there is no settlement to the above named executrix. all in excellent condition and strongly manned General McClellan has already seen to the strenghtening of these points, and there is no doubt that we shall again have a long siege of Washington and an indefinite prolongation of the war. The return of the army to Washington is

The return of the army to Washington is a great mortification in military circles, and it will doubtless be one of equal mortification to the whole country. After fifteen months of the whole country. After fifteen months of the starting point, and the whole work has to the starting point, and the whole work has to be commenced over again. The rebels may now reterate their assertion with some show
